HOME CANNING

(By Dorothy E. Passmore)

There are five methods of canning foodstuffs now in use, classified as follows:

1. The open-kettle method, or hot pack.

This is an old method and requires complete cooking of food products before filling cans. This admits the possibility of new molds and bacteria entering jars after sterilization has been completed. The method succeeds with general fruits, but is a failure when applied to general vegetables, greens, sweet corn, and meats. It is also laborious, and so discourages much canning.

2. The intermittent, or fractional-sterilization method.

This requires three periods of sterilization on three different days, thus taking much time, energy, and fuel. It is satisfactory in that the material is perfectly sterilized, but is too cumbersome a method to use for comparatively cheap foods.

3. The cold water method.

In this method the food is canned in practically a fresh state, but this requires the cooking of it before using, and so must be handled twice. It is satisfactory in canning rhubarb, green gooseberries, and a few other sour berry fruits.

4. The Vacuum seal method. This is done by specially made vacuum seal jars, and is a satisfactory method.

5. The cold pack, single period method.

This method the products are packed cold in their fresh and natural state. To the fruits, hot sirup is applied; to the vegetables, hot water and salt is added. The sterilization is done in jars after they are partially or entirely sealed, making it impossible for bacteria to enter after the product has been carefully sterilized or cooked. All foods can be successfully sterilized in a single period, with but one handling of the product. Vegetables should first be blanched in boiling water or live steam, then quickly plunged in jars and sterilized according to instructions and recipes given.

Never combine two recipes or two sets of instructions in canning. Efficient heat, plenty of clean water, and complete sterilization are absolutely necessary.

The "cold pack" method does not mean that the canning is done without heat, but that the final sterilization is done after the jar has been completely filled and partially sealed.

Avoid using too much salt in canning vegetables. A little sugar added before sterilization will improve the product and sometimes shorten the time required for processing, or cooking.

By following the one period, cold-pack method explicitly you will get good results. The steps are the same with slight variations: 1st, product is blanched, or dipped in boiling water for a certain length of time; 2nd, dipped in cold water; 3rd, hot jars are filled; 4th, processed or cooked in the jars; 5th, removed from hot water and tops tightened.

In canning we divide vegetables into five classes: (1) Vegetable greens, wild and cultivated; (2) root and tuber vegetables, such as beets, turnips, carrots, etc.; (3) special vegetables, tomatoes and corn; (4) other vegetables, beans, peas, etc.; and (5) pumpkin and squash.

Recipe for canning vegetable greens: Prepare and can the day picked. Sort and clean. Blanch in a vessel with a little water under false bottom or in a regular steamer, 15 to 20 minutes. Remove. Plunge quickly into cold water. Cut in convenient lengths. Pack tight in jar and season to taste; add a little chopped beef, olive oil, etc. Add hot water to fill crevices, and a level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Place top on jar and partially seal. Sterilize 90 minutes in hot water bath outfit. Remove, tighten covers, and invert to cool and test joints. Wrap in paper to prevent bleaching.

By the "hot water bath outfit" is meant the equipment made at home, such as a wash boiler with a false bottom.

Canning vegetables of the second group is done in practically the same way, except that the vegetable is scalded long enough to loosen skin, then plunged quickly in cold water, and then scraped or stirred in steamer. The length of sterilization is the same.

Tomatoes are canned whole the same way, only sterilizing 22 minutes.

Canning sweet corn on the cob, etc. Can the same day picked. Blanch on cob in boiling water 10 to 15 minutes. Plunge quickly into cold water. Pack ears, alternating butts and tips, in half gallon glass jars. Pour over boiling water and add 2 level teaspoonful of salt to each gallon. Sterilize the same way for 180 minutes.

When sweet corn is taken from jar for use, remove ears soon as jar is opened. Heat corn, slightly, in steamer. Do not allow ears to stand in water or to be boiled in water the second time. Corn may be cut from the cob directly after plunging in cold water, then packed into jars and boiling, salted water added. This method is used when the product is to be fried, creamed, or baked, instead of being used for pie filling.

Such vegetables as cabbage, Brussels sprouts, and cauliflower come under the class of vegetable greens in canning.

