Footgear Brought Success.

It was the sturdy sandals of the Teutonic tribes that enabled them to march across Europe to the walls of Rome, and we know that the footgear of an army is still a most important part of its equipment. Those whom the Romans called Scythians wore rough sheepskin boots and the Gauls were already noted for their wooden soles.

The Girl Who Lives Alone

whether she attends college or goes to business, needs the Perfection Oil Heater. It will heat a cold, cheerless boarding house or dormitory room and make it livable. It is always a ready help in the many things women do for themselves in their rooms. With the damper top opened it will heat water for tea or cocoa; it will dry the small articles that a woman prefers to wash herself in her own room. It will quickly heat an iron or curling tongs; quickly dry wet shoes or skirts—an ever ready help for the woman who lives alone, dependent on her own resources. The

PERFECTION OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. It will burn nine hours with one filling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless; has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so the wick can be quickly cleaned.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

DINING WITH NEGUS

UNIQUE ROYAL FEAST GIVEN IN ABYSSINIA.

Once a Week the Ruler Feeds All His Subjects Who Care to Attend—Ceremonial a Strange One.

The new Negus of Abyssinia, like his predecessor on the throne before him, gives a public dinner to all of his subjects once a week, when they may feast to their hearts' content. On the three annual festivals this "gheber" becomes a spectacle probably unequalled in the annals of court dinners. An Italian traveler who has been privileged to the present describes it in a letter to the "Corriere."

The background of the barnlike structure which serves as dining room is all but filled with the famous throne bed which the French republic had presented to the late King Menelik; the present negus, on the occasion of the annual festival, sits on the edge of it when the European visitors, the first to enter the room, filed past him, each one being received with a smile and a shake of the hand. As soon as they were seated and began to eat, King Jarsu also began, but his state dignitaries have to wait till their lord, after a while, gives the sign that they also may fall to.

The Abyssinian royal menu is as surprising as a surprise to the European who has expected either the food of primitive man or the concoctions of a French chef. There are six courses, but they do not vary much, the chief ingredients of all being the flesh of fowls. The table service is a curious medley of costly, beautiful gold vessels and broken crockery of the cheapest kind. The Europeans use knives and forks. The Abyssinians are fed by slaves. A strange silence pervades the room during the three hours from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. while the feast is going on, and you hear the distant sound of the great crowd waiting impatiently for admittance, and the beating of the drums in honor of the archangel Gabriel at the church close by.

The moment the Europeans have ended their meal the curtains are drawn aside and through every door the stream of natives pours in. There are 80 tables, each one in charge of an overseer and four assistants, and from five to six thousand Abyssinians are in an incredibly short time engaged in feeding and talking at the same time at the top of their voices. Each table is served by eight slaves, who are kept hard at work supplying the diners with great lumps of raw meat, with which they eat the leaves of a native vegetable, the anghera. They eat enormous quantities of beer, drinking honey water, the national beverage, out of gigantic horns. As soon as one crowd is satisfied it has to make room for another, and all the time the musicians are doing their utmost on trumpets, flutes and other instruments to add to the deafening din. Last of all, a cluster of singers group themselves round the negus, chanting a hymn in his praise, of which, however, he cannot possibly hear a single word. And so ends this cheerful state dinner in the palace of the king of kings.

A Wooden Balloon.

Many things have happened since the time of the Montgolfiers, and perhaps the most remarkable of all is the invention of a German engineer, Herr Rettig. Instead of having for the envelope of his balloon silk or goldbeaters' skin he has adopted wood. The new aerostat is 130 meters long, with a diameter of 15 meters. It has also two motors. The wood used in the construction of the envelope is Canadian pine. Herr Rettig claims that he will effect a saving of gas to an enormous extent, that his envelopes will not be affected by the sun's rays, since wood is a bad conductor of the heat. He says that his envelope will hold the gas for weeks and that he will reach considerable altitudes. Herr Rettig declares that he has solved the problem of long distance; for instance, he will be able to cross the Atlantic.

Made Them All Dance.

No little excitement was caused in a busy thoroughfare in Liverpool recently owing to the strange behaviour of pedestrians. Nearly every person who passed over a certain portion of the pavement was observed to execute quite involuntarily a sort of modified horripole. A crowd gathered, and presently policemen appeared on the scene. But even officers of the law who passed the over spot had to behave like other people. They jumped away from the danger zone as though they were treading on hot bricks. The explanation of the affair is that there was a slight leakage in the electric main which runs under the pavement, and foot passengers stepping on a grating immediately above the leak age experienced a sharp electric shock.

