Oregon county school superintendents in convention at Salem last week took steps to encourage the country life movement among the school children of the state. They asked that the State Fair be held later in September to give more time for preparing school exhibits. It was also decided to foster poultry raising and several superintendents will try to get every pupil in their counties to raise not less than thirty chickens or ducks.

Some appreciative people feel that, when away from home, their town paper, received each week, is next best to letters from home. Tho a paper can not furnish to the absent ones the daily happenings of the immediate home circle, it does contain local news that is of interest to them which they would not hear of except thru their home paper. Miss Dorothy Godbersen is among those who wish to keep in touch with her home town and neighborhood and has ordered the Bulletin sent to her address in Los Angeles, where she is spending the winter.

Death of Mrs. M. V. Sturgess

Miss Mary V. Currier was born in Grand Rapids, Ohio, March 22nd 1858. She was married to Nathan P. Sturgess on January 27, 1873. In 1888 Mrs. Sturgess came with her husband and children to Mosier, where they have lived every since on a homestead south of town until about three years ago, when the family moved into town.

The deceased is survived by her husband, and seven children and her mother. The children are: Mrs. Ruth Graham, Ray, Parke, George, James, Boyd and Edwin Sturgess, all of whom were at the death bed.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the Christian Church, Rev. H. C. Clark conducting the services. Interment was in Odd Fellows cemetery.

The immediate cause of death was an aggravated form of heart trouble, from which deceased had suffered for some time, but which had not become acute until within the past two months.

Mrs. Sturgess' death has saddened the entire community, where she had many friends and commanded the respect of all, who will join this paper in extending the deepest sympathy to the bereaved husband and children.

Church of Christ Notes

Next Lordsday morning, we want to speak on this subject: "God's Little Flock," and in the evening on "The Greatest Love."

Our attendance was very good last Sunday, both morning and evening, for which we are appreciative.

When thou standeth before God's judgment bar, as thou wilt stand, and He shalt ask thee why thou didst not live a Christian life on earth, what wilt thou answer?

H. CAMPBELL CLARK,
Minister.

Marriage Balls

At the close of their services, last Sunday morning, a marriage was solemnized by the minister, H. Campbell Clark, at the Christian Church, whereby Earl J. Bailey and Mabel E. Osborn were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

After the impressive words were spoken and a prayer was offered, friends pressed forward to offer their congratulations.

These young folks are well known and need no introduction to the citizens of Mosier and community.

The bridegroom has some Wasco soil, and these people will become tillers of the land, as were their fore-parents—Adam and Eve. This was the first occupation of man, and there is none more honorable.

A Friend.

A Mail Order Deal

Down in Oklahoma the other day a man went into a shop to buy a saw. He saw the kind and asked the price. It was $1.65 the dealer said.

"Good gracious," said the man: "I can get the same thing from Sears, Roebuck & Co., for $1.35."

"That's less than it cost me," said the dealer, "but I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order house just the same."

"All right," said the customer. "You send it along and charge to my account."

"Not on your life," the dealer replied. "No charge accounts. You can't do business with the mail order house that way. Fork over the cash."

The customer complied. "Now 2 cents for postage and 5 cents for a money order."

"Certainly, you have to send a letter and a money order to a mail order house, you know."

The customer, inwardly raving, kept to his agreement and paid the nickel.

"Now 25 cents expressage," "Well, I'll be—" he said, but paid it, saying, "Now hand me that saw and I'll take it home myself and be rid of this foolery."

"Hand it to you? Where do you think you are? You're in Oklahoma and I'm in Chicago, and you'll have to wait two weeks for that saw."

Whereupon the dealer hung the saw on a peg and put the money in the cash drawer.

"That makes $1.67," he said. "It has cost you 2 cents more and taken you two weeks longer to get it than if you had paid my price in the first place."—EX.

