RED CROSS DRIVE MEETS WITH SUCCESS

The following figures show how the total of $1,176.90 has been raised in Mosier, through subscriptions and cash donations, for the Red Cross: Total individual subscriptions except M. A. Mayer, $700. Collected in Children's contest: Ferdinand Strauss, $39.03; Arta Cole, $38.50; Frances Walker, $3.25; L. and A. Joy, $5.90; Roger Chown, $2.15. Total, $94.53. Other cash collections: J. K. McGregor, $21; Lenora Hunter, $14.75. Total, $35.75. M. A. Mayer, (25 per cent of total), $207.57. Receipts at Lawn Carnival, $139.05. Grand Total, $1,176.90.

With a big red cross containing 60 globes as a centerpiece on the flag pole about 25 feet high, red white and blue lights were strung across the Mayevale lawn. Booths, with carnival style, containing ice cream, candies, coffee, wieners, toys, lemonade and so forth kept the crowd moving. Jitney dances were held on the porch and singing heard in the house. F. A. Shogren took flash light pictures of the crowd of over 300 people present and is doing the work at actual cost to him. Pictures may be procured at the Mosier Valley Bank. The flash light pictures are meritorious and look like they were taken by sunlight.

A stirring talk was made to local citizens by Edward C. Pease, campaign manager of the Wasco County Red Cross financial committee, who with Geo. C. Blakeley, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Williams and their daughters and Judd S. Fish, had motored over from The Dalles. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wilson, of Portland, who were first to answer the appeal made by Mr. Pease by subscribing $100.

The generosity of the Pacific Power & Light company in donating the use of wire, lights and services of their men to put the same in position and then take them away is greatly appreciated.

Local citizens also helped the good cause by converting their automobiles into jitneys, and turning the profits into the Red Cross fund.

Altogether everyone assisted and all share in the glory in this great humanitarian cause.

MOOMAW GIVES HOPE FOR EXPORT

From the Hood River Glacier A new hope for the profitable distribution of their smaller sized fruit through the British export was given local orchardists Saturday by S. B. Moomaw, who for the past several years has been the largest export handler of Northwestern box apples with headquarters in London.

"I have recently visited the situation with British officials," says Mr. Moomaw, "and I find none of them opposed to American fruits. It is simply a question of bottoms. Unless the United States government decides to transport troops in large numbers and the supplies that will be necessary to outfit them in France, I anticipate that by the time the apple shipping opens we will have the facilities to handle much of the crop that we desire to export. I have taken up with the British food administrators and other officials the phase of the small fruit and its tendency to glut our domestic markets while it is most desirable abroad. They expressly desire to aid us fruit shippers and to advance the interests of one of the Northwest's biggest industries. Furthermore, they are desirous of getting our apples."

Mr. Moomaw says that recent reports made by Northwestern representatives of English fruit merchants to the effect that through license they alone will be able to handle the coming autumn are without any foundation.

"Yet," he says, "I have found that such unscrupulous agents are making great capital of these untrue statements."

Mr. Moomaw says that at the present time England is going far toward supplying herself with vegetables and garden trucks. Every available grass plot, park and lawn has been sown, in order that such supplies might be raised at home and shipping could be released for staples and necessary munitions.

"We in London, too," says Mr. Moomaw, "have been on the strictest limit in rationings. But this does not signify that anybody is going hungry, but the steps are taken to prevent such a contingency."

Mr. Moomaw left London May 25. Because of the zig-zagging of the ship to avoid U-boats the voyage required 15 days. A big oil tanker that followed the boat on which Mr. Moomaw sailed from an Irish port, where patrol boats had required them to put in for a night, was sunk by a submarine.

C. J. Crandall Passes Charles Jess Crandall, aged 59, prominent in business life at the neighboring city, died Tuesday morning at The Dalles hospital after several weeks' illness. Mr. Crandall was a prominent Mason and had been a factor in the development of The Dalles and vicinity. He was taken to the hospital three weeks ago for an operation but when the surgeons found cancerous growths the operation was not performed. He was the senior member of the firm of Crandall & Co., architects.