Natural Religion.

Religion should be native. It should be concrete and applicable. Religion is the natural expression of living, not a set of actions or of habits, or a posture of the mind added to the daily life. The type of religion, therefore, is conditioned on the kind of living; and the kind of living is conditioned, in its turn, very largely, on the physical and economic effectiveness of life. The religion of the open country should run deep into the indigenous affairs of the open country. Everything with which men have to do needs to be spiritualized. This is much more effective for our civilization than merely to spiritualize things that we hope for.

Typical Story of Carlyle.

Carlyle had an inveterate hatred on Darwinism, which he described as the "gorilla damnification of humanity." Leonard Huxley, in his life of his father, recalls an incident that happened shortly before Carlyle's death. "My father," he writes, "saw him walking slowly and alone down the opposite side of the street, and touched by his solitary appearance, crossed over and spoke to him. The old man looked at him, and merely remarking 'You're Huxley, aren't you?'—the man that says we are all descended from the monkeys!" went on his way."

Three Hardest Words.

A learned man has said that the three hardest words to pronounce in the English language are "I was mistaken." When Frederick the Great wrote to the senate, "I have just lost a battle, and it's entirely my own fault," Goldsmith says, "his confession showed more greatness than all his victories."

Proper Fumigation.

To fumigate a room after sickness, paste strips of newspapers over cracks, windows and doors. Remove all living things. Loosen the bedding and carpets. Burn two or three formaldehyde candles (obtained at drug stores) according to directions on the box. Leave room closed six or eight hours. Open and air.

A Doubtful Member.

In Miss Wood's kindergarten class there were eight pupils, four girls and four boys. One of the boys, however had not yet reached the estate of kilted no mention trousers. Accordingly when little Susan Phelps was asked by a visitor to tell how many boys and how many girls there were, her confused reasoning went as follows:

"There's eight, one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, Miss Elliott," she replied. "And he's a girl!" she pointed at one who wore dresses in the stead of manly garb—"why, there's five girls, and one, two, three boys! But if she's a boy, there's one, two, three, four girls, and one, two—four boys. She's really a boy, you know Miss Elliott," she confided, in conclusion.—Youth's Companion.

CELEBRATED ANABYRINE.

The Circle Railroad in London describes a circle whose diameter is about 10 miles. In the car was an old and very obese lady, who expressed the utmost solicitude lest she be carried past her station. A passenger assured her that her station was half an hour away, and that he would tell her when they reached it.

"Thank you very much, sir," said the old lady, "but whenever I get out, being as 'ow I'm so 'eavy, I backs out; an' I ain't more than 'arf way out afore along comes a guard, an' 'e says, 'Look lively there, mum,' says he, 'look lively, an' 'e pushes me back in again, an' I've been round the circle three times this morning!"

A Byron Statue.

Many years ago some admirers of Lord Byron raised a subscription for a monument to the poet to be placed in Westminster Abbey. Chantrey was requested to execute it, but on account of the smallness of the sum subscribed he declined, and Thorwaldsen was then applied to and cheerfully undertook the work.

In about 1838 the finished statue arrived at the customs-house in London, but to the astonishment of the subscribers the dean of Westminster, Dr. Ireland, declined to give permission to have it set up in the abbey, and owing to this difficulty, which proved insurmountable, for Dr. Ireland's successor was of the same opinion, it remained for upwards of twelve years in the customs-house. When (1846) it was removed to the library of Trinity College, Cambridge.

The poet is represented in the statue of the size of life, seated on a ruin, with his left foot resting on the fragment of a column. In his right hand he holds a style up to his mouth. In his left a book, inscribed "Child Harold." He is dressed in a frock coat and cloak. Beside him on the left is a skull, above which is the Athenian owl. The likeness is, of course, posthumous. Thorwaldsen was born November 19, 1770, and died on March 24, 1844.

New York's Night Workers.

It is generally supposed that the night workers are few in number, but careful canvasses shows that the total number of persons who work after sundown in New York reaches the figure of 52,000. This is equal to the population of each of such cities as Springfield, Mass., Hoboken, N. J., Savannah, Ga., Utica, N. Y., and Elizabeth, N. J.

True Secret of Living.

