Building Loan Association
A local branch of a building and loan association has been established here this week, with four well known citizens as directors. It has been proven by years of experience that these associations are of great benefit to a community, enabling the business man and the wage earner to buy a home with the money he would spend for rent. The local organization has not yet been worked out in detail, but no doubt when it is the directors will make their announcement.

The Mosier Literary Society will give a program today in the High School Room at 2:45 p. m.

A county teachers' institute will be held at The Dalles the first three days of next week, so there will be no school until Thursday.

Mosierites who have not taken the trouble (which would prove a great pleasure) to go out and visit in Mosier district are missing many good things. Surprises meet one on every hand. For instance, a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cummings, five or six miles southeast of town, would prove a revelation to the town residents, who might expect to find an ordinary, comfortable country house. To his surprise he would see an up-to-date modern house, equal in its construction and furnishings to many city houses, situated in the beautiful Mosier Hills, where the view is unsurpassed in loveliness and grandeur. Mr. Cummings is an intelligent, energetic citizen, which is shown by the progress he is making in the development of his place. Such a class of people as he and many others in the district will place Mosier in the front rank of intelligence, culture, progressiveness and prosperity.

J. K. McGregor attended a music meeting at Hood River last night.

Ortley Items.
Captain Charles M. Bundle, Adjutant of the 16th Infantry, stationed at Fort Seward, Alaska, joined his superior officers, Colonels Cornelius Gardiner and C. W. Kennedy, in locating on an orchard home at Ortley. From far off Valdez these officers report that many prominent Army men of high rank now assembled there, holding a court-martial, will soon visit Ortley with a view of locating.

At this rate, we will soon have an Army and Navy Club at Ortley.

Dr. Arthur Canfield, who has charge of the practice of Portland's eminent surgeon, Dr. Byron Miller, who, we are sorry to hear is seriously ill at Zurich, Switzerland, found time to visit Ortley, the charms of which he later stated compelled him to purchase an orchard with a view of establishing a country home.

We are all glad to know that we will soon have a skillful surgeon with us when our appendix, etc., quit behaving.

Another addition to Ortley's population is the purchase of an orchard by Bert Johnson, one of the Department managers for Lowengart, the great Portland wholesale milliner.

Chaplain James W. Hillman, of the 16th Infantry, is also an orchardist at Ortley, having purchased a tract on Military Row, adjoining his brother's orchard, who is a prominent New York banker.

Advices from Colonel Gardener state that Sergeant Hoster, from his command, retiring, having reached the age limit, is headed for Ortley to locate near his old commander. Welcome to Fort Ortley, ye old and faithful servant of Uncle Sam.
