CREATES WELFARE RELIEF FUND

The Christmas Good Samaritan committee met Wednesday night and organized itself permanently under the title, "The Mosier Welfare Fund."

Its object will be the relief of any cases of need or suffering which may arise in our midst. To meet such needs it is desired to accumulate sums of money and to obtain a list of articles of food and clothing, etc., which they may call for if such were needed.

Any one in Mosier who would be willing to donate in case of emergency clothing, food, etc., let the secretary of this fund know of such good intention and the offer will be made a matter of record and taken advantage of whenever occasion arises which would justify such action.

An inventory of such things already on hand reveals as follows: Cash, $10.51; two sacks of flour; two sacks potatoes; one sack apples; one table; six chairs; one pair benches; one package groceries; three packages merchandise.

The committee will meet the first Tuesday of each month in the library building at 7:30 p. m. Any interested persons are invited to attend meetings. Should any case of need arise notify this committee and the matter will be immediately investigated.

The committee is as follows: Mrs. Ed. F. Reeves, president; Leon L. Myers, secretary; Mrs. W. P. Piercy, Jas. Piercy; Mrs. O. E. Wilson; and F. A. Allington. (Signed) Secretary.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY FIRST OF SERIES

On Monday night, seventy five people gathered in the building formerly occupied by the Mosier Valley Bank and Dr. David Robinson in response to invitations and the evening was spent in card playing and dancing.

The invitations would be $1.50 per month for all men members and that parties could be held as often as the club desires. At the next meeting, Monday night, a formal organization will be effected. Nearly everyone present signed up for membership last Monday night and enthusiasm over the prospects ran high. Plans for the ensuing year will be outlined at the next meeting.

The building had been artistically decorated with fir and cedar boughs, two stoves were set up, one up-stairs and the other down stairs, tables and rugs in the card rooms on the second floor and at the head of the stairs, a big punch bowl filled with delicious grape juice punch awaited the pleasure of the guests. A room in the rear on the second floor had been fitted up as a rest room for the ladies, while hooks and nails were provided for the men both on the second and first floors.

To the strains of an Edison phonograph the dancers two-stepped and waltzed in the former bank quarters. The floor had been cleaned and waxed and was in good condition for dancing for the first time. Long benches against the wall were provided for the guests. When the party broke up at a late hour, the expression generally was highly laudatory for the committee's efforts in providing for a very enjoyable evening, and a promise to enroll as members in the organized club.

APPLE NOTES

The apple was held in great reverence by the ancient people of various nations. The Druids esteemed the apple tree because the sacred mistletoe grew upon its trunk as well as upon that of the oak. The Thebans offered apples upon the altars of Hercules.

The Norse races believed that when their gods began to grow old, they could regain their youth by eating apples, which had the power of making those who tasted them immortal. In England it was customary for priests to bless apples on the 25th of July and the first day of November was considered as the special day of the guardian angel of fruits and seeds. Apples were eaten on All Hallows Eve, Twelfth Day, Christmas Eve and other festivals. In some parts of England the farmers on Christmas Eve prepared bowls of cider and bits of toast which they carried into the orchards. After throwing the cider on the apple tree's roots and placing the toast upon the branches, they formed a ring about the trunk and sang a song believing that this ceremony would cause the tree to bear an abundance of fruit.—Denver Field & Farm.

The Richmond Virginian says: "One of the most interesting exhibits at the state apple show in West Baden, Ind., was that of the Time-Wagner Brewing Company of Lafayette, Ind. This company has seen the likelihood of very dry times in Indiana and, possibly, the nation. It has not sat idle like others. In the last year it has developed an entirely new cider making process and has produced a beverage that certainly interests persons whose throats are attuned to Terre Haute's and Kentucky's best.

This new drink is just cider—only different. It is nothing but apple juice, but this apple juice is run through clarifying machines, is pasteurized and carbonated and when it comes out of the brewery-like processes it is free of the turbid look of good cider and has all of the characteristics of champagne, except alcohol.

