It was necessary to remove rock limbs and soft dirt which obstructed their travel and often times it was necessary to lay planks before them in order to get through. They are traveling in a covered emigrant wagon and believe that it will take them two weeks before they reach their destination. Both men are middle aged and traveled last year through Montana and Washington to Lebanon with the same team. Mr. Tiff has a son in Lacrosse with whom he will visit for some time.

Snow in Upper Hood River Valley

While a third of an inch of rain fell last Thursday in the Lower Valley, according to the records of Cooperative Weather Observer Birge, a snowfall of two inches fell in the Upper Valley. The snow caused no damage in the upper community, where fruit trees are several weeks later in budding than in the Lower Valley.

The rains may damage the cherry crop, however, the cool cloudy weather preventing the working of bees, which aid in the pollenization of the fruit. Orchardists, however, state that a half of the cherry blooms can be faulty from lack of pollenization and the coming frost will still be a bumper one.

Frost prevailed over the Hood River valley last Friday night, but with no resulting damage, according to reports from different centers.

Family Drive Over Highway

Accompanied by his wife, a little son and a daughter, the family snuggled among cooking utensils and household goods loaded aboard a small wagon, F. C. Johnson, of Portland, passed through Hood River Saturday over the Columbia river highway en route to Ohio. A big hound dog shared the front of the wagon with Mr. Johnson. Pots, pans, a demijohn and a lantern swung from axles and coupling pole and an extra horse was hitched to the rear of the wagon.

"We left Portland Tuesday," said Mr. Johnson. At points it was necessary for us to use a block and tackle to get over slides on the highway."

High Water Predicted

Local river men are predicting very high water in the Columbia during the early summer. Although the weather for the past several weeks has been so cool that the heavy snows of the mountains have not melted, the river has not dropped very much, and at the present time, at a stage of 18 feet above the low water mark, the stream lacks but two feet of being as high as the crest of last season.

The Regulator Line has the steamer State of Washington in service leaving Portland at 12 o'clock every night except Sunday, and leaving The Dalles every day at 2 p. m., except Monday. Route your freight Regulator Line. J. O. Beldin, Agent.

ELECTRIC THEATRE MUCH IMPROVED

Whteomb & Kolstad, proprietors of the Hood River Electric, have made a slightly improvement and one that adds to the comfort and accommodation of its patrons by tearing out the poorly arranged rear end of the showhouse and building a foyer such as found in all modern playhouses. Thus the house is given better ventilation and more patrons can be accommodated without crowding.

The New Electric is now installing a new ventilator system that will give a complete change of air in the theatre every three minutes.

The foyer is draped in handsome draperies, and when painters have finished their work the Electric will be as good looking as any theatre of its size in the state.

The new foyer gives room for the parking of baby carriages, and furthermore, the house is enabled to comply more strictly with the state fire laws.
