Adkisson, 163 E. 76th St., Portland, Oregon. The rooms were beautifully decorated in pink and white, with pink and white roses to match. The impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. William Wallace Youngston, of Rose City M. E. church, in Portland.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lillian Marvel, and her nephew, George H. Adkisson, acted as best man. Miss Hattie Adkisson played the wedding march. Luncheon was served to about 35 guests.

The bride was charming in a gown of white crepe de chine. The bridal veil was studded with a wreath of white rose buds and she carried an arm bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid wore a beautiful dress of pink silk.

The bride is a former student of the Oregon State Normal and has taught in the state for several years and is much loved and honored for her striking personality and sterling character.

The groom is a son of J. T. Adkisson, of The Dalles, and is a prosperous wheat raiser near Boyd, Oregon.

Kuhn Grows Fine Corn

Arthur Kuhn has been having great success with his corn this year. Each year he saves the seed from the perfect ears, and year by year he notes an improvement. He has two varieties planted, White Dent and Minnesota 23, both of which will average 75 bushels to the acre. For the past three years he has planted about four acres of corn between the rows of his young apple trees, which are now five years old. Prizes were won last year at the state fair and at Chicago, and he expects to send exhibits this year to the state fair at Salem and to the Panama-Pacific exposition.

HOOD RIVER DECLINES TO ENTER BIG SALE

(From Hood River Glacier)

The Apple Growers Association declined to participate in the sale of 500 carloads of C grade apples by the North Pacific Fruit Distributors to G. H. Robinson & Co., fruit dealers of Grand Forks, N. D., according to Wilmer Sieg.

"I was asked to furnish 50 carloads of our fruit," says Mr. Sieg, "but I declined, feeling that we could handle our apples to better advantage through our own channels. The sale was made through the North Dakota firm's buyer, W. A. White, who last spring purchased 60 carloads of Hood River strawberries for distribution in the middle west."

The enormous tonnage of C grades, according to Oscar Vanderbilt, a representative of the Association, who was in Spokane, was sold at 80 cents per box, f. o. b. shipping point.

Mr. Sieg states that the pear crop is being cleaned up very satisfactorily. Bartlett's have all been shipped, the crop reaching about 25 carloads. The growers have received from 80 cents to $1 per box for Bartlett's. With this variety of fruit scarce, the Hood River valley has never had a finer d'Anjou pear crop than this season. About 12 carloads have been sold at a price of $2.25 per box, f. o. b. Hood River. This community grows but a small quantity of Boerre d'Esters and Winter Nellie.

"Every indication points to an apple crop of elegant quality," says Mr. Sieg. "Weather conditions have been very favorable for giving us the desired size, and all we need now is the usual light frost conditions to add to the color."

Communication

Mosier, Sept. 10, 1915.

Mr. Editor, Dear Sir: I am not very well acquainted with you, but I thought you would not take it amiss for me to tell you about the lovely visit I have enjoyed here for the past few weeks with old friends, after an absence of ten years. I once lived on the McCargar place over twenty weeks. There has been many changes in the things that are seen, but the love and friendship which I have felt since here has not changed or diminished by absence.

My visit here and the very great kindness that I have received will ever bring to me pleasant memories which cannot be obliterated. If I were a queen I could not have been treated better and I am proud of my old home and my many friends, so noble and true. Some of them I did not see, but I think of them just the same.

Mrs. James Brown.