Register Now

All voters who are not registered and desire to vote at the special election June 4, are urged to register at once. The registration books will close Saturday, May 19. Those who registered previous to the November election and have not removed from their precincts, need not register again.

Coal Orders

The car shortage is such that all persons desiring coal should place orders at once. Edgar A. Race.

REGISTRATION AGE FROM 21 TO 30

Every man between the ages of 21 and 30 years, inclusive, must register on the day soon to be proclaimed by President Wilson for the war census.

There will be no exceptions to this rule. Even if a man belongs to one of the exempt classes, he nevertheless must register if he is between 21 and 30 years of age. The government will determine who is to be exempt after his records are complete.

Brigadier General George A. White, adjutant general of Oregon, working under the direction of Governor James Withycombe, has put the machinery to work and his first request of every man affected by the census is that he make a careful study of its provisions to eliminate all possible confusion at the polls.

Registering for the war census should be no more confusing than casting a vote. The general plan for gathering the data for the government is based on the ballot system. If every man is ready, War Census Day will pass like clockwork.

The man who tries to evade the provision will face a term in jail without the option of paying a fine. In almost every case throughout the state the census will be taken in the regular polling places used on election days.

CANNING AND DRYING BEANS AND RHUBARB

Whenever practicable, the housewife should dry her winter supply of fruits and vegetables, and the following suggestions may be of assistance in two very valuable articles of food that are usually canned.

String beans should be prepared as for cooking, and then dried in the sun or in a drying oven. They will keep nicely all winter and are very delicious but they must be soaked over night before using. By parboiling the beans before drying, they require less cooking.

Rhubarb should be cut into short lengths and dried in the sun or a warming oven.

For canning rhubarb cut into pieces 1 1/2 inches long, and one to two minutes and cold dip, then pack tight in sterilized jars. Three pounds will fill a quart jar. Make a syrup of one cup sugar and 1/2 cup water. This will be sufficient for one quart. Fill crevices with syrup, put on cover, partially tighten and sterilize 20 minutes.

When rhubarb, late in the season, becomes tough and fibrous, the juice may be extracted for jelly making—Sarah A. Lewis, O. A. C.

GOOD ROADS POINTERS

A vote for the road bond bill will be a vote for a state-wide system of good roads without increasing direct taxes. Don't forget this when you vote June 4th.

Whether the road bonds are voted or not the auto license and the millage tax will have to be paid just the same. Where would there be any economy in voting them down?—Minnville Register.

Those who argue against obtaining outside money through the six million bond issue are working against the improvement of the by roads or laterals which they claim to champion.—Pendleton East Oregonian.

"This is the greatest measure ever contemplated by the state of Oregon," said Governor Withycombe, discussing the $6,000,000 road bond bill at the state-wide good roads rally in Portland. "It means more to the state than any measure in its history, because the one thing we need is highways in Oregon."

Industrial preparedness, military preparedness, economic insurance and common horse sense rise up to slap the contrary Mr. Spence's statements in the face. The bond issue is practical, is necessary, is without tax obligation, DOESN'T make the auto owner bear all the burden and SHOULD carry.—Astoria Astorian.

Eighty per cent of the automobiles in Oregon are owned by persons living in the cities, and not one cent of the proposed $6,000,000 bond issue is to be used on roads in cities. All the money goes on county roads, and as only 20 per cent of the auto license will be paid by those living in the country, it means that the auto owners living in incorporated cities will pay $4,800,000 of the $6,000,000 bond issue.—Tillamook Headlight.

AT HOOD RIVER ELECTRIC THEATRE

Friday and Saturday

Fannie Ward, the screen's most famous emotional actress in "Years of the Locust," a thrilling story of the South African Diamond mines and of London society. The methods of unscrupulous mining and oil promoters to obtain money from the poor and ignorant, are ruthlessly exposed. Several incidents in the story show how these men rob the unsuspecting, and later it is shown how the federal government brings about their punishment.

Sunday and Monday

Wilfred Lucas, the screen's most famous of character actors will be seen in the famous play and story, "Jim Bludso," a story of the Mississippi river and of the life of some of the pilots on that river. Also a Triangle comedy.

Tuesday

Tuesday only, Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely in one of their latest Paramount offerings, "The Yellow Pawn," a story of modern police departments' methods of degree made used to extort confessions many times, as it happens, from an innocent party. Also one of those interesting Pictographs.