FRED W. WILSON IS CIRCUIT JUDGE

Attorney Fred W. Wilson, of The Dalles, received the appointment by Governor Withycombe on Saturday to the office of Circuit Judge for Hood River and Wasco counties to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Bradshaw. Mr. Wilson is deserving and qualified for the office, as he has practical law in Wasco county since he received his certificate many years ago. He served one term as Wasco district attorney and since then has been conducting a private practice.

At the last election he was defeated by Judge Bradshaw for the office to which he has just been appointed. The people believe that he is fully capable. Mr. Wilson's father, Joseph G., was first circuit court judge in eastern Oregon, who was appointed to that judgeship by Governor Gibbs and sat when the district comprised all of the territory east of the Cascade mountains. Judge Joseph Wilson afterwards was elected to congress and died in harness. The new judge's mother also was an Oregon pioneer prominent among the women of eastern Oregon.

BIG FRUIT CASE MAY BE HEARD AGAIN

With the decree in the case of the Hood River Orchards Co. versus the Apple Growers Association unsigned, the sudden death last Wednesday in Portland of Judge W. L. Bradshaw, of The Dalles, may necessitate the entire hearing of the important litigation, which involves the distribution of an $80,000 surplus fund in the hands of the defendant sales organization and the purchase by the concern of the storage warehouse properties of the Hood River Apple Growers' Union, a deal involving a consideration of approximately $140,000.

AT HOOD RIVER ELECTRIC THEATRE

Today Douglas Fairbanks, the most popular actor in the world, in his first production by his own producing company, entitled, "In Again—Out Again," a Fairbanks story fairly bristling with fun, adventure and action of only the kind that one associates with the only Doug. Fairbanks. Also a feature comedy will complete the bill. Adults 25c, children 15c.

Saturday One day only, Kathryn Williams will be seen in her first Paramount picture, "Redeeming Love," a story that gives Miss Williams ample opportunity to display her truly wonderful histrionic ability. A wonder story combining thriller, a hair raising auto accident, replete with action and filled with suspense.

Sunday Bessie Love in "A Daughter of the Poor." A Triangle dramatic offering of real merit. Also a one reel Triangle comedy chaser, "His Rise and Tumble" with Harry McCoy, the famous Keystone comedian, supported by an excellent cast of funnakes.

Monday One day only, we present the second of our World Brady Made features, "The Bondage of Fear." Vesta Wheatley refuses to marry her childhood friend, Dick Mortimer, and later meets John Randolph, who is instantly attracted to her and later loves and wins her for his wife. Dick is consumed by a love of which neither Vesta nor her husband are aware. While Vesta had not been deeply in love with her husband at first, she soon becomes as much in love with him as he with her. They plan a belated honeymoon trip to the mountains. Just before starting for the mountains Randolph comes home and finds Dick there and sees him try to kiss Vesta. Randolph remembers Dick's actions during their courtship days and is worried. But his recollections are banished by the light of Vesta's love. While in the mountains Randolph is called home. He dislikes leaving Vesta, but she assures him she will be perfectly safe. Skinny, a vicious product of the slums, marked his going and enters the house. Vesta discovered him and fought with him. Then Dick, who had followed her to the mountains, enters. He chases Skinny through the house and into Vesta's room. There he shoots and takes down the telephone receiver. Skinny threatens to tell everyone that he killed her lover, in her room. "The Bondage of Fear" will tell you what Vesta did.

Tuesday Vivacious Vivian Martin will be seen in her latest dramatic offering, "The Right Direction."

Wednesday Wednesday, July 4, we will have two shows, one to be run from time of opening in the morning until 5 o'clock, and the other from 6:30 until closing time. Miss Pauline Fredericks will be seen in "The Slave Market" for the matinee show and for the evening show we will present an especially strong dramatic offering, "The Family Honor." 15c admission all day.

Thursday Thursday only, we will present Wm. Desmond in a strong Triangle drama, "Blood Will Tell." Also a one reel comedy, "The Winning Loser."