The secret of living is the discovery of the greatest good, the things that are really worth the seeking, the values that do not fade nor depreciate. The greatest good you can do any person or people is to train them to make this discrimination, to help them to choose for themselves among the many possible prizes the ones that are worthy.

Better Look Outside.

If you want to make the best of your life, don't spend much time in looking within and wondering if your feelings are all right. Look outside instead, and see what you are doing for others, who you are saying about other people, how you are behaving to those around you. If you are behaving kindly and truly to your neighbor you will not go far wrong.

Camp's Gold Yield is Big.

Seattle.—The new gold diggings on Squirrel creek, Alaska, 40 miles south of the Arctic circle, have shipped $300,000 in dust to Seattle this season. Alfred Christopher, arrived from the new camp with $25,000 as the result of his summer's cleanup. The season was unfavorable, being too wet. One hundred miners are in the field and Nome is sending 100 more. It is estimated that Squirrel creek next year should produce $2,000,000.

Ambergis Lump Found.

Seattle.—Gust Olson, a laborer of Valdez, recently found on the beach near that town a lump of ambergis weighing 220 pounds and valued at $4,400, according to advices received by steamer. Whaling men say this is the largest piece of the precious substance ever found.

HUNDREDS DIE IN FOREST FIRE

Death List Grows Hourly—Bodies In Piles.

Four Towns Wiped Out By Onrushing Blaze—Hundreds Escape on Special Trains.

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 10.—Death's toll from forest fires now sweeping Northern Minnesota in the Rainy River district may reach 400. General Superintendent Cameron of the Canadian Pacific railway, says this estimate will be larger.

Four towns have been wiped out by the flames. Hundreds of settlers are missing and the death list grows hourly. Bodies of 98 dead have already been gathered. Thousands of refugees left Warroad. The town is in great danger from forest fires which are gradually approaching the town. Two special trains left Winnipeg over the Canadian Northern railway with fire hose and apparatus. Roosevelt is safe after an all-day fight, but the town is crowded with refugees.

The fire is spreading and is now only seven miles from Sprague, Manitoba, which is 20 miles Northwest of here. A fire is also coming down from the north of Sprague, where it has burned the great quantities of cord wood, telephone and telegraph poles awaiting shipment.

The forest fire is the greatest since the Hinckley, Minn., horror of 15 years ago. It is almost impossible to estimate the number of missing, but messages sent out by private individuals indicate that 100 relatives, mostly from around Beaudette, have not reported.

General Superintendent Cameron, of the Canadian Northern, places the number of deaths at 400, but admits that it may be larger.

The towns of Pitt, Spooner, Graceton and Beaudette were burned Friday night. The fire was heralded by a shower of sparks and burning brands, which swept across the Beaudette river, and the inhabitants barely had time to reach the special train that was waiting before both towns were on fire.

Sick people, apparently by the score, appeared and were carried or assisted to points of safety. [There were five patients in Carrigan's hospital who had been burned.]

A special train is waiting to take the people to some other point in case the fire should get a fresh start. The town is not yet entirely free of danger.

The buildings of the Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber company are practically the only structures standing in Spooner, not a stick, fence, nor a foot of sidewalk being left. There are not even the heaps of debris that usually remain after a fire.

The property loss in Rainy River, Beaudette and Spooner alone, including the Rat Portage Lumber company's plant and yard at Rainy River and the yard of Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber company at Spooner, will total about $1,500,000. It will be some time before the loss of life is known even approximately.

Wagon loads of human bodies are being brought into the railway station at Beaudette. It is reported that many settlers, crazed with grief at the loss of families and property, are roaming the woods, and searching parties are looking for the injured, the dead and the demented. One family of nine, one of seven and one of five are known to have perished.

At 8:30 p. m. Saturday a tornado of fire struck Beaudette and Spooner, and within three minutes after the first alarm every building was ablaze. Within half an hour they were but heaps of ashes. The people of these two towns had just enough time to get out of their homes with what they had on their backs. They were loaded on a passenger train that was standing at the depot and taken to Rainy River, Ont.

Taft's Life Menaced.

Millbury, Mass.—An alleged scheme for the assassination of President Taft, was unfolded to Mrs. Delia C. Torrey, aunt of the president, by a stranger who called at her home here. The man, who refused to give his name, declared he overheard the plotters while in Boston. As he departed, he threatened to return and kill Mrs. Torrey if the matter got into the newspapers. The man went away from Millbury as suddenly and as mysteriously as he had come, and there is no clue to his whereabouts.
