There will be a free lecture tonight at the Christian Church, under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association, beginning at 7:30. The talk will be along Dispensational lines, illustrated by chart. All are cordially invited.

There have been several cases of pneumonia in town the past two weeks, but we are pleased to be able to state that all are now recovering. Among those afflicted were Willie Depee, Frank and George Wilson and Mary Higley.

In the account of the annual church meeting of Immanuel Church, which appeared in last week's issue, we inadvertently omitted the name of George Mathews, who was elected as secretary. Also the name of F. A. Allington was omitted from the board of directors. This correction is made so that the records may be complete.

Mrs. Amos Root last week received a telegram from relatives in Indiana stating that her brother was seriously ill. She left on Saturday for Elkhart, Ind. A telegram from Mrs. Root, received by her husband on Wednesday of this week, states that she arrived at her destination on Wednesday morning and that her brother was dead and would be buried yesterday.

Basket Ball Tomorrow Night

Anticipating her birthday, Mrs. J. T. Davenport complimented Miss Marion Wood, last night at the Davenport home. The time was delightfully passed with music and games, refreshments being served during the evening.

The invited guests were: The Misses Helen and Mabel Austin, Georgia and Bernice Fisher, May and Grace Blackburn, Jennie and Clara Carroll, Emily Husbands, Laura Kibbee, Viola Piercy, Mary Higley, Pearl Overlander and the guest of honor, Miss Marion Wood.

Temperament

"Why did the great pianist refuse to play?" "Temperament. He got mad because his name was printed in smaller type on the program than the name of the piano on which he was to perform."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Exasperating

"The very sound of some people's voices is exasperating." "Quite true, especially when they say 'Move on' or 'Pay up!'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Assume in adversity a countenance of prosperity and in prosperity moderate thy temper.—Livy.

A lively runaway occurred

Wednesday afternoon when a four-horse team became frightened while standing untied at the depot. They ran up Main street, turned the corner at the postoffice and lined out for home. Opposite the Strauss residence one of the wheelers fell, checking their wild flight. Some small school boys happened along and one of them, a country-bred lad, had sufficient courage and presence of mind to grab the leaders' heads and, assisted by some of his companions, held them until the owners of the animals came upon the scene.

Reading Advertisements

It is not alone the people who are interested in trade who read advertisements. Few people nowadays buy either newspapers or magazines who do not read these cleverly worded and well illustrated bids for business. If you should ask the average person just why he or she is in the habit of looking over the advertisements, the chances are that you would get no direct and satisfactory answer, but the real fact is that subconsciously the public has come to regard what appears in the advertising columns as interesting reading matter.—Portland (Ore.) Telegram.

A Natural Cross

One Advantage

"My papa is a mounted policeman," said small Eric to a visitor. "Is that better than being a walking policeman?" asked the visitor. "Course it is," replied Eric. "If there is trouble he can get away quicker."—Chicago News.

ELECTRIFIED CELLULOID.

Pulling a Couple of Strips Between the Fingers Changes Them.

If you will take two thin lengths of celluloid, put them in contact and then suddenly and rapidly pull them between your fingers you will observe they both have become electrified—not only on their outside surfaces, where the friction of your fingers caused a negative electrification, but also on the inner surface of the celluloid.

The strange part about this is that one of the inner surfaces of the piece is positively charged and the other one is negatively charged. If one of them is slightly curved during the friction the convex one will be positively charged and the concave side one will be negatively charged.

It seems, therefore, to depend upon whether the surface is concave or convex. If electrons are considered to produce negative or positive electricity. Even the most minute, imperceptible curvature is sufficient to give the expected result. It also is impossible to pull the strips of celluloid through the fingers without producing such strong electrification that one piece will support the other.

Even the vapor pressure of liquids is stronger at the convex surface than at the concave. If electrons are considered as particles of gas dissolved in solids—as they once were—of a negative electricity, there will be a greater tendency for the electrons to escape from the convex side, which therefore will be left positively charged. This also is in perfect accord with the latest researches upon electrons.

Interesting experiments can be made by following the above directions. Celluloid has peculiar properties for tests.—New York Press.

Railway Trains in England.

I can prove at a moment by any traveler that our trains are infinitely more luxurious than the trains in England. Just still, and notwithstanding, I say the English railway service is better. Why? Because it's more human; it's more considerate. You aren't driven and urged to step lively and called at in loud, harsh voices and made to feel that you are being tolerated aboard something that was never made for you at all, but for the employees of the company. In England the trains are run for the people, not the people for the trains.—From Theodore Dreiser's "A Traveler at Forty."

Worse Yet

"He's a frightful bore, your baron. Here he's been buzzing the whole evening long about Kant and Schopenhauer."

"You have my sympathy. For my part I detest philosophical discussions." "Philosophical discussions, indeed! Kant and Schopenhauer are the names of the baron's two horses."—New York Post.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

FARMERS' WEEK

December 8'to 13, 1913

This will be a notable event in the educational history of Oregon.

Farmers' Co-operation will be the leading topic of a stimulating series of lectures. The week will be crowded with discussions, and demonstrations in everything that makes for the welfare of the farmer and home-maker.
