Keeping Young and Well.

Here is a receipt for keeping young and well: Find an occupation and love it with all your heart. Think kindly of and act justly toward those by whom you are surrounded. This recipe, if followed, will insure a good digestion, sound health, and never fails to make a woman of forty-five look and feel fifteen years younger.

To Frustrate Burglars.

Between Neighbors.

"That thermometer I bought is a fraud. It hain't brought on no extraordinary weather." "You've got the wrong idea, Peleg. A thermometer won't act like a lightning rod."

Virtue.

Virtue by itself is not strong enough, or anything like it. It must have strength added to it and the determination to use that strength.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Glory In Doing One's Best.

The reason so many people are not contented and happy in their work is because they do not do their best at it. Never be satisfied with second-bests.

SOUTH AMERICAN CITIES.

Modern Spirit Seen in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru.

The municipality of Buenos Aires will have its own exhibit, but this will not take into account the indescribable attractiveness of the largest city in the Southern Hemisphere. Here alone is an object lesson of the progress and accomplishment of South America. The business and social life there is equaled only by that of London, Paris or New York. The luxury and display are exceeded not even by these capitals. But what is seen in the metropolis of Argentina by no means exhausts the astonishment of the individual who for the first time becomes really interested in our sister continent, says Albert Hale in the American Review of Reviews. There is no place in the exhibition for illustration of the development of genuine civilization in these cities of South America, but in their way they express even better perhaps than railways and transportation all that is to the credit of these ten republics celebrating a natal day. Manaos, 1,000 miles up the Amazon, is as modern as Kansas City. Rio de Janeiro, which the traveler on the way down must pass, with its magnificent Evenida Central, its beautiful harbor just nearing completion at a cost of $50,000,000, can put to the blush many a city of the Old or New World for the excellence of its civic progress. If this traveler is wise he will not be content with the exhibition alone, but will cross the Andes and learn further lessons from such cities as Santiago and Valparaiso in Chile and Lima in Peru. They all manifest the spirit of the twentieth century with as much vigor as our cities display and, as a rule, they are far more beautiful, surprising as the statement may appear to the untraveled North American.

MODEL SMALL FARM

NEBRASKA MAN HAS SHOWN WHAT CAN BE DONE.

By the Application of Swiss Intensive Methods to a Rocky Hillside He Is Rapidly Becoming a Rich Man.

When a man's father has been a farmer and has raised a family of ten children on the products of six acres of land twenty acres must seem a big farm. It was that way with Arnold Martin when he came to America 20 years ago from Switzerland and settled in Pawnee county, Nebraska.

Martin is the ablest exponent of the small farm theory in America, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. His farm has been written of extensively and is the subject of a government bulletin. The land which Martin farms was so rough and undesirable that it was detached from the tract of which originally it was a part. Martin bought it for $250. The first year his crops paid him $600. Since then his earnings have grown to $2,000 a year, exclusive of the income from cash premiums at fairs. Last year Martin won $1,025 at the Nebraska state fair and at Electric park. At both he took first prize for county exhibits. He also won many individual prizes in agricultural classes at both fairs.

"Hard work and a little thought." That's his answer when asked how to make farming pay. Martin sells all his products in a little country town in competition with his neighbors on bigger farms. An idea of the immense amount of work Martin did in transforming 20 acres of hillside into a producing farm may be gained in the fact that he took the curves out of a creek which meandered through his property and thereby gained another acre of tillable land. He also made it the source of a water supply. If it doesn't rain Martin turns on his home-made irrigation plant. Instead of the soil being washed down by rain Martin had arranged his rows so that they hold the moisture longer than bottom land would if cultivated in the ordinary manner.

Martin works his land all the time except in winter. His is the intensive method used in the rocky section of Switzerland, from which he came. He does all his own work and finds time to work a little for his neighbors. When the stones on his farm became a nuisance he found a market for a quantity and built his farm buildings of what was left.

Martin hauls manure from towns near him and uses it as fertilizer. His land is growing richer each year in spite of the fact that his crop rotations are short. An instance of this is that he plants corn in his potato patches when giving them the last weeding. Watermelon vines sometimes are ten feet long in his onion patches by the time the onions are ready for market. Martin's opinion about the proper size of a farm has been made an aphorism. Here it is:

"A man can start on 20 acres; 40 acres will do; 80 acres are enough; 160 an abundance; 320 a misfortune and 640 a calamity."

Man's Great Problem.

