WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial."—Mrs. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis.—"At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since."—Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Praise for the Dear Departed.

Uncle Cy was 96 years old when he died. He made a lot of money, and had devoted his entire life to a spectacular and desperate system of never letting go of a nickel. His reputation as a tightwad and a skinflint was so gorgeous and brilliant that its effluence lit up all New England and cast a powerful glow as far south as Tennessee and as far west as Minnesota. When it came to stinginess he was the original gold-medal old guy.

At last he died and the family splattered around a lot of money to pay for his funeral and to lay him out in state. It was such a success in New England it is customary for everybody to say something nice about the dear departed. This time, however, the neighbors merely looked on in silence.

At last an old man in whose veins the milk of human kindness rippled and pumped and roared, took his stand beside the casket and lifted up his voice in a eulogy to Uncle Cy.

"Cy's gone now," he said, "and I'll say this for him: He was always good at keeping his barn door shut."—Popular Magazine.

Saving His Treasures.

A fire broke out one day in Francis Wilson's dressing room at the theater where he was playing.

He had some of his books around him and in an agony of despair asked himself:

"What shall I save?" He glanced at his precious Chaucer, at some Shakespearean volumes, when—

"Come, Mr. Wilson," broke in at the door from a fireman, "you have not a moment to lose."

"Yes, yes, coming," replied Wilson, absently.

He was looking for a special illuminated volume very dear to him.

"Come, Wilson," cried his manager; "come, get out!"

"All right, all right," said Wilson, and, grabbing some clothes in one hand, he snatched with the other the nearest volume and ran to the street. There he looked at the huge volume in his arms. It was the city directory.

The smart young housewife went to market one morning to buy some geese and found five hanging outside the shop.

"I am a boarding-house keeper" she remarked with a smile. "Will you pick out for me the three of those geese that are toughest?"

The man laughed knowingly and obeyed.

"Thank you," said the woman, briskly. "Now I'll take the other two."—Cleveland Leader.

A Sympathetic Dog.

The fare of a certain boarding house was very poor. A boarder who had been there for some time, because he could not get away, was standing in the hall when the landlord rang the dinner-bell. Whereupon an old dog that was lying outside on a rug commenced to howl mournfully.

The boarder watched him for a little while, and then said:

WINE IN NAVY IS ABOLISHED

Order Puts All Officers and Men On Same Footing.

Secretary of War Acts on Advice of Surgeon General—Many Reasons Given for Move.

Washington, D. C.—Absolute prohibition will prevail in the United States navy after July 1 next. Secretary Daniels has made public an order which not only will abolish the traditional "wine mess" of the officers, but will bar all alcoholic liquors from every ship and shore station.

This order, constituting one of the most noteworthy victories ever won by the prohibition forces, was issued upon the recommendation of Surgeon General Braisted. It follows:

"The use or introduction of liquors for drinking purposes on board any naval vessel or within any yard or station is prohibited, and commanding officers will be held directly responsible for the enforcement of this order."

In a statement issued later Secretary Daniels said:

"I am in hearty agreement with the views expressed by the surgeon general in his paper accompanying the recommendation. There should not be on a shipboard, with reference to intoxicants, one rule for officers and another and a different rule for the enlisted personnel."

"The saddest hour in my official life is when an officer or enlisted man must be punished for intoxication. During the last week it has been my painful duty to approve a court-martial for dismissal of an officer for intoxication. He told me that he had never tasted an intoxicating drink until he did so in the wine mess on his cruiser. Others who have been disciplined for drinking to excess have made similar statements to me."

"Officers are now commissioned at the early age of 22 years. Has the government a right to permit this temptation which too often destroys the highest usefulness of young officers? I think not. If there is one profession more than any other that calls for a clear head and a steady hand it is the naval profession. Experience has shown the wisdom of having no intoxicants on our ships for the young men who enlist."

"I believe experience has demonstrated that a uniform rule should prevail in the navy for all who enlist in the service, from the highest rank to the youngest enlisted man or officer who comes into the service, and that the abolition of the wine mess will be justified."

