It would appear that Wasco county is returning to the "wild and woolly" days of its early history, when crime was rampant and murder frequent. Within two months three murders have been done, two within a week, and, according to a threat reported to have been made by the husband of the woman murdered by her drink crazed son, the end is not yet for he declares he will "get" the saloon man who sold the liquor to his son, who had been warned not to let him have any.

Three murder cases will be tried in Wasco county next week when District convenes. One of the murders was committed in The Dalles, when one man killed another in a quarrel over a tent. The second was done by Dell Howell when he wantonly shot down J. C. Fowle, mayor of Shanika, and the third murderer is Bill Glisan, who brutally stabbed his old mother in the back, near Antelope. And the taxpayers will settle the bill of expenses, caused by liquor.

W. E. Gay, representing the Pacific Light & Power Co. is in town this week securing further contracts from the citizens for the use of electricity. It appears that the contracts obtained last August were not sufficient to warrant the expense of delivering the "juice" to Mosier, and Mr. Gay's mission here is to secure enough more to guarantee expenses.

Triumphs of the Air.
At the rate aviators are succeeding in the completion of the conquest of the air, there will be little left to learn by the time of the holding of the Panama-California International Exposition in 1915. San Diego than will offer to the world, if the plans of Director-General Collier are carried out, a complete exemplification of the art of aviation from its inception. Col. Collier is himself an enthusiast on this subject, a member of the San Diego Aero Club, and one of the chief promoters of the sport. He has a firm ally in Glenn H. Curtiss, who has established his winter aviation school at San Diego. Curtiss has been made Commissioner of Aviation for the Exposition. He will not only superintend the gathering, but he will make a special study of meteorological conditions on the Coast, and will do all he can to further the success of the $10,000 flight from Panama to San Diego, scheduled to take place on the opening of the canal.

Explosive Mosquitoes.
From Tarrytown, N. Y., comes a pleasant tale of mosquitoes which get on gasoline jags and then explode, to the terror of the inhabitants of Tarrytown, and one James Brady is mentioned as having been badly burned by a fire in his mattress started by a mosquito with its tank full of gasoline, which came too near while Mr. Brady was filling his pipe and exploded. This is about the meanest thing the mosquito has done yet. When we had all thought we had discovered a sure way to get rid of mosquitoes and malaria by using liberally the product of the Standard Oil Company, it appears that the mosquitoes are trying to become immune by absorbing gasoline into their systems. This is going to make it more difficult to abate the mosquito pest, and in a way it is a blow at the Presidential aspirations of the Hon. Woodrow Wilson, who has been taunted with the fact that while President Taft has rid the Isthmus of Panama of mosquitoes, Governor Wilson has not yet proven his ability to do the same thing for New Jersey.