Your greatest problem is yourself. You are also your greatest treasure. If you can get yourself determined upon—find out what you are and what you are for—and if you can discover and develop the elements of value in your nature your life will take on the beauty of orderliness and your need of the savings bank will be less and less, for you will be your own riches. I say if you can, for this procedure takes wisdom, and wisdom is a fruit which ripens slowly. Perhaps you are not yet wise; perhaps you are still incapable of self-analysis; perhaps you are confused amid the surfaces and appearances of life; perhaps your code of conduct is based upon the customs of the times and the sayings of the alleged sages; perhaps you are disheartened and discouraged—even in a frenzy of retreat before the things in your life which seem to oppose you and beat you back. But even so, this is but a condition or a mood which is not final. The condition will right itself, the mood will pass.—Richard Wightman in Metropolitan Magazine.

About Appendicitis.

So long as inflammation of the appendix remains restricted to that organ but little harm is done to the patient. Indeed, it is doubtful if any of the symptoms of appendicitis, properly so-called, are really due to the inflammation of the vermiform appendix itself; it is much more probable that they only come on when the inflammation has extended to the surrounding peritoneum. This involvement of the peritoneum is the important factor, whether from the point of view of diagnosis or of prognosis. The appendix is only important in so far as it is the original cause of the peritonitis, and therefore its removal may be the best way of treating the peritonitis. It will be well, therefore, to consider the functions of the peritoneum when discussing the treatment of appendicitis. They are threefold: The power of absorption, the power of killing organisms and the power of adhesion of one surface of peritoneum against another when in any way either surface is irritated.—London Hospital.

No More Pining for Him.

"Why, John," she said, when she had returned from the seaside after having been absent for nearly three months, "how well you look! And you wrote that you were pining away."

"Well, I was pining away for a while," he absent-mindedly replied, "but the stenographer who left me last spring to get married got tired of her husband, and returned to me a few weeks ago."—Judge.

Location of Garden of Eden.

The late General Gordon firmly believed the Coco de Mer to be the forbidden fruit, and the Seychelles islands to be the site of the Garden of Eden. This idea was so firmly fixed in his mind that he caused soundings to be taken of the surrounding sea, for the purpose of tracing the courses of the four rivers, and the results confirmed him in his belief.

METHODICAL MR. BLINXOM.

His Mysterious Gain of Two Minutes Made Clear to Him.

"I am, I have been all my life," said Mr. Blinxom, according to the New York Sun, "a very methodical man. I rise at a certain hour, take my breakfast at a certain time and start downtown daily always at a certain minute by the clock; but this day for some unaccountable reason I found myself starting two minutes early, and really it quite disturbed me. I couldn't understand how or where I had gained that two minutes.

"But that wasn't the only bewildering thing that was to happen to me this morning. At the office when I took off my hat the office boy, before he could check himself, started back from me with a look of astonishment. A man who came in to see me five minutes later looked at me for a moment with what was clearly amazement, and another man who came in a little later still started back a step when he saw me with 'Er-r-r—hm-m—ha—' before he collected himself and got down to business.

"Then, at a later time yet, when I sent for my stenographer, who is commonly very calm and sedate, why, when she came in she all but laughed at me this morning, and she seemed to be quivering with merriment over something all through my dictation. What could it all mean? Really, I was lost in wonderment over it all until it came time to go out to luncheon, when, as I was drying my hands, I happened to see myself in a mirror. Then I was ready to laugh after I had got over my amazement.

"My head looked like that of the wild man of Borneo, my hair was so mixed up and twisted and tousled. I had somehow forgotten to comb my hair this morning, and no wonder I had created a commotion. But I was glad of one thing. This made it all clear to me how I had come to gain that two minutes in starting away from home, and that was a satisfaction to me, anyway, for I am very methodical."

BRITISH WIN SPEED PRIZE

Racing Aeroplane Averages Over 61 Miles Per Hour.

Frenchman In Monoplane Was Making Better Time, But Met With Bad Smashup.

New York—Claude Grahame-White, flying for the Royal Aero club of the United Kingdom, lifted the Gordon Bennettt international speed trophy from the custody of America in the fastest time ever covered in the full distance of 100 kilometers, (62.14 miles) around a five-kilometer course.

His average speed was a fraction better than 61 miles an hour, and his fastest lap was 2 minutes 55.77 seconds, but the captain of the French team, Alfred LeBlanc, flying in a similar machine, a 100-horse power Bleriot monoplane, was making each lap on an average of 20 seconds faster than Grahame-White, and would have won the cup if he had not met with a disastrous accident in his last lap when he had the race seemmeingly well in hand.

