SUNDAY'S BALL GAME

The ball game last Sunday between Mosier and Odell was a howling success—for Odell, the score being 27 to 1. No excuses or explanations are necessary. There is nothing to say. However, there is one feature about the home team that must be admired, and that is their indomitable spirit and their firm determination to "do or die" in their efforts to win a game. While they have gone down to defeat in every game they've played so far this season, they always bob up serenely and hope to do better next time. There is plenty of timber in the team to work up into good players. All they need is team practice, a good coach and more steam.

How We Got the Gas Jet. Possibly very few people know that we owe the ordinary gas jet to the accidental use of a woman's thumb. After the dinner of the British Commercial Gas association Professor Vian Lewes told how Cleopatra of Isodruith used to burn the illuminant straight from the open pipe and turn it off by plugging the pipe with some clay. Upon one occasion his lamp of clay was missing, and, picking up his wife's thumb, he put this on top of the pipe. Much to his surprise, the gas escaped through small holes which had been worn by the constant use of the needle, small burning jets of gas resulting. From this Professor Lewes traced the evolution of the gas jet—London Globe.

Surf Birds. That birds of the family termed surf birds in the Hawaiian Islands should leave that paradise of the Pacific to go and rear their young in the tundras of Alaska would seem to many an extraordinary proceeding, yet the turnstone and the black bellied plover and the Pacific golden plover make the long journey of about 4,000 miles thence annually.
