Oregon-Washington Booklet.

The publicity department of the O. R. & N. Co. has just issued a booklet called "Success in Oregon and Washington." It is a pamphlet of some 15 pages, well printed and illustrated, and contains in condensed form much valuable information about the diversified resources of these two states—empires in themselves. We here quote a few of the opening paragraphs which will be of interest to those who may not see the booklet:

"In Oregon, with its area of 96,030 square miles, there is a population (estimated) of 725,000. The area of Washington is 69,180 square miles and its estimated population is 1,250,000. The state of Ohio, with an area of 41,060 square miles, has a population of 4,500,000. Massachusetts has an area of 8,315 square miles and its population is given as 3,326,397. Indiana has an area of 36,350 square miles, and its population is 2,940,520.

"The states of Ohio, Massachusetts and Indiana have a combined area of 85,720 square miles, and a population of 10,766,917. Oregon has a greater area with a population less than one-tenth of that of the states named. Washington with its immense area has a population less than one-fourth of the states indicated.

"Oregon and Washington, with their greater areas, are capable of supporting a larger population than that of the states named on soil products alone. Labor on the farm, in the orchard, and in all the allied pursuits of agriculture is abundantly rewarded. "There is room in Oregon and Washington for many thousands of farmers, orchardists, dairymen and poultry growers. There is a steady market with good prices for all that can be produced. Land is reasonable and the climate congenial."

Henry Bauer was a passenger on yesterday's local for Portland.

MOSIER BOOK STORE.
The car of Spitzenberg apples, sent by C. H. Sproat, of Hood River, which took first prize and sweepstakes at the National Apple Show at Spokane, was sent to Chicago and repeated its victory there.

As the Portland Apple Show is still on, we can't give a full account of it this week, but will in the next issue. We will say, however, that Mosier apples will win some of the prizes and that they would win more of them if Mosier soil were not so rich that the apples grow too large and perfect, according to the report of one of the judges. Now what do you think of that? There were several exhibits of Mosier apples that were ruled out because of their size! More anon.

A new corporation, The Hood River Apple Orchard Company, has been formed recently by Messrs. W. B. Allen, H. Coburn Allen, Fred F. McCrea, and others and they have already obtained control of about 600 acres of land in the upper valley south of Parkdale which they expect to develop and sell in five and ten acre tracts. Messrs. H. C. Allen and McCrea secured the land with the assistance of Alfred T. Allen, of the Hood River District Land Company, who has operated extensively in the upper valley section, and their property consists of some of the best pieces of raw land in that part of the valley. It does not all lie in one tract, but the pieces were selected. An office was opened a few weeks ago in Indianapolis by H. C. Allen and Mr. McCrea and they have interested a great many people in the Hood River metropolis in their lands. The company plans to sell the tracts on easy terms and develop the land for the purchaser, caring for it until the trees are five years old. George I. Sargent, the well-known orchardist of the west side, will have charge of the development work on the tracts and he expects to take twenty acres himself upon which he will live and superintend the work of clearing planting and caring for the young orchard. It is probable that a considerable colony of Indianapolis people will be out in a few years to take up their residence in that section which is being rapidly put into cultivation.—Glacier.

Introducing President Howard Elliott, of the Northern Pacific Railroad, President Wilcox of the Development League, quite truthfully stated the railroads had expended more money for publicity work than all other organizations combined. Mr. Elliott in his speech supplemented this by the statement that since coming into the Pacific Northwest the Northern Pacific had expended in bringing to the attention of the world the advantages of the country more than $8,000,000. An equally satisfactory showing could probably be made by the Harriman lines, which for the past four years have been lavish in their appropriations for advertising the resources of this country. Now that it has been demonstrated beyond question that the greatest need of the Northwest is more people, and also that the railroads are spending millions to get them here and more millions to open up new territory on which they may be located, there should be the most harmonious co-operation between the people and the railroads. The Development League in its Salem session showed clearly that it had perfected admirable plans for the most satisfactory distribution of these new settlers. With the railroads spreading the gospel of Oregon opportunities and turning the newcomers over to the various branches of the Development League, there should be due appreciation of their efforts and every encouragement offered them to extend branches and new lines wherever they are needed. Oregon is on the eve of a tremendous economic change, and the railroads are easily the most potent factors in that change. They should be treated with the utmost fairness and liberality.—Oregonian.

More People For Oregon

The meeting of the Oregon Development League at Salem this week was the most important affair of its kind ever held in Oregon. It brought together from every locality in the state, representative men who are engaged in exploiting the resources of Oregon for the purpose of attracting settlers. Throughout the discussions the keynote of co-operation struck no discordant sound. There was unanimous sentiment that the exploitation work of the future should be carried on with a view to giving all localities in the state equal opportunities in presenting their merits to the home seeker. There will be complete elimination of the reprehensible habit of "knocking" one portion of the state in the belief that it is an aid to some other portion. The numerous speeches made and papers read at the meeting disclosed very satisfactory results from the publicity work already performed, and also outlined an elaborate program for the future.

Some Apples

An orchardist at Cashmere, Washington, Mr. E. P. Groves, has several trees growing apples so large that but twenty-seven can be packed in one box. The apples are known as the Black Ben Davis and are fully five inches in diameter. He has contracted every one of the apples at a figure approximately twenty-five cents each. Out of his orchard he picked five red apples that fill a half bushel basket and ten of them a common apple box. These apples are growing on three-year old trees, about fifty apples to a tree. These are believed to be the largest apples grown in the Northwest this year.—St. Louis Republic, October 17.
