AND WHY NOT?

If the bill to be introduced by Representative D. H. Allen of Marion county, is passed, women teachers in Oregon schools, doing the same work as men teachers, will receive the same salary as the latter. Is there any reason why they should not? A woman doing the same kind and amount of work, no matter what it is, should receive the same compensation. Possibly it is the woman's fault if she doesn't get it—because she doesn't insist on it, and of course few employers, be they school boards or anybody else, will pay more than they are compelled to. So it is to be hoped that this bill will pass, in order that the efficient, often underpaid woman teacher may get her just dues.

Visitors to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition who may be interested in fruit growing and the canning and processing of any sort of fruit or vegetables, will be able to go to school in the most complete model working exhibit and factories ever shown at a world's fair. Installation of this unique educational exhibit, which will include a complete fruit cannery, packing house and scientific laboratory in constant operation, was begun the third week in December in the Palace of Horticulture by the National Canners' Association.

GRANDEUR OF SCENIC HIGHWAY DESCRIBED

The construction of the Columbia highway is simply capitalizing an asset that nature has so generously placed at the disposal of the people of this favored region. The completion of this artery of commerce is the realization of a dream and hope that the people of Oregon and of Portland particularly would see accomplished—the important task of affording means of communication with a great and growing population who were practically isolated.

So striking are several features of the Columbia highway that the achievement stands out as one of the world's greatest strides in modern road building and one of the most successful feats of winding a course thru a realm of natural magnificent beauty. To an engineer the practical side of the highway is a marvel, exciting just as much wonderment in the expert as the beautiful side awakens in the lowliest traveler.

Figures are always first in the attention of a builder. Cost of the Columbia highway not only compares favorably with any gigantic work of the kind, but shines as a great economic example when the movement of a tremendous quantity of earth is considered. From the outset the Columbia highway was built on business principles. It is one thoroughfare the world over that has not been hampered by political interference. Figures mark every step in the progress of the Columbia highway and to date an itemized statement has been kept of every yard of dirt removed in the building of the enterprise—a public improvement of great magnitude that invites comparison.

Another appealing feature of the Columbia highway especially of interest to the engineer or builder is the perfect drainage system of the boulevard which makes it an all-year-round pleasure. Its scientific lines block halting of traffic by the elements. No matter how strong the flow of water accompanying rain or snow, the culverts are ample to drain the highway, which may be traversed under minimum inconvenience in the dead of winter. In this particular, as in others, the Columbia highway is a model after which the world may pattern.

So much has been written of the thoroughfare that its commercial importance has been overlooked. True, the matchless beauty of every view, the majesty of the Columbia river winding between gigantic cliffs, the foliage, the waterfalls, the gorges, the great trees, all combine to make the Columbia highway unequalled in the world of scenic grandeur. Southern California boasts—and justly so—of its magnificent roadways. As an inducement to visitors great stress is laid upon the neighbor state's roads, yet there is not a stretch of highway anywhere there that will equal the Columbia, and as a means to induce visitors to remain in Portland at least a day longer this highway will prove the best paying investment ever made in Oregon.

In the construction of the road fully 90 per cent was for labor, material barely covering 10 per cent of the total cost. Therefore its cost speedily found its way back into the avenues of trade and furnished employment to many who would otherwise have been in the ranks of the idle. From any angle, the Columbia highway is a model. Every piece of work was done with a view to permanency. All bridges are of concrete, the culverts are of rock with concrete bottoms and all retaining walls are built to withstand heavy pressure.

The grades—no grade being more than 5 per cent—were established by engineers who had made road building a study. (By S. Emerson, in the Oregonian.)

COMMERCIAL CLUB SMOKER RESTAURANT PROPRIETORS IN THE TOILS

The Commercial Club held another of its enjoyable smokers at the Hotel Mosier last Monday night, with a record-breaking attendance. Two new members were present—J. N. Mosier and Geo. W. Mathews, and more will be added this month. The club has taken into itself new life and is growing in membership, and it hopes to accomplish much for the welfare of the Mosier District.

Proof of this statement is evidenced by the enthusiasm shown in the discussion of matters of vital importance to the community. The burning question of the day is the matter of a 1 mill tax to raise money to complete the Columbia River highway. President West, who recently attended a meeting in The Dalles where the big road enthusiasts of Portland met the business men of the county seat, stated that strong efforts were being put forth to secure the cooperation of the various members of the legislature from the river counties in passing the 1 mill measure, and a petition to that effect as coming from Mosier was signed by every one present and it will be sent at once to our Wasco county legislative delegation.

