EDITOR BULLETIN: Possibly a few items in regard to a trip recently made to the Odd Fellow's Home, in Portland, would interest Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Mosier. On Sunday, May 16th, we visited the Home. Religious services were just closing as we arrived, the Rev. Mr. Winters from Dallas, having come especially to conduct the meeting.

A number of visitors were present. The Matron being otherwise engaged, one of the sisters, a lady 75 years old, kindly escorted us around, showing us the different rooms and explaining all about the entire establishment. There are at present four sisters, seventeen little children and eleven brothers at the Home. It seemed that they all felt so grateful for the good care and protection they receive. They could not say enough in praise of the Order, and the good work they are doing. It is a satisfaction to know that each of us is assisting in this great cause, be it ever so small. "Bread thrown on the water" in this way will surely return to us some day, if only in knowing we have helped those who are worthy and perhaps less fortunate than ourselves, for this is not taken as charity nor given as such, but because it is our duty.—N.

We have noticed lately several fairly well dressed young men who make the rounds of the houses in town, appearing at the back doors soon after the morning meal and ask for a "hand-out." But we never hear them ask for a chance to earn the price of a meal at the wood pile, or at anything else. Personally, we do not like to think of anyone going hungry, and are always willing to relieve genuine distress, but we have little sympathy for a strong, healthy man who is willing to live from the earnings of others without effort on his part. In some states it is a violation of the law to beg on the street, or from door to door. If it is not in Oregon, it should be.

STURGESS RIDGE

In one of my trips through the country, I chanced to come across some ranches, which have not been mentioned in your newsy paper, and as it is one of the best districts in the county, will send in a few items. Carl Bowman's ranch, you may know by the artistic design of his lawn. Mr. Morden may certainly feel proud of his place as it is an ideal country home and by the time the hundreds of apple trees get into bearing condition, it will net him quite a sum. V. C. Young's place comes next and for comfort he certainly has the place. I noticed Grandpa and Grandma Ireland seemed to be perfectly happy there. Mr. J. McGregor's place is next on the road and looks as though it could be brought up to the standard. Then Mrs. Booth's ranch, also a very good one; Jas. Watt's and Mr. Deans'. The next place belongs to G. W. Grose and a very nice home he will have before long as he is constantly improving it. Then comes the Log School House with Miss Lizzie Elder as teacher and I think it speaks well for the school as this is her seventh term. "Hurrah for District 41." The next ranch belongs to C. Hage and by C. Hage, and by his industry and constant care he certainly has a dandy place. The next on the road belongs to N. P. Sturgess. I noticed he had a fine field of grain, and his trees were bending with cherries, pears and prunes. There are some very fine flowers but I think they belong to the ladies of the house as I noticed Aunt Porter picking a bouquet. I then dropped over the hill into "Frog Hollow" and came on down to the station of Mosier.
