City Builds Hitching Racks

For the benefit of the farmers who come to town to do their trading, the city council has ordered two hitching racks built. Each are about 70 feet in length and are placed in the east and west sections of the city. The one in the east portion is north of the blacksmith shop, and the other west of the livery barn. There is room enough to accommodate a good many teams, and the council has instructed the city marshal to ask all farmers to hitch at these places, instead of tying up their teams to telephone poles in various parts of the city.

When trees were removed from the city streets many places commonly used to hitch teams were taken away. This made it necessary for the city to construct the hitching racks.
