CHAFF FROM THE STRAW STACK

By The Wind Stacker

The weather is sensible, it never pays any attention to the grumblers.

You always see a red headed Irishman on the stage, and hardly ever see one in real life.

If love was dumb instead of blind it would not be able to give voice to so much foolishness.

It is astonishing to see the amount of comfort a man will have out of spoiling some other fellows fun.

The law which prohibits prize fights is not intended to apply to physical culture contests between husbands and

Read The Wheatfield and be happy

Round the idea of one's mother tle mind of a man clings with fond affection. It is the first deep thought stamped upon our infant heart when yet soft and capable of receiving the most profoud impressions, and the after feelings of the world are more or less light in comparison. Even in our old age we look back to that feeling as one of the sweetest we have through whereby we are able to furnish the life. Our passions and our wilfulness may lead us from the object of our one year $7. The Daily Journal and filial love, we learn even to pain her heart, to oppose her wishes, to violate her commands; we may become wild, headstrong and angry at her counsels and opposition; but when death has stilled her monitory voice, and still memory remains to recapitulate her virtues and good deeds, affection, like a flower, beaten to the ground by the past storm, raises her head and smiles among her tears. Around that idea,
