MRS. C. H. DUNSMORE,
Mosier.

Miss Alice Mosier, who is attending St. Mary's Academy at The Dalles, spent several days at home with her father this week and last. On Monday she entertained the senior high school graduating class, of which she is a member. The young ladies came down from The Dalles by boat and were met at Bateham's landing by C. T. Bennett and his mules. They all piled into a big hay wagon and were conveyed to the old Wyss homestead, on Little Mosier Creek, where they picked up. They were chaperoned by three Sisters of the school. A little excitement occurred when one of the girls killed a rattlesnake. She was naturally proud of her exploit, and brought the "brush" home with her to prove her valor. The merry party returned to The Dalles on the evening train, having spent a delightful day.

NEIGHBORHOOD SOCIALITY

[Received too late for publication last week.]

The following story which appeared in "Success" a few years ago certainly has a lesson for many of us:

"A gentleman who was kind hearted and generous, was strolling in a park one day, when he noticed a young man sitting on a bench looking very forlorn and despondent. Thinking the young man might be in need of work or money, he approached him with a kindly smile and enquired if there was anything he could do to help him.

The young man said no, he was just "hungry for a good hand shake." Lonely and homesick, that was all—longing for some one to hold out the glad hand and give him a cheerful smile.

A few weeks ago, a man living in the Mosier district, told the writer that this was the most lonesome place he had ever lived in. And there are many more feeling just like this man. Do we want the Mosier district to become known as a lonesome place to live, or do we want it to be known as the most friendly, cheerful and happy district in Oregon?

The people of Mosier district—"old-timers," "new-comers" and all are the A-No. 1 kind. The best in the world—kind and generous at heart. But what about "demonstrating?" "There's the rub." Surely, the people of Mosier district want to do what will help others. But the work of planning, plowing, planting, etc., has occupied so much thought and time that the "other fellow" has been forgotten.

Get under somebody's load and lift a little. Smile some and then smile some more. Give every body the "glad hand"—man, woman and child. Yes! kiss the babies if that will help any.

Why couldn't the Sunday Schools have visiting committees appointed in different neighborhoods, every month to call on new people and then tell others about them?

Of course, a few people are doing all they can along this line. Keep it up.

Let us all try the "glad hand," "smile some" prescriptions and see if we won't help the "other fellow" and be happier ourselves.

We have a chance to give Mosier district the reputation of having the most cordial and happy bunch of people in Oregon. Try your luck on somebody today. "Smile and watch it spread."

TRAIN HITS HORSE

Last Monday night a horse belonging to Loyd Fisher got out of the pasture, below the railroad, and was browsing along the track when the fast mail came along. The horse was struck amidships and thrown quite a distance, being killed instantly.

It is the supposition that, as all the gates along the line were closed, the horse got out of the pasture at a point where some railroad laborers had been working. Loyd Fisher says he will enter a claim for damages.

GOOD START FOR APPLE TREES

The tree, when received from the nursery, should be of fair size and in healthy, vigorous condition, not over three years old. It should not be forked, but have a central body, and side branches of not over one year's growth. It is well to grout the roots in a thin mud mortar as soon as received. Then, the orchard ground having been well prepared, the trees should be planted 3 or 4 inches deeper than they stood in the nursery, leaning them very slightly to the one o'clock sun and placing the largest and lowest limbs on that side. They should not be allowed to suffer, but should be urged and coaxed to start growing as quickly as possible. If the soil and weather are dry at time of planting, they should be mulched and then watered. A tree well started is half grown.

Cultivation should begin in the orchard immediately after the trees are planted. Cultivated crops can profitably be grown in the orchard the first few years. When the trees have grown too large for these crops to be profitable, the cultivation should still be kept up with more or less vigor, depending on location and annual rainfall. They should not be trimmed at all the first year, except to shorten in the side limbs about one-half of the past season's growth, the leader or center being left a little longer so it can continue to retain its leadership. The second year the real pruning can begin by removing the superfluous limbs, leaving only those which are to remain during the life of the tree. In doing this, it should be remembered that three or four side limbs and the leader are sufficient. These side limbs should be well distributed on all sides of the body and not closer than 5 or 6 inches to each other.

Unless one has in mind the size these limbs will attain when fully grown, he is likely to make the dangerous mistake of leaving them too close together. In this case they will become crowded when 4 or 5 or 6 inches in diameter and the result will likely be disastrous. It is very important that each limb have sufficient room at the base to develop naturally. This will largely eliminate the splitting down later. When this is well done, the balance is easier. Simply run through the trees about once a year, cutting out forks and limbs that cross or rub, and thinning out the thick places by removing undesirable limbs. It must be remembered that wounds on young trees heal more rapidly than on old ones.

Mosier Defeats Underwood

The Underwood ball boys met their Waterloo last Sunday, in a hotly contested game with Mosier's team, on the local diamond. The score was about even up to the eighth inning, when the home team took a spurt and put in ten runs, making the final score of 14 to 5.

Next Sunday the Mosier boys will play the second team of The Dalles, on the local grounds.

A BIG BARGAIN

Any one wishing young apple trees, in any quantity, can get them for less than a third of the market price, by applying at the Bulletin office. These are first class trees of the Spitzenberg, Newtown and Ortley varieties, one and two years old. Quick delivery. Call or write to "X", Bulletin Office.

Samuel Bradley, who for the past two years has successfully conducted the saw mill on the Barton place, about seven miles southeast of town, was in the city Tuesday on his way to Lyle, Wash., near which place he has made arrangements to move his mill, having cut all the available timber on his present site. Mr. Bradley stated to a Bulletin reporter that he considered he had done remarkably well in the mill business, having paid off an indebtedness of $1800 and had money in the bank. He says he has secured an excellent location on the Washington side, and we trust that he will be as prosperous there as he has been here.
