The Old Folks' Concert, given last Friday night in Lamb's Hall, was largely attended, considering the very inclement weather. The program was prepared hurriedly, few, if any of the "performers" having sufficient time to prepare themselves. However, one individual was heard to remark that he had "often paid 75 cents to see a worse entertainment," so, as the price of the entertainment and supper together was only 25 cents, it may be said that the affair was a success. The ladies realized a little over $16, which will be used in maintaining the street lights of Mosier.
