Will Gravel County Road

C. J. Fredrickson, road supervisor, stated this week that money has been appropriated to gravel the county road, from Chown's store to Mosier Creek bridge. Also the road in front of Amos Root's residence will be cut down about three feet. The road will be covered with from three to four inches of tailings from the rock crusher. These tailings make excellent road material and are as cheap and much more satisfactory than sand and gravel. A number of teams began yesterday hauling the tailings.

The Mosier High School Basketball team played the junior class team of the Hood River High School, last Saturday night, going down to defeat at the hands of the visitors by a score of 25 to 13.

Lecture at Christian Church

EDITOR BULLETIN:
I thought perhaps a few items from the lecture in the Christian Church, Friday evening would be appreciated. The subject was "From paradise to Restitution." The speaker expressed regret that there were so few present, but owing to the limited time he could not postpone the lecture, so delivered it to the few present. He showed how God had provided a ransom for all, while sinners would suffer for their omissions. He said the Scriptures did not teach eternal torment, and neither did they teach universal salvation. He said they did teach a universal chance for eternal life. In speaking of the peoples' kindness, he expressed his thanks to the Christian people in giving the use of the church. Those present expressed themselves as well repaid for their attendance.

STAND UP STRAIGHT.

Keep the Chest Wide Open and Avoid the Great White Plague.
The best way to avoid consumption is to stand up straight, according to the Bulletin of the American Medical Association. The writer says:
"The first essential in the avoidance of tuberculosis of the lungs, or consumption, is to keep the lungs strong, so that if the germs are breathed they can do no harm. One of the most important things in keeping the lungs strong is to keep the chest wide open so that the lungs can be properly used. If the body is drooped or stoops or if the shoulders are allowed to drag forward instead of well back over the shoulders the chest must be flattened, the breathing must be shallow, and the lungs, not being freely used, become weak."
"It is in this type of chest that tuberculosis usually begins. The consumptive is usually narrow chested, with drooped shoulders and with the head craned forward."
"While the development of a strong, well formed chest is one of the most important factors in preventing tuberculosis, the same thing is to be desired if the disease has once started. Not only should we live in the open, but we should stand up straight and learn to 'throw a big chest', so that the lungs can grow strong and the fresh air be taken in."
"The runner, the singer or any one who is obliged to make sustained effort is taught to stand and sit with the chest high, so that the lungs can be used to the best advantage, and if every one would do the same thing there would be less tuberculosis because there would be fewer weak lungs."

LINCOLN AND THE DRAMA.

His Liking For Tragedy and His Curious Choice in "Hamlet."
Lincoln liked the drama. Perhaps if he had not liked it so much he would have lived many years longer, since otherwise he would hardly have put himself in Wilkes Booth's way on that fatal night in April, 1865. But he never pretended to any knowledge or connoisseurship whatever. Most of his life had been passed in a country town--and at a time when few great actors ever appeared in such small places as Springfield, Ill.
In a sale of the autographs, prints and playbills which belonged to the late Douglas Taylor there is a copy of a letter from Lincoln to James H. Heckett, dated Washington, Aug. 17, 1863, afterward printed in this form or private circulation, which contains the following:

I have seen very little of the drama. Some of Shakespeare's plays I have never read, while others I have gone over perhaps as frequently as any unprofessional reader. Among the latter are "Lear," "Richard III.," "Henry VIII.," "Hamlet" and especially "Macbeth." I think the soliloquy in "Hamlet" commencing "Oh, my offense is rank," surpasses "To be or not to be."
No one but the modest Lincoln would have gone out of his way to tell a Shakespearean scholar that he had never read some of Shakespeare's plays. It is interesting to see that Lincoln's preference fixed itself upon the tragedies and the most serious of the histories. His choice of "Oh, my offense is rank" over "To be or not to be" seems rather strange. The soliloquy is the king's desperate bemoaning of his perfidy and cruelty in murdering his brother.--New York Mail.
