MOSIER CONGRATULATED. From an article appearing in the Irrigator of Nov. 22, 1907, we take the following extract. This article was written by Addison Bennett after he had attended the banquet given by the Mosier Commercial Club, in November, 1907. The quotation follows: "The future of Mosier is not shrouded in mystery. It will be one of the gems of Oregon from a fruit standpoint. They have the soil, climate and the "know how." No finer grapes, apples, strawberries, peaches and cherries were ever grown than they raise there, and they know how to handle and ship their products to the best advantage. Their strawberries are as good as were ever grown, and they are about a week earlier than Hood River's. We congratulate the people of Mosier, and feel sure that they have aroused themselves to a struggle for supremacy which will be successful, and will make their town one of the best-known places in Oregon."
