OLD RESIDENTS SURPRISE ELLIOTT

A number of old residents of Mosier surprised J. M. Elliott Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Race in honor of his birthday, which was the day before, by calling to spend the evening. It was an agreeable surprise, for they came in separately. The evening was spent in relating events of early days in Mosier, recalling many little anecdotes and incidents of those by-gone days which had slipped from the memory of some of those present. Light refreshments were served. Toasts were given to Mr. Elliott, who hale and hearty at the age of 75 years, is looking forward to a good many years of good health and spirits.

Thirty-six years ago, in November 1880, Mr. Elliott came to Mosier. He first came to Oregon in 1841, spending four years at Albany and the remaining two years in the Walla Walla country. He homesteaded 160 acres two miles south of this city. Since then he has disposed of all but 65 acres which he still owns part of which is in orchard. Among the families here when he came were McClure, Dunsmore, Lamb, Mosier, Capt. Thompson, Miller, Root, and Blakeley.

Born in Liberty, now Bedford City, Va., March 5, 1841, Mr. Elliott remained there until 1868 when he moved to Missouri in 1871. After remaining there four years he moved back to Virginia for three years before coming to Oregon.

Mr. Elliott served in the Confederate army under General Longstreet. He was a member of the Bedford Light Artillery under Captain T. C. Jordan. The hardest fight that he was in, he states, was at the battle of Antietam. Other battles, seven day fights and engagements besides considerable skirmishing were at Bull Run, the second Manassas, Fredericksburg, and Richmond.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. G. Nichol on Wednesday afternoon, March 22.

National Salmon Day Today

Especially in Oregon is the salmon industry of particular interest. Not only does this industry represent a substantial portion of the state's financial industry, but it also plays a prominent part in advertising our state, due to the unusual merit of the Oregon product. The Oregon salmon industry represents $6,500,000 annually. Friday, March 10, has been set aside as National Salmon Day.

J. W. Allen was appointed justice of the peace for The Dalles district last week by the Wasco county court to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Holmes K. STATE ENGINEER TO STANDARDIZE WORK

For the purpose of standardizing the practice of the state highway department in location work and construction of state roads, says a dispatch from Salem, State Engineer Lewis Monday called a conference of the principal field engineers who are connected with the department.

Those who were in attendance at the meeting Monday were: J. H. Scott, W. M. Peters, J. A. Elliott, W. E. Eddy, W. D. Clarke, T. M. Davis, Joseph Wear, G. Ed Ross, H. N. Hackett, S. H. Probert, E. R. Green, C. W. Wallis.

Mr. Lewis explained that each field engineer uses different methods in procuring and making record of information and uses his own ideas relative to road economics. He also stated that the state practice is entirely different from that used by the county road officials. Conclusions reached at the conference Monday are to be printed in the form of rules for the guidance of field and office forces and for the information of county authorities.

"Approximately $6,000,000 is being expended annually in Oregon on roads, most of which is without adequate cost keeping or engineering records," said Mr. Lewis. "This does not include the $240,000 expended by the state highway commission. No private corporation doing a commensurate business would be without records showing just where and how much money was being spent.

"Until comparative plans and unit figures as to cost are conveniently available to taxpayers, it will be impossible to enforce any economy or efficiency program. We must be able to compare the results accomplished in one county with those in another, or by the state, if we are to progress. A certain amount of so-called 'red tape' is essential to any large business enterprise. A definite preconceived plan of work can not be adopted and adhered to unless statistics are available to demonstrate to the taxpayer its practicality or necessity. Legislation can not be had because we can not show that the present system can be improved upon."

Mr. Lewis returned Monday from southern Oregon where he says there is a demand for state standards in highway construction. In Lane, Douglas and Josephine counties the county courts inquired concerning the account number system of cost keeping lately installed by the state with the contemplation of adopting it for their county work. During the coming month, Auditor G. Ed Ross of the department will visit these counties and explain the advantages of the system which permits analyses of detailed costs with little if any expense additional to that now employed by the counties.

These hogs were raised on the ranch of Fred W. Wilson, who resides in The Dalles, by Thos. Henningsen, who is in charge of the place south of Mosier. The average weight was 171 1/2 pounds and all the hogs were in a fat and healthy condition, having the best of care by Mr. Henningsen.