Huerta Government Cancels American Consul's Papers

Mexico City.—The foreign office has recalled the exequatur of George C. Carothers, the American vice consul at Torreon, because of the character of the news he has been sending from Villa's headquarters. Consul Carothers has been characterized as an ardent partisan of the rebels "in going into unwarranted lengths to discredit the Mexican government."

The government's denial of the capture of Torreon is based on a report from General Javier De Moore, at San Pedro, near Torreon, and it is argued that General De Moore must know the state of affairs at Torreon. Officials holding minor positions are wholly sincere in their accounts of the government's denial.

School Health Clinics Objected to By Parents

San Francisco.—"It is unwise to keep constantly before the young, ideas of illness and infirmity."

"It is wrong to spend time that should be devoted to the three R's to having doctors and nurses looking down the throats and into the ears of school children."

"It is humiliating for a child to be taken from the class-room, examined by a strange nurse, and perhaps labeled 'Exceptional' or 'Defective.'"

These are some of the objections to medical inspections in the public schools, made by the Parents' Rights League of America in a letter on file in Mayor Rolph's office.

The protest urges that the mayor confer with the board of health to secure the services of the school examiners at free medical centers, to which parents may take their children when necessary.

Huge Lizard Bones Found.

Los Angeles.—Workmen digging a trench this week in the foothills of San Pedro mountain, at La Alameda, uncovered the skeleton of a monster prehistoric lizard.

It is in almost perfect state of preservation. The finding of the skeleton has prompted Professor Thompson, of the high school, to begin a search for other specimens. Scientists think that the beds, which have yielded the only fossil of a prehistoric man found on the continent, may have a rival near here.

Electricity In Air Used.

Madrid.—An electrician, Senor Iglesias, gave a successful demonstration of an apparatus, of which he is the inventor, for condensing and utilizing atmospheric electricity. He lighted and extinguished at will 15 electric bulbs placed at a distance of 600 yards. Experts say the discovery has great possibilities with regard to cheapening of current for industry. William Marconi early last February lighted an electric bulb at a distance of six miles by a wireless current supplied from a 100-horsepower engine.

Bulgarians Await Queen.

New York.—Former and present subjects of the Bulgarian crown, including Armenians and Hebrews from Bulgaria, are actively interested in the projected visit of Queen Eleonora to this country. They are preparing to take part in the reception accorded her.

Villa Gives Order to Expel All Spaniards From Torreon

Torreon, Mexico.—General Francisco Villa has ordered that the 600 Spaniards of this city be deported. He issued instructions that trains be provided at once and that the exodus to El Paso, Tex., should begin immediately. Their property will be confiscated, temporarily, at least.

It is the tragedy of Chihuahua over again and is said to express the deep-rooted suspicion and even hatred with which the Mexican looks upon the Spaniard.

Villa expelled the Dons from Chihuahua four months ago and since then has repeatedly declared that other Spaniards would better get out of Mexico before he caught them. His abiding conviction that they are working as one man against the revolution found frequent expression while he was in Juarez, at which time he asserted he would execute every Spaniard found in Torreon.

Villa promised he would investigate closely the conduct of each Spaniard and that in due course those found to have lent no aid to the enemy would be allowed to return. To establish their innocence while not represented before the investigators, with their cases in the hands of a hostile court and their lives in a foreign land, will be an almost hopeless task and it is thought certain that few will be allowed to return.

Prospective Millionaire Will Become American Bluejacket

Eugene, Or.—Notre Dame Meyer, a man who probably will be worth millions within a few years, walked into the United States navy recruiting station in Eugene recently and asked for a position on one of Uncle Sam's warships at a trivial wage. He seeks to work two or four years while his fortune is accumulating.

According to the story told, which is believed by K. W. Wheeler, recruiting officer, the man is an inventor. He claims to have produced a machine drill which is superior to any in use, and has arranged for its promotion by an Eastern concern.