WALTER BROOKINS

LeBlanc's first lap was a new world's record in itself for five kilometers, 2 minutes and 45.63 seconds, but he subsequently exceeded it with a lap done in 2 minutes 44.32 seconds.

LeBlance was running with the wind under full power at an estimated speed of 80 miles an hour, when the feed pipe from his gasoline tank to his motor loosened and he suddenly found himself with nothing but momentum to carry him.

It is a peculiarity of racing aeroplanes that they are trimmed down so fine they cannot execute a proper volplane, or glide, if the gasoline shuts off. They must come to earth under power, and even then they bump severely on landing. LeBlance was helpless and panic-stricken. He tried to lift his planes so that the last few drops of gasoline might filter down into the engine and lend him strength to make a landing.

His steerage way was gone, and when a puff of wind caught him he drifted sideways, still driving at tremendous speed, and crashed head foremost into a telegraph pole. The pole was 14 inches thick, but he broke it in three pieces. The first fragment was sliced clean off 12 feet up and snapped again at the bottom of the stump. The third and topmost fragment fell over backwards and smashed down on the fragile planes.

The chassis and steel shield which encloses the motor were completely crumpled, but the solid steel of the motor itself withstood the shock. Had LeBlanc hit the pole in another manner, it is difficult to see how he could have escaped death.

Charles K. Hamilton, of the American team, was enthusiastic.

"LeBlanc is the best track driver in the world," he said. "The way he took those turns was a marvel. Grahame-White would never have been in it except for LeBlanc's accident, and no American machine had a chance with him. I am going to throw my machine into the scrap heap and buy a Bleriot before I leave this track. The biplane is out of date and we might as well admit it."

Revolution is Serious.

Montevideo, Uruguay—The revolutionary movement is taking on a serious aspect. There are now 10,000 armed revolutionists who are graually being concentrated. Several skirmishes have taken place, but the casualities have been suppressed. Dr. A. Bachini, the foreign minister, recently issued a manifesto declaring that the government was unable to prevent the revolution from spreading, because the sympathies of the people, outside the capital, are entirely with the revolutionists.

Explosion Injures Seventeen.

San Francisco—Seventeen persons were severely hurt in an explosion from a fire in an apartment house in Ellis street. Four of the number were newspaper men and the others were members of the fire department. Most of the lodgers had left the building before the explosion occurred, and those who remained on the upper floors escaped on fire ladders. Captain Joseph Cappelli and Hoseman Thomas Bell of the fire department were overcome by gas and were rescued by their comrades.

Paralysis Kills Student.

Princeton, N. J.—Marcus Crawford, of Franklin, Pennsylvania, member of the freshman class of the university, died in the universary infirmary of infantile paralysis. Crawford went to the infirmary four days ago, complaining of pains in the head. In a short time his limbs were paralyzed and despite heroic efforts to save him, he succumbed to the disease.

This is the second death from the same disease in the freshman class.

DOCTORS ADVISED OPERATION—DECIDED TO TRY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I want to tell you in a few words what your Swamp-Root did for me, believing that my testimony may do some other suffering person a great deal of good.

About six years ago, I was dangerously ill, consulted three doctors, all of whom said I had kidney trouble. One of the doctors analyzed my urine and reported that I had gravel, and further said that in order to regain my health and life, an operation would be necessary. I did not want to be operated on as I was afraid that I would not recover. Someone told me of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and said it was a reliable medicine for kidney trouble, so I decided to try it, and I went to Mr. Rose, the druggist, at 303 Central Ave., Minneapolis, and bought a bottle, took it, noticed results and continued taking it until I was entirely cured.

Having been free from any kidney trouble for over six years, I consider that I am absolutely cured and know that Swamp-Root has the credit.

I never fail to tell my friends about your remedy, as I believe it is the best of its kind. Your U & O Ointment is also very good. We are never without a jar in our house.

Yours very truly,
MRS. MARGARET E. ANDERSON,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Bad Breath

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can willingly and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles."—Chas. H. Halpern, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

In the various discussions of the high cost of living, it is frequently suggested that waste is responsible for some of it. A Frenchman is reported as saying that he could live in any American village better than any of the inhabitants on what the inhabitants throw away.

Cigar Boxes for Pepper.

Connecticut is an enterprising state. Its chief products in the good old days before the pure food laws were wooden nutmegs and basswood hams. Now she boasts a philanthropist who was recently arrested for grinding up cigar boxes and selling the result as pepper.