Of prime importance to this section also is the question of a Mosier fruit exhibit at the San Francisco Exposition. This is a subject that vitally and directly concerns the fruit growers, and of course the rest of us indirectly, for even if there were not a foot of undeveloped land in the district, and not an acre for sale, it is still necessary for our growers to create a greater demand for their fruit. And it would appear that in no better way could they bring to the attention of the world the excellence of Mosier apples and the perfect climatic conditions of the Mosier district which produce that fruit.

Committees were appointed to consult with the Fruit Growers Association in regard to the condition of the apples which were set aside for exhibit purposes, and also to ascertain the cost of suitable literature descriptive of Mosier District, for distribution at the Fair.

The subject of the boat landing road was discussed and a committee was appointed to consult with the local grange, which body was instrumental in securing the appropriation of $500 from the county court toward the building of the road, to provide ways and means for finishing the work.

A dainty but substantial lunch was spread by Mine Host W. G. Gloyd, who is a connoisseur in the art of tickling the palate. The guests were served by the Misses Marion Gloyd and Lenora Stone.

During the "big feed" C. A. Bell of Hood River, who, with Mrs. Bell, were invited guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gloyd, was ushered into the room and warmly welcomed. Later he was unanimously voted an honorary member of the club.

It was decided to hold another meeting in Chown's Hall next Monday night, when the members and their wives will spend a social evening.

Jack Gardner, headliner on the Orpheum Circuit, who recently closed the season in Portland is the guest this week of Mark A. Mayer. Mr. Gardner is the most prominent vaudeville artist on the stage today. He originated the soldier in "The Chocolate Soldier". His wife as Louise Dresser takes a prominent part in "Hello Broadway." Mr. Gardner will leave soon to open a season in Sacramento.

RESTAURANT PROPRIETORS IN THE TOILS

V. C. Lindburg and "Billy" Aplin Pinched for Bootlegging and Gambling.

On the information of Wm. Lefcoski, a habitue of the Mosier Restaurant, V. C. Lindburg and "Billy" Aplin, the proprietors were arrested on Wednesday evening by Sheriff Chrisman and Prosecuting Attorney W.A. Bell. The two men were taken to The Dalles on the night train. It is rumored that upwards of a dozen persons have been subpoenaed as witnesses.

It is evident that gambling and bootlegging has been going on for some time at this joint and that the officials have been trying to get evidence against the proprietors. They finally succeeded in getting the "dead-wood" on them thru the efforts of Lefcoski, who went to The Dalles Wednesday morning and gave the information that was considered sufficient by the Prosecuting Attorney and Sheriff to come down and make the arrest. On searching the place they found several jugs, most of which were empty, but at least one containing whiskey, and many empty whiskey flasks in a barrel in the woodshed.

It is surprising that these two men would adopt such raw methods to obtain money in the face of the law, and expect to "get away with it" by using the restaurant as a blind. They knew, as did the frequenters of the place who indulged in the game of poker for money and an occasional "smile", that they were taking long chances and they have no one to blame but themselves.

The case will come up at the February term of court.

NEW COUNCIL ENTERS UPON DUTIES

At the regular monthly meeting of the City Fathers on Wednesday night, the newly elected mayor and councilmen took the oath of office and assumed their official positions and duties. The outgoing officers concluded the unfinished business and tendered a clean slate to the new council. The auditing committee found the recorder's and treasurer's books were found correct.

Mayor Race, in his maiden speech to the outgoing and incoming council, spoke in praise of the work of the retiring council, thanking them on behalf of the city for their untiring efforts and hoped that the new council would continue the policy of "conservative progressiveness" which has characterized the past administration.

The new council consists of Mayor E. Race and Councilmen Wood, Robinson, Merrill, Camp, Chown and Hudson. The four last named are untried, as were all of the first set of officers in the beginning, and their records as city officials will be watched with interest. However, with the work of the retiring council to guide, and their good sense, business judgment and a lively interest in the general welfare of the community, they should be able to assist the rest of the council in giving an administration to which they can afterwards point with pride.

WASCO COURT TO AID IDLE

The Dalles, Ore., Jan. 12—The County Court of Wasco County is going to help unemployed citizens of this county who have families to support. With the purchase of the fairgrounds for a county farm, the court decided to place the reconstruction of the building in the hands of Architect C. J. Crandall, with instructions to employ as day laborers citizens of the county with families. "We have some people in Wasco County who need help from the county," said Judge Gunning, "and the court considered that this would be the best way of reaching them."