Instead of waiting idly for his invention to make him rich, as the local officer believes it will after hearing the man's story, he has decided to spend the time in the engine rooms of an American man-of-war, and to return after a period of years to count his accumulated wealth. He left for Mare Island navy yard.

Bulgarian King to Visit America With His Queen

Washington, D. C.—Queen Eleonora of Bulgaria will be accompanied on her American tour by King Ferdinand himself, if the political conditions in Bulgaria permit. This information has been formally communicated to the United States government, together with a few details of the proposed royal visit. The party will sail May 21 on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria from Hamburg and travel in the United States strictly incognito. The purpose of Queen Eleonora is to study the American hospitals and the methods of training nurses in this country.

In the circumstances, the royal visitors will not be regarded as official guests of the United States, which honor they seem desirous of avoiding.

Sealer With 173 Men Are Given Up For Lost

St. Johns, Newfoundland.—The sealing steamer Southern Cross, missing since the big blizzard over a week ago, has been posted as lost with her 173 men. Hope for the safety of the steamer and her crew was abandoned when the stricken survivors of the sealer Newfoundland told their stories of the disaster which cost the lives of 77 of their comrades.

The colony, plunged into mourning by the greatest tragedy in its history, has waited in vain, hoping that the wireless search might bring some word from the missing vessel whose loss would deprive whole settlements of their breadwinners and make more than 10,000 women and children dependent upon charity. First hopes, based on the stoutness of the ship, faded when survivors of the Newfoundland told of the two days' blizzard and the condition in which it caught the Southern Cross. Captain Martin said he parted company from her a week before, when the Southern Cross turned homeward with 17,000 seals. She was so deeply laden that all her provisions and part of the bunker coals were stored on deck so that every available space below could be filled with the catch.

Libraries Help Babies.

Washington, D. C.—"Better Babies" will be one of the subjects discussed at the conference of the American Library association here May 25 to 30, because of the educational campaign conducted by Samuel H. Rinck, in charge of the public library at Grand Rapids, Mich. For some time the librarian circulated slips to mothers whose names appear on the official birth register, giving the names of all books and magazine articles in the library dealing with the care of babies. He has aroused much interest.

Customs Not Understood.

Vancouver Barracks, Wash.—Many persons who have attempted to drive through the post when the "Star Spangled Banner" is being played by the Twenty-first Infantry band have been stopped. Some have been told that vehicles were not permitted to go through the post. The truth is an order was given to stop everyone in the post when the band plays the national air. All are expected to come to attention as a mark of respect to the flag and to remain so until the music ceases.

Glen Martin Ascends 14,000 Feet.

Pomona, Cal.—Glenn Martin, Southern California aviator, was credited with having broken the American altitude record of 12,120 feet Sunday when, after a flight made in connection with speedway tests, he announced that his barograph had registered 14,200 feet.

TORREON FALLS BEFORE REBELS

Desperate Resistance to Last By Federal Defenders.

Rebels Lose Heavily; Villa Thinks Federal Loss Almost Total—Villa Feels Hungry.

Juarez, Mex.—Torreon fell completely into the hands of the rebels at 10:20 o'clock Thursday night, according to announcement made here by General Venustiano Carranza.

The news was first announced to the world when the bugler in front of Carranza's residence blew the staccato notes of victory. The paean, Carranza said, was sounded even before he was heard in Torreon, Villa defying an order of compliance to his chief.

The meager bulletins, excitedly announcing victory after the bloodiest series of battles known to modern Mexico, said that Villa captured a large number of prisoners and that the fleeing remnant was being pursued.

With Torreon at last completely in his hands, General Francisco Villa was already preparing next day for attacks on Monterey and Saltillo. In the meantime his men were doing their utmost to get in food supplies and make the city habitable. A thorough cleaning up was urged, if a pestilence was to be avoided. The inhabitants were on the verge of starvation.

Considering the number of men engaged in the past 11 days' fighting the losses were enormous. Of the rebels 200 were killed in Sunday night's fighting alone, and it was estimated 500 federales were slain and 1000 wounded the same day. Villa put the number of rebels killed after his men got inside the city at 600 and the wounded at 1500.

