APPLES FOR AFRICA

Portland, Ore., Aug. 6.

The Pacific Northwest has landed its first direct order for apples for South Africa. The deal is a big one and was closed here this week by the Northwestern Fruit Exchange through the efforts of its London branch manager, F. S. A. Maude, who for over 10 years was connected in a large way with the California Fruit Exchange.

The order calls for 1200 boxes of Jonathan apples and the price, while not made public, is fully 100% over the best values secured for similar varieties and quality last season. The order was distributed jointly between the Cashmere Fruitgrowers' Union and the Yakima Fruitgrowers' Exchange.

The price secured for this fruit is f. o. b. shipping point because the buyer will have his own representative to inspect the boxes.

Special efforts will be made to have this shipment of apples arrive at its destination, Johannesburg, South Africa, in the best possible shape, for the sellers believe that much business will develop after this shipment is received. The journey to Johannesburg is a distance of about 10,655 miles. The shipment will be made via Montreal. It will take about 15 days to land the apples in the Canadian city and an additional 30 will be required for the journey from there to South Africa.

The sellers are naturally very much pleased with their initial sale direct to the land of diamonds and gold mines, because it was made in competition with Ontario and Nova Scotia interests who have long enjoyed a monopoly of this trade.

Since it became known here that the Northwestern Fruit Exchange had secured this highly-prized order, there have been many attempts to secure additional business there.

TO ADVERTISE THE APPLE

To make the apple the most popular food product on the market, the Northwestern Fruit Exchange of Portland has adopted resolutions calling upon its affiliated organizations, representing over 1,000,000 boxes of fruit, to enter an advertising campaign this season.

Owing to the high prices that have ruled for apples a few years ago this product became practically a luxury and the "average" consumer has scarcely known what the fruit tastes like.

The plan of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange is to have each of its affiliated organizations place a stamp on each box of the fruit it ships. These will cost one cent each and the entire proceeds will be utilized by the International Apple Shippers' Association to pay for a world-wide advertising campaign, having for its only object the eating of more apples. The Northwestern Fruit Exchange not only endorsed the plans of the International Apple Shippers' Association to advertise the apple, but by resolution asked that the North Pacific Distributors, and other shipping organizations of this section, do likewise.

It is planned to raise by sale of these stamps an advertising fund of $250,000 to expend this season alone. Promoters of the advertising plan hope by this publicity to make all of Uncle Sam's children healthier than they have ever been. To eat an apple a day is considered one of the greatest steps toward not only making the public healthy and keeping it so, but to help the producer all over the country dispose of his increasing crop.

Within a few days a meeting of the International Association will be held when the matter will be taken up in detail. The campaign will not be confined to the United States or Canada but will be world-wide. It will be the biggest affair that producers and shippers have ever utilized to get their product into consumers' hands. The campaign will not only call for better apples and a more honest pack, but will tend to eliminate much of the present expense of getting supplies to the consumer. He will be asked to purchase them by the box if able to do so; or, if not, to purchase them anyway.

MOSIER WILL VOTE AGAIN TO INCORPORATE.

The County Court, at its regular session held this week, granted the petition of the citizens of Mosier for another election to incorporate the town, and the Court has set Sept. 20th next as election day.

The first effort to incorporate was defeated because the boundaries were not satisfactory. The amended boundaries include the overflow land north of the railroad tracks, to the river at low water. This land belongs to J. N. Mosier and at present has no value for building purposes, but it will give the town an outlet to the river. There is no doubt of the favorable result of this second election, and the citizens might as well be sorting over the available timber for municipal officers.

The Mosier Valley Bank was favored this week by receiving a fine photograph of the late J. D. Brown, president of the great Hamilton Brown Shoe Co., who died May 20th, last. Of special moment was the wording accompanying the photo. Pardon us for quoting part of Mr. Brown's last words: "Do not falter, do not be discouraged. You have homes and families to protect. Be faithful to them, be kind, be gentle. Love ye one another. Be true to the faithful wife and those beautiful jewels of life, your children. Be better men, more God-like men. Believe in God and His laws. Look high, for in this way only can you see far, and when the fight is over, when God whispers the story of love as He does to all who are faithful, then shall you be triumphant."
