HIGH COST OF LIVING AND THE FARMER

The high cost of living, whether discussed by a New York editor or the publisher of a small paper, is somehow laid at the door of the farmer, who is credited with getting the added price that the consumer is forced to pay.

When these two arguments are closely studied one finds a relationship between them. The increased valuation has a direct bearing on the auto. The increased valuation, not the farm products, is the security for the automobile.

Would you say that Meier & Frank are coining money because their building site has quadrupled in value in the last few years? No, of course not; and you therefore cannot lay the high cost of our apples to the New York consumer to the fact that land values have increased here.

Let us follow this a little further. Do we get a reasonable rate of interest on this increased valuation? If we do not, the business cannot be said to pay and we are operating on a false basis.

Miss Eleanor McCurdy, who has been spending the winter with Miss Shekton, has left for Portland and points on the coast. She will take a trip through California before returning to her home in Lawrence, Kansas.

W. F. Ripley has gone to Portland on business. Miss Ruth Sheldon has returned from Portland, where she spent the winter.

IN EVERY BUSINESS the cost of production is the base upon which prices are fixed. To us the cost of production never enters in. We raise our fruit and then put it on the market for what it will bring.

At the annual meeting of the Mosier Fruitgrowers' Association, held in Lamb's Hall last Saturday, a large number of the resident members, also a number from Portland, were present, among the latter being Miss A. Shogren, F. A. Shogren, Mr. and Mrs. Ed F. Reeves, Dr. C. A. Macrum, C. L. McKenna and C. A. Morden.

The question of increasing the number of directors from five to seven was discussed and voted down.

The election of two new directors resulted in the selection of Dr. C. A. Macrum and Mr. Lee Evans who, with the three hold-overs, Amos Root, J. M. Carroll and C. A. McCarrar, will constitute the board for the ensuing year.

An auditing committee was elected, consisting of John P. Ross, Dr. Robinson and H. E. Ricker.

Additional Locals.

Mrs. J. T. Davenport went to The Dalles this week to receive treatment for a most aggravated case of poison oak.

A mistake was made last week in the date of the entertainment to be given by the Ortley Dramatic Club. The play will be given in Chown's Hall on Saturday night, April 26th, instead of the 19th, as announced last week.

Miss Alice Mosier, who is attending school at The Dalles, spent the week-end here with her father, returning to The Dalles Sunday evening.

At the Thursday evening meetings of Immanuel Church, a session which has become one of the interesting features of the church life, a study of State Institutions is being engaged in. This week "The home for feeble minded children" and "The institute for the blind" are being studied.

PLANNING A ROBBERY. This London Thief Was Quite Deliberate in His Preparations. This story of an elaborately prepared crime was told by Sir Robert Anderson when he was connected with Scotland Yard, London. A criminal marked a millionaire as his quarry and rented a bedroom near the railway station from which the rich man took the train for town. Well dressed and well groomed, the criminal took his seat in the same compartment, attracting notice only by his apparent desire to remain unnoticed while he dealt with the papers he carried in a stylish hand bag.

One morning after a few such journeys he gave vent to his annoyance at having forgotten his keys. A stranger sitting in the opposite corner politely offered him his bunch in the hope that he would find on it a key to the open bag. But none of them would fit the lock. At the suggestion of the stranger, who, of course, was an accomplice, the millionaire then produced his bunch of keys, and a few seconds sufficed to enable the thief to take a wax impression of the key of the rich man's safe.

A few weeks later the millionaire's safe was rifled, and before the crime was discovered the thief was across the channel with his rich booty.—Liverpool Post.

DAINTY COBWEBS. How Spiders' Fine Spun Threads Compare With Human Hair. It is hard to realize how small a spider's web really is. A famous microscopist once made some interesting comparisons of a cobweb with human hair.

"I have often compared the size of the thread spun by full grown spiders with a hair of my beard," he says. "I placed the thickest part of the hair before the microscope, and, from the most accurate judgment I could form, more than 100 of the spider's threads placed side by side could not equal the diameter of one such hair. If, then, we suppose such a hair to be of a round form it follows that 10,000 threads spun by the full grown spider, when taken together, will not be equal in substance to the size of a single hair."

To this, if we add that 400 young spiders at the time when they begin to spin their webs are not larger than one full grown one and that each of these minute spiders possesses the same organs as the larger ones, it follows that the exceedingly small threads spun by these little creatures may be still 400 times slender, and consequently that 4,000,000 of these minute spiders' threads cannot equal in substance the size of a single hair."

COLD IN THE HEAD.

Its Constant Recurrence May Not Only Be Serious, but Fatal.

There are all kinds of colds. Spring, summer, autumn and winter, all furnish the means for a cold. In medical literature there is no such disease described as a "cold," yet almost everybody is more or less susceptible to this condition.

The most common form of this complaint is a cold in the head. In this condition there is an inflammation of the mucous membranes which line the nasal chamber. This is naturally self-limiting. Nature allows the disease to run its course when recovery spontaneously takes place. This condition may be very mild, yet the constant "taking cold" may result in great damage and lead to fatal diseases.

Short Lived Giants.

Giants are notably short lived, and instances where men much above seven feet in height have reached the age of fifty years are almost unknown. Length of days does not go with excessive length of limb. But tallness with steps short of giants usually is a sign of vitality. Tall recruits in continental armies, provided they are of proper weight, give least trouble from sickness and gain most from physical training. It must be remembered in this connection that "tallness" is not the same everywhere. Men accounted tall in southern Italy would be rather short in western Scotland or among the native stock of America. It is as if nature had fixed a standard height for each race and punished by some physical shortening those who varied much from that standard in either direction.—Chicago Journal.

Earthworms For Rheumatism.

Your tetragraph, writes a correspondent giving us a cure for rheumatism—a bag of earthworms on the chest, or under one of a pair of flannel-lined boots. These worms are given also "in all seriousness" in Nottingham near the place, as a remedy for rheumatism. In this case, too, the earthworms formed one of the constituents, but it was necessary to put them into a bottle and pour upon them a quantity of powder of quicklime. The resultant compound, well rubbed into the affected parts, was guaranteed by the prescriber to be a certain cure for rheumatism.—London Chronicle.

What pleasant memories are associated with the word grill!

Memories of the cosy grill-room, the savory viands and the happy tete-a-tetes, or rollicking parties.

Grill is the magic word in cookery, and— The G-E Radiant Electric Grill is the magic device in electric cooking. Here in a single handy little device you have a toaster, broiler, stew pan, water heater, frying pan and griddle for baking pan cakes.

Like all electric cooking devices it is ready for use in an instant, and two or more kinds of cooking such as broiling and frying, or toasting and stewing etc., can be done at the same time. Right on the dining room table too, or in the sitting room, nursery or sick room if necessary.