Friday and Saturday Louise Huff and Jack Pickford will be seen in "Great Expectations," a play that is admirably suited to these two screen favorites.

STATION SPRAY SUGGESTIONS ARE GIVEN

(By Leroy Childs) Owing to the lateness of the season it is extremely difficult to give out spraying recommendations that will prove satisfactory generally. Sweeping recommendations for the entire valley are impossible. In case no rain occurs, as every indication seems to point at the present time, it will not be necessary to make an other application for the control of scab, owing to the fact that the disease is not very prevalent in orchards that have been well sprayed this season. On the other hand, in order to be safe, all growers should be prepared to begin spraying operations at once should the weather change. To get results in the control of scab it must be remembered that the spray has to be on ahead of the rain or a few hours after it starts in order to get results.

There are two reasons why we have not strongly advocated the use of the 10-day spray this season; one is due to the fact that it appears that it might be possible to combine the 10-day and 30-day spray and avoid one application. However, the codling moth development has been very slow, so that it will not be possible to apply the codling moth spray before the 25th to 1st of July satisfactorily. After this date, however, it will not be necessary to apply any more spray for the control of scab, so that from a standpoint of combining the sprays this has not worked out to advantage. To be of benefit, the fungicide should be applied now, while the worm spray cannot be made satisfactorily much before the 1st of July.

The second consideration that has made it difficult to safely recommend an application of lime-sulphur for the 10-day spray this year has been to the possibility of burning which is liable to occur at this time of the year due to the hot weather. If it becomes necessary to use lime-sulphur the work should be done very carefully. Use a fine mist spray and only lightly cover the trees, especially on the southwest sides, for it is the fruit in this portion of the trees that is more subject to injury. Do not use the lime-sulphur stronger than 1-40.

Weather Changes Spraying Plans

(By Leroy Childs) The present very irregular season has made necessary the alteration of the spraying program that was given out by the Experiment Station during the Spring. The approaching hot weather practically eliminates the use of lime-sulphur. Benefits arising from the use of a fungicide for the control of scab are rather doubtful at this season of the year owing to the fact that rains of sufficient extent to cause a scab infection seldom occur. The backward season has influenced the development of the codling moth, retarding its progress so that spraying for the control of the first generation can be effectively applied at a much later date than normally occurs. The moths are now egg-laying in the lower valley. The spray should be applied in the lower elevations at once and in the higher sections (Oak Grove and Willow Flat) the spray should all be on by the 6th of July.

Growers should examine their orchards at this time for the green and woolly aphids. In some orchards that have been examined the green aphids have been observed to be establishing colonies. The dark, green-winged females can be found surrounded by large numbers of small green young on the leaves of the growing terminals. In orchards where these colonies are numerous it would be well to spray in order to avoid the serious results that occurred in many orchards last year on account of green aphid infestations.

The young woolly aphids are now leaving the old colonies on the trunks and larger limbs and are establishing themselves on the young growing wood. They are pink when small and can be found settling at the bases of the leaves. To control aphids remember that it is essential to drench everything, especially the young growing terminals which are so easily missed by the rodmens. With no sulphur present in the recommended formula, the trees can be drenched with no danger of burning.

The following formula is recommended for this application: Arsenate of Lead, Paste 4-100 or Powder 2-100. Use either. Tobacco 1-1200. Soap 3 pounds to 100 gallons. If the tobacco is used, be sure to add the soap as it will easily increase the efficiency of the combination 100 per cent.

Soldiers Hurt in Motor Accident

Due, according to experienced motorists, to a faulty method of driving, a machine, when the driver lost control, ran over a bank Sunday afternoon on the Mosier hill grade and turned turtle. L. E. Taft and family and other motorists on the Mosier grade reached the scene shortly after the accident, and when the car was righted, the tourist, whose residence was San Diego, Calif., but whose name was not recorded, proceeded on his way. The driver escaped without a scratch, but one of the Oregon guardsman, stationed at Mosier, who was being given a lift, sustained a badly bruised leg.