Under the new Republican regime in China the vice-ridden city of Canton has cleansed itself and become a model city. While in the old city gambling signs were to be found on three or four of all principal street crossings, now there is not an open gambling den or a lottery in the whole city. Opium smoking has also been wiped out. Girls held in slavery have been freed, and 400 of them are being educated in one school at the city's expense. An Associated Press dispatch describing the new conditions says: "Once freed from the long crushing thralldom of the Manchus, the Chinese have leaped to the front ranks of moral reform."—The Public.

FOOLED THE OFFICIAL

Clever Trick a Daring Dacoit Played Upon an Englishman.

It was years ago in Burma. The English government was having trouble with a certain princely recalcitrant named Boh Toh, "the most daring and enterprising of the Dacoits." A heavy price had been set upon the rebel's head, but still Boh Toh was cunningly elusive.

At last, hard pressed, Boh Toh tried a new tack. He walked straight into the office of the commissioner.

"I am Boh Toh," he said simply. "I have come to surrender."

Exactly what he had counted on now happened. Fourteen years' experience with eastern subtlety and intrigue had taught the commissioner to be wary.

"Thank you," he said. "We will now proceed to discover who you really are and what you really want. Tell me, what do you expect to get out of this?"

"Ten thousand rupees," said the Boh quietly.

"The commissioner, although a cool man, was a little staggered. "I don't quite follow," he murmured.

"Yet it's quite simple," whispered the Boh. "The government promises 10,000 rupees to the man who brings you the head of Boh Toh. I give it to you."

"Capital," was the wary answer. "But as you lose your head what good does the money do you?"

"My wife and children get the money."

"Praty good, my man, but not quite good enough. Ten thousand rupees will be nothing to Boh Toh."

"If it were not I should not be here. I have been deserted and robbed. I am sure to be captured. My family might as well have the money while I can still command it."

"But why shouldn't I keep the money? I hand your head over, you know."

"Because you are an English gentleman. I—lose my own, you see."

The commissioner missed awhile. Then he broke silence. "Look here, I know you are not the Boh. That is quite clear. I don't care who you are. But tell me frankly who you want."

The Burman hesitated awhile. Then he said: "You are right. But my life is worth as little as the Boh's. I have betrayed him and robbed him. He has sworn revenge. Give me an escort as far as Mandalay. Here, take these notes for 1,000 rupees." He had laid them on the table—"and keep them if in twelve days' time I do not tell you how and when you can capture the Boh. Keep them till the Boh is caught if you prefer."

The commissioner thought hard and in silence for quite two minutes.

"I agree," he said at length.

So the Boh was safely escorted to Mandalay. Later the commissioner received a letter from him.

"You may keep those rupees," it ran, "which I, Boh Toh, left with you twelve days ago. I told you the truth. You would not believe me. The English government likes truth, and it likes money, but they never want both. I think, at the same time."—Youth's Companion

The Most Crowded Street.

The supreme sensation of New York's east side is the sensation of the astounding population. The most populous street in the world—Livington street—is a sight not to be forgotten. Compared to this, an uptown thoroughfare of crowded middle class flats in the open country is an uninhabited desert! The architecture seemed to sweat humanity at every window and door. The roadways were often impassable. The thought of the hidden interiors was terrifying. Indeed, the hidden interiors would not bear thinking about. The fancy shunned them—a problem not to be settled by sudden municipal edicts, but only by the edicts of generations.—Harper's Magazine.

Heroism of an Indian.

A few years ago in northern Mexico a truck carrying a load of dynamite for use at a mine was suddenly discovered to be on fire at a village station. The risk was imminent, so the driver of a locomotive engine picked the truck up and ran it away into the country at all the speed he could put on. He bade the brakeman jump off and save himself, adding, "I go to my death." When he had got a mile away the dynamite exploded. Every window in the village was broken, and he was blown to atoms, but the inhabitants were saved. He was a pure blooded Indian.—"South America," by James Bryce.