Wednesday and Thursday

The Hood River Chapter of the American Red Cross presents one of the most timely and thrilling films of modern times entitled "Our Fighting Forces," in which are shown every branch of the American army, navy, marine corps, aviation; in fact, every unit of that is in existence today in the fighting forces of the United States is shown in this picture. The Red Cross has gone to considerable expense to procure this special production for their benefit performance and asks every loyal citizen to give their hearty support in order to make this show one

AIDS EMPLOYEES TO SUBSCRIBE FOR LOAN

Employees of the Union Pacific System, which includes the O.-W. R. & N., will be able to buy Liberty Bonds on credit, the employers acting as security to the Government.

Judge Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific system, on Wednesday notified J. D. Farrell, president of the O.-W. R. & N. Company, that the directors not only had voted to extend credit of 25 per cent of their respective annual wages to those of their employees who want to buy Liberty bonds, but that the Union Pacific had decided to buy $5,000,000 of bonds for its own account from its surplus.

President Farrell at once notified the heads of all departments and all agents of the system in the Northwest.

Copies of the telegram will be posted in conspicuous places in all offices, shops, stations and buildings of the company.

Advancing the whole subscription price and charging interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent annum, this being the same as on the bonds and holding the bonds as security for its reimbursement, the amount advanced by the company will be payable by employee so long as in the service, with a minimum of $5 per month, such installments to be deducted from the wage payment. Inasmuch as the interest on unpaid amounts naturally will not accrue as in the service, this is expected to act as an incentive to prompt payments.

GRADUATION EXERCISES THURSDAY EVE

The commencement program for the graduating class of the Mosier school will be held Thursday night, May 24, at 8 p. m. in the Church of Christ.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Dr. Jos. H. Hart, professor of political and social science, at Reed College.

The subject for the Baccalaureate sermon in honor of the graduating class, to be given by Rev. Leon L. Myers in the Church of Christ Sunday evening, is "Ideals that Bring Success."

Following is the commencement program:

Invocation, Rev. Leon L. Myers.

"The Spring Song," piano selection, Miss Marion Wood.

Class Oration, Miss Blanche Ross.

Copy of the program, "Stars of the Summer Night."

Commencement Address, Dr. Jos. H. Hart.

"The Perfect Day," Mrs. B. A. Berry.

Presenting Diplomats, B. A. Berry.

A Good Bargain Anyday

It has been found necessary to change the clubbing offer with the Oregon Farmer recently published in The Bulletin. Henceforth it will only be possible to give a one year subscription to The Oregon Farmer with The Bulletin but it is a good bargain anyway.

Every subscriber of The Bulletin who sends in $1.50 for a year's subscription to The Bulletin may also receive the Oregon Farmer, that is, both papers for the price of one. The subscription price of The Oregon Farmer alone is $1 a year. It comes every week and contains something of interest to every member of the family.

Railroad Issues Garden Leaflet

Wm. McMurray, general passenger agent of the O.-W. R. & N. company announces that in pursuance of the Union Pacific System's policy to encourage intensified gardening and improve every other reasonable means of promoting the food preparedness campaign it has just published a leaflet on "The Small Back Lot Garden," which gives in concise and comprehensive paragraphs complete instructions as to how best to employ the unoccupied space in the back-yard of the average city home.

Copy of the leaflet will be mailed freely to anyone requesting it.

Oak Knoll School District

Mrs. S. Sheldon and Miss G. Hargreaves were visitors Mrs. B. Warren and son, Wilbur, Sunday.

L. H. Leininger was in Mosier Friday on business.

Mrs. C. Hoff visited the Oak Knoll school Tuesday.

County Extending Mayerdale Road

County Commissioner Butler, accompanied by his wife, was here last week. He went over road matters with Supervisor Bennett and as a result work has been started on the extension of the Mayerdale road, which will be continued to the McClure homestead. Grubbing is being done, and a grader will be put on as soon as possible. All of this surveyed route was grubbed at one time and considerable grading done. The new road to be constructed will be a distance of about 1 1/2 miles. Mr. Bennett states that he hopes to have it open for travel by June 1.
