LEXINGTON GROWS WITHOUT WATCHING

LEXINGTON WHEATFIELD

VOL. II

LEXINGTON, OREGON, THURSDAY NOVEMBER 8, 1906

NO. 7

CHAFF FROM THE STRAW STACK

Dont knock.
 He has enough who is content.
 Fussy people are social nuisances.
 Take time while time is, for time will away.
 Never turn the misfortune of others into ridicule.
 He who prizes little things is worthy of great ones.
 Business may be troublesome, but idleness is pernicious.
 Try to be regular and it will soon become a second nature.
 If your wife be a sensible woman make her your private secretary.
 A billiard-room is a bad place to get your daily bread, yet they always have a loaf(er), too, there.
 Were the Book of Fate laid open to view, no man would enjoy a moments peace from the day he looked into it.
 The difference between an uncleanly servant and a chicken is that one is a foul domestic and the other is a domestic foul.
 "Mike, if you meet Pat, tell him to make haste." "Sure an' I will," said Mike; "but what shall I tell him if I don't mate him?"
 The cussedness in a boy is now being removed by an operation on the brain. The old fashioned way was to take it out of the hide.
 "You dare!" she cried. An angry glow across her features flamed.
 He dared, and then she whispered low "You ought to be ashamed!"
 A St Louis woman who was sued for payment of a costly pair of corsets will endeavor to prove in court that they did not fit her snugly. St Louis is in Missouri, you know.
 Almost every town has a character who sprained his back in 1863, or thereabouts. He is physically unable to work, but he can sit all day on a hard box in a livery barn playing checkers, while his wife chases under-breeches up and down the wash board to keep him in grub and smoking tobacco.
