The fact is, this is not a fair statement of the situation. The Ocala demands are not undemocratic, and they are not unconstitutional. Government ownership of railroads is not one of the Ocala demands. Government control and supervision of railroads was asked for at the Ocala conference.

The Alliance men know the history of our government and they know that it has more than once loaned money to cortoo, that the currency should be a medium of exchange for the people, and not be parceled out to national banks under restrictions which virtually

Why We Protest.

Representative W. H. Hatch, of Missouri, in a recent letter on why labor is protesting against the two dominant political parties, writes as follows: -

The existence of these agricultural and labor organizations is an eloquent and earnest protest against the principles and policies and results of the Republican party.

They are seeking redress from legislative wrongs-class, sectional and partisan. They meet in convention, and in consonance with our institutions detail their wrongs and "demand" redress at the polls and remedial legislation of their servants.

At the time of the convention of agricultural and industrial organizations, held in St. Louis a short time ago to protest against the encroschments of capital, and hence the burdens upon the masses, we were startled by the sterner protest of an army of compulsory idlers and breadwinners in one of the wealthiest capitals of the Old World, demanding work and bread, and carrying their wants to the very gates of the palace.