Asked how many rebels fell from first to last Villa replied: "You'll not go far wrong if you say the federal loss was about 1000."

Villa promptly put his prisoners to work burying the dead, caring for the wounded and clearing up the wreckage. The damage done by shells, bombs and gas, by the burning, and the removal of the debris will be a heavy task.

The food problem, too, was a serious one. Supplies were ordered rushed from Chihuahua city and Juarez, and details were sent to the outskirts of cattle from neighboring ranches. Soup kitchens were opened under military management, and all applicants, men, women and children, federals and rebels, combatants and non-combatants, shared alike while the food lasted.

To facilitate the assault upon Monterey and Saltillo, Villa had forces of federal prisoners at work repairing the railroad eastward and rebuilding the bridge over the Nazas river, which was destroyed during the fighting.

Villa was inclined to think both Monterey and Saltillo would fall easily. In view of the Torreon garrison's destruction and the city's capture, he believed that the Huertistas and military supplies than the Huertistas possessed anywhere outside Mexico City, he could not believe it would be deemed worth while to reinforce the defenders of either of his next points of attack. And unless they were reinforced, he felt confident of making short work of them.

The fighting at Torreon over the rebels and their federal prisoners fraternized readily. Their desperate resistance—a resistance which was a great surprise to Villa—the federales had won the rebels' respect. On the other hand, the federales were surprised at being fed and well treated. Many of them would have surrendered sooner, they said, but their officers convinced them they would be tortured to death if captured.

It was opened dramatically. Riding along the line of his troops, General Villa pointed to the city and shouted: "Comrades, there's Torreon. We must take it. Will you follow me?"

The response was a thunderous chorus of cheers. "Esta bueno!" cried Villa. "Let us go."

The roar of the rebel artillery and the rattle of rifle fire followed immediately. From that time forward the constitutionalists closed steadily in on the town. The federal artillery and riflemen fought coolly and courageously, but their enemies' advance was at no time even checked.

What surprised the rebels most was the federal's continuing resistance after the former were actually in the streets of Torreon. They had expected a fight to get into the town, but once inside they had believed it would be over.

Instead, the thoroughfares were found strongly barricaded and held by federal troops, who contested every step of their foes' advance, fighting from behind the barricades and pouring a murderous fire into the rebel ranks from the tops of flat roofed adobe houses.

Air Passenger Refuses Fare.

San Francisco.—Silas Christoffersen and his wife applied for a warrant Saturday for Jim Griffin, referee and sporting man. Christoffersen charged that Griffin failed to pay $10 for a ride over Seal Rocks, made Sunday in Christoffersen's plane. The airman did not get the warrant, because the only available charge was defrauding a motor vehicle driver.

Miss de Graver, assistant bond and warrant clerk, cited Griffin to appear at her office and show cause why a warrant should not be issued.

Judge Must Pay His Own Tips.

Chehalis, Wash.—On request of County Auditor Monfort, of Lewis county, County Attorney Cunningham has rendered an opinion in effect that "tipping" is not properly chargeable against a county as an expense item in traveling. The question arose when a visiting judge put in a bill for tips to the railroad porter, paid while en route here.

Attorney Cunningham ruled that under the law the county is not liable on the ground that tips given to railroad porters are not necessary traveling expenses.

Disappointed.

President Wilson has a fund of stories. One that he tells is of a little boy whom he encountered at Staunton, Va., the president's birthplace. Mr. Wilson was speaking to a good-sized crowd from the steps of the Baldwin seminary for girls, when he discovered a little 7-year-old lad pushing and shoving his way through the crowd. The boy finally landed in front of Mr. Wilson and shouted excitedly:

"Where is it? Where is it?"

Mr. Wilson stopped his speech and, with a broad smile, said good naturedly:

"Well, my boy, I guess I'm it."

"Oh! pshaw!" responded the youngster, with a look of disgust, "why, I thought it was a dog fight."—New York Tribune.