"It is the intention of the Lafayette men to convert their brewery, in time and before disaster overtakes it, as it has overtaken their Michigan brethren, into a great apple drink plant."

Evidently defying all laws of nature, apple trees between four and five years old, on the farm of S. D. Harney, at Echodale, in the Maple Lane district, are bursting into leaves. He brought a branch with small leaves and green buds into Oregon City last week.

His farm is four miles and a half from Oregon City and is protected on all sides. Mr. Harney harvests two cuttings of Timothy each year, and is able to raise crops out of their natural seasons.

Exports of apples for the week ending Saturday, December 23, were 50,162 barrels, against 15,719 barrels the corresponding week last year.

Notice The annual stockholders meeting of the Mosier Valley Telephone Co. will be held at 10 a. m., Tuesday, January 9, in Lamb's hall. Election of officers and other important business.

Cheer Single gallon 5c. Cheaper from 3 gallons up. The larger the quantity the cheaper the cider. C. A. Hage.

ARTHUR PHARMACY

THE CHESAPEAKE BAY DOG

The most remarkable characteristic of the Chesapeake is his retrieving. He has been developed for retrieving ducks, and naturally should be well fitted for that purpose. But it is my firm conviction that he would retrieve a horse if told to do so, bringing it to you in pieces if he couldn't beat it home.

The one definite aim in breeding him has been to make the best possible retriever, and if ever a breeder's aim succeeded it has succeeded in this instance.

A Chesapeake will fetch anything on earth that is within his physical powers to move or handle. If you take anything in for him to go after he will bring you oysters on his own account. He brings bricks and stones and clubs joyfully. Old Beaver, long a prize winner and now just about to leave us for the happy hunting ground, has worn his teeth down to stumps, like an old man's teeth, carrying hard objects. Almost any Chesapeake will show the same condition of mouth.—Ouring.

Men Who Wear Feathers

Among the strange tribes of men about whom little is known are the Chamacoos of the region about the upper Paraguay river.

Although the Chamacoos wear but little clothing, they excel in the art of making personal adornments from the feathers of birds. Their country abounds with birds of the most beautiful plumage, including parrots, toucans and trogons, whose feathers are dazzling in color; rheas with gray plumes, musk ducks of a glossy black color, egrets with feathers of pure white and spoonbills of a delicate pink hue.

All this wealth of color and graceful plumage is combined by the Chamacoos in a most artistic manner. Some of these savages walk their forest gades in colors more brilliant, if less ample, than any woman's dressmaker could produce.—Washington Star.

Reconciled

We observe that our friend has a bad cold in his head, and of course we tell him exactly how to cure it.

From his pocket he takes a large memorandum book and enters our prescription on one of the final pages thereof. Then he snaps a rubber band about the book's spines and smiles happily.

We observe to him that we are glad our instructions for a cure have made him so happy.

"It isn't that," he says. "Since I got this cold I have written down every sure cure recommended, and whenever the cold gets so bad I feel as though I couldn't stand it another day I read over all the cures and think how much better it is to have the cold than to endure all the remedies."—Judge.

Spring Flows on Holidays

In a picnic ground in the Passaic valley there is a spring that flows only on Sundays and holidays. It used to flow always. Robert E. Horton, in the proceedings of the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers, explains this strange performance. When the great silk mills sprang up in the Passaic valley numerous artesian wells were bored into the red sandstone; pumps draw out so much water that it now normally stands below the level of the spring outlet, but on Sundays and holidays the pumps are not working, the water rises above the level of the spring, and this flows again.

Helping Uncle

She came down to the drawing room to meet her special young man with a frown on her pretty face.

"John," she said, "father saw you this morning going into a pawnbroker's with a large bundle."

John flushed. Then he said in a low voice: "Yes, that is true. I was taking the pawnbroker some of my old clothes. You see, he and his wife are frightfully hard up."

"Oh, John, forgive me," exclaimed the young girl. "How truly noble you are!"—Exchange.

WHY not give your last the same training?
"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary use. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to have, in most cases, little to be added to the more voluminous.
