OLD INDIAN GEORGE KILLED BY TRAIN

(From the Hood River Glacier)

Hood River grieves the loss of Indian George, aboriginal patriarch and last survivor of Indian men born in the mid-Columbia before the coming of the white man, who met death alone at some hour Saturday night under the wheels of an O. W. R. & N. train. His body, severed in twain, was found Sunday morning in the freight yards at a crossing within a few hundred feet of where for the last dozen years George and several other Indian families have lived.

News of the old man's death spread with rapidity and hundreds of his white friends followed the hearse to the Knights of Pythian cemetery, where at six o'clock Sunday evening, according to the old man's wish, the service was conducted by his white friends, Rev. Longbrake, pastor of Asbury Methodist church, officiating.

Among those at the graveside were E. L. Smith, whose friendship for the old Indian has lasted for 41 years, and Mrs. Alma Howe, of the Cottage Farm resort, who for 25 years has been George's close friend and advisor. When the simple service was ended the body of the patriarch was deposited in its last resting place in a little plot of ground that George purchased several years ago on advice of Mrs. Howe. The little burial plot was marked by its neatness, for George summer in and summer out had visited the place and kept it free from weeds. Today it is bordered with flowers of his white friends, who will see that it is kept green and not forgotten.

Accompanying the local mourners were several Indians here from the Warm Springs reservation to engage in the strawberry harvest. They were garbed in the bright colors that strike an appeal to their primitive natures, and their copper hued faces were streaked with mourning paint.

George Shindink Chimadore is the full name of the departed relic of early days when the redskin warrior hunted at will over the ranges of the Cascades or fished for the hordes of salmon that swarmed in the Columbia and its tributaries. But he was commonly known as Indian George. Because of his accurate predictions of the heavy snows of the winter of 1915-16, the old man had won repute throughout the Northwest as a weather prophet. His last words of prophecy were uttered Saturday afternoon, when the Glacier man, greeting him as he returned down the railroad tracks from his customary daily visit to the city and asking what he thought of the high water of the Columbia, George replied, "Maybe so water come some more before July come."

Lingering to talk, for George dearly loved a friendly conversation, the old man pointed to a hurlap bag on his back and said:

"Man give George cow bone. He going home and cook. Peter, squaw and papposes all gone to pick strawberries. Old Indian by himself. He get lonely."

The correct age of Indian George is not known. From his talk it is estimated that he has passed the 90 year mark. He was said to have been born at an Indian village just west of Hood River.

The theory is advanced that Indian George was crawling under freight cars when the train began to move. Other Indians of the colony of which George was a member say that the old man had been warned repeatedly of the danger of such a practice. The position in which the remains were found lead to correctness of the theory. Brief talks were given at the graveside by Mr. Smith and Rev. Frank Spaulding, the first Methodist minister of the community. A poem written by S. E. Bartmes was read.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed. Only the best of medicines can be used, and only the best of doctors. Half's Catarhal Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surface of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Half's Catarhal Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, etc.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS NOTES

(By A. R. Chase, County Agricultural Agent, Phone Red 3451.)

Twenty-five automobiles with farmers of this county and their families numbering nearly a hundred, made the trip to the Moro Experiment Station on Wasco county day last Saturday. The station people went over and explained the work of the station, consisting of thousands of experiments, very thoroughly with the visitors and there was a general expression of regret among the party that they could not spend a week or more rather than a few hours at the station. The experimental work carried on at the station deals with practically all phases of dry-farming and in no other way would it be possible to get in the same length of time the information which those who make the trip receive as to the latest and best discoveries in practical farming in this section of the country. One big series of experiments relates to cultivation and tillage practices. Different treatments and combinations of treatments in plowing, harrowing, cultivation, etc., are given to a larger number of plots of grain over a series of years to find out the most efficient and economical method of dry land grain raising. Director L. E. Stephens stated that he considered this possibly the most important phase of the work just at present. Another large and important division of the work is the variety trials in which many varieties of all grains and other crops including field peas, vetches, clovers, alfalfa, potatoes, and even shade trees for the farmstead are constantly being tried out. A new and relatively unknown variety of grain, possibly imported from a foreign country, is first tried out in the nursery under the supervision of F. J. Schneider, scientific assistant. It is here also that varieties are developed and even created by crossing and selection. At present over 1700 varieties of wheat alone are being grown and tested with one of the largest collections in the world. A variety which proves promising in the nursery must, of course, be further tried out in the regular variety trials on a larger scale before it is presented to the public. These are but a very few examples of the extensive work of this station seen on the trip last Saturday. Those who are interested should secure a copy of the new bulletin entitled "Dry Farming Investigations at the Sherman County Branch Experiment Station," which may be obtained free from the experiment-station or the county agent.

JUDGE BRADSHAW'S DEATH WAS SUDDEN

No news has ever brought a greater shock or resulted in so profound and universal expression of grief as that telling of the sudden death in Portland last Wednesday of Judge W. L. The business houses of The Dalles without exception were closed for the funeral, which was held in the court house room of Wasco county. Tribute was paid from all points of the North west. Judge Bradshaw, who was 59 years of age, was a native of Missouri, but had lived in Oregon since a small child. The family first settled in Yamhill county. Judge Bradshaw is survived by his widow and one son, Robert Bradshaw, a graduate of the University of Oregon who for the past several years has been practicing law at The Dalles. Apple Men Oppose Rise

The Apple Growers Association has written to the Public Service Commission deploring that an increase in freight rates on fruits would be a serious injustice, and urging that all possible steps be taken to "protect the fruit industry of Oregon from total destruction."

The Association urges that if increases must be made that they be made upon such products as have prospered by war conditions, rather than upon those that have suffered. "No commodity has suffered more than apples and pears," states the letter. "We are paying more for boxes, paper, nails and other materials necessary in the growing and handling of fruit, with a precise certainty that we will receive much less for our fruit. The fruit industry has been assessed for more than the traffic would bear and the average prices realized for the past five years has not been even interest on the money invested."
