Those present at the reception were: Dr. and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Goss, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Root, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Nichol, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. SOME MORE POTATOES

Whenever some rancher brings anything into town that merits mention and attracts attention by its unusual size and perfection, another party brings in something "a little better." This proves two things: First, that public mention of these things creates an interest and a friendly rivalry among the farmers to produce something of superior quality than his neighbor raises; and second, that the Bulletin is read closely and the people notice the good things it contains, as well as what they are pleased to consider the objectionable features.

The latest product of the farm brought to our notice is a sample of potatoes raised by Viret Brooks on his ranch two miles southeast of town. They are of the Garfield breed and the three potatoes he has on display at Nichol's store weigh 10 pounds and three ounces. The potatoes were raised without irrigation or any special attention. Who's next?

T. W. Nordby and family, of Portland, at Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCargar.

Mr. Daly, owner of "Morning-side Ranch," west of town, was the Thanksgiving guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Vensel.

Miss Alice Bennett, after attending the Teachers' Institute at The Dalles, is spending the remainder of the week with her sister at Kalama.
