Trading at home.

The Dalles Optimist says:—Have you any town, city or state pride? Why do you buy out of town? Boost your town; don't knock or try to kill it.

Why do you buy out of town? You may think you save money, but do you?

Every dollar you put out of circulation here at home makes it just so much harder for you to find another dollar to take its place. Is that saving money?

Your home merchant extends you credit when you need it—and you know how often that occurs and for how long you "hang him up"—but when you do your cash buying you send your money to some distant city because some things in which the regular price is widely advertised are sold a few cents lower than the price at home.

And the mail order house makes on something you do not know about—or on the quality of the goods.

When you buy of a home merchant and find that your purchase is not up to the standard you can go to him and have it out. Can you do that when you make your purchase in Chicago?

You may argue that you do not sell your products in this town. Perhaps you don't—but couldn't you do so if the town were larger and more prosperous? Do you think this town will grow if you persist in sending to an out-of-town firm for goods? And wouldn't your products have a greater sale if we all did our share in calling for "Made in Oregon" goods, all things being equal?

If people sending their orders to the big mail order houses would spend the same amount of money in their own towns these towns would be growing just as the larger cities are growing. There would be a larger demand for "Made in Oregon" merchandise, a demand for a larger force of clerks to handle the increased trade and a demand for houses for the clerks to live in. There would be a larger demand for farm products for them to live upon, a larger demand for the produce that the average farmer raises and is willing to raise more of, if the demand makes it necessary. Think it over and see if your trade would not be some help toward bringing about these new conditions!

School Opens.

The ringing of the school bell brought 73 pupils to the school house on Monday, their faces showing a pleasant anticipation of a prosperous and satisfactory school year. The pupils were divided as follows. In the advanced room, with prof. Johnson as principal, there were 20 pupils; in the intermediate room there were 21; Mrs. Johnson has charge of this room, and in the primary room there were 32 little tots, who will have Miss Huntington as their teacher.

All three of these teachers have had years of experience in their work and the school board and parents may feel assured that their children will receive the best of care and instruction. There were but three citizens in attendance at the opening of the school, one of them being a member of the board, Mr. Wm Akers.

D. D. Hail had the misfortune to lose one of his big bay horses last Sunday. Funeral services held Monday, interment down in the bottom. Only the immediate friends of deceased were present.

Mosier Could Furnish Some

"Our Dumb Animals" says that worn-out or overworked horses may have a place to rest and recuperate, the city of Seattle has opened the public pasture to a limited number. The problem of how to take care of these old veterans of industry with which every large city has to deal, never was solved more happily. To Miss Mary Krueger, secretary of the local Humane Society, belongs the credit of securing this concession from the city officials. Hereafter the toil worn horses will have a vacation when they need it, even in winter as well as summer.
