About a dozen of Teddie Young's little friends met at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Woods on Tuesday afternoon and passed the time most pleasantly in various games. Mrs. Woods served light refreshments and the youngsters had a delightful time. The occasion was the eighth anniversary of Teddie's birth.

About 5000 delegates and members attended the National Convention of the Christian Church which was held in Portland last week. Three of the large churches were tendered the convention in which to hold the meetings, the Grace Methodist Church, the White Temple (Baptist) and the Presbyterian Church. Among those who attended from Mosier were Rev. K. H. Sickafoose and wife, Mr. John Ross and wife and Miss Bishop and Mr. Geo Carroll.

Ladies' Aid Meets.

Talk about your good times, you may think you have had them, but unless you have been fortunate enough to be invited out to Evandale, the beautiful country place of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Evans, you have missed one of the greatest treats of your life. Such a pleasure was enjoyed by all the Ladies Aid Society last Wednesday where they held an all-day session out there. The grounds are truly one of nature's parks, assisted by the handiwork of man; swings, seats, music, but oh joy! that banquet table, how it actually groaned under its burden, and when it was relieved there was truly a crowd "too full for utterance."

Mrs. Evans and Miss Maud are certainly skilled in the art of Domestic Science.

After the ladies recovered sufficiently for speech, a short business session was held. The resignation of the President, Mrs. J. H. Porter, was read, Mrs. Porter finding herself unable to attend regularly. The Society enthusiastically accepted her resignation and elected Mrs. Allington President and Mrs. Fred Evans Vice President. Work of Social development along various lines was discussed and several committees of different departments were appointed. Miss Maud entertained the guests with guitar solos which were very much appreciated. Another feature was a "Special Bargain Sale," arranged by Messrs Wilcox, Fred and Dick Evans. When a display of millinery was marked from two cents to thirty cents each, there was a great rush of buyers and the hats were soon all disposed of. After more music, more ice cream, more conversation, the Autobuses were brought around and the guests departed to their various homes. There not being sufficient Autobuses in the vicinity a number of members were unable to attend, which was much regretted by all. We are looking forward to the time when the much talked of Electric line will be built so that all may have a chance to attend such occasions.

The following were present: Mesdames Dick Evans, Ernest Evans, Fred Evans, Kibbee, Root, Leliott, Haenke, McGregor, Littlepage, Forsberg, Allington, Akers, Misses Foster, Kuischer, Clement, Ruth Littlepage, Maud Evans, Laura Kibbee, Esther Forsberg, Nedra Evans, Messrs Dick and Fred Evans, Wilcox and McGregor, Foster and Darrel Evans, Maxwell Kibbee, Darrel Allington and Estel Akers.

Borrowed Plumes.

The story goes that a wellknown and popular young man not a thousands miles from Mosier, was in town one day clad in a broadcloth suit of overalls and jumper. While here he met another young gent and three young ladies and they all decided to walk to Hood River and come back on the late train. This young man in question didn't like to appear on the streets of the city with the young ladies, clad in work clothes, so he borrowed some glad rags from an obliging friend and away the party went. Everything went along smoothly until they started across the long trestle between the tunnel and Hood River, when they heard the whistle of an approaching train. Our man with the borrowed plums started, ed with two of the ladies, to run across the trestle, but the suit he wore, made for a smaller man, was so tight that the poor chap had little use of his limbs and he was obliged to turn back to escape being run down. The other kept on and beat the train to the other end of the trestle and Don followed on behind the flyer, reaching Hood River in time to catch the east bound train home.

NOTICE
