All the mines in the Comar d'Aleone country are in operation. Troops are sent home, and the union men are arrested and imprisoned vigorously. It is probable that one or two companies of troops will remain in the district for some time. It is asserted that if all the troops are withdrawn the non-union men will leave the mines, as they fear another outbreak.

The Norwegian ship Frank Carville, 200 days out from Leith, Scotland, has arrived at San Diego. She was so long past due that fears had been entertained for her safety. She was beating about Cape Horn for two months before she could round the cape. In a gale the forward house and cabin were stove in and other damage sustained. A large part of the provisions was damaged, and for three weeks Captain Neilson and his crew of eighteen men have been living on rations of one sea biscuit and a small quantity of thin soup a day. When they arrived in port every trace of food had disappeared. All bore the deprivation without a murmur.

The party that left San Diego for the purpose of bringing in the bodies of S. B. Breedlove and Farmann F. Fish, reached Campo the other day on the return trip, and telephoned that the body of C. W. Breedlove, the son, had been found only a mile and a half from the place where the other bodies lay. He had apparently been dead some length of time, and was in the same desiccated condition as the others. The body lay only a few hundred yards off the trail followed by the searching party two or three times. All three bodies will be brought in by the party, which will reach here tomorrow evening.

A Mexican named Jacob Alcaraz, with his 5-year-old son in his arms, threw himself on the track in front of a locomotive at Sacramento, his intention being to commit suicide and kill his child. Engineer Hanford performed a remarkable feat. He reversed his engine and slipped on the air brakes, stopping the train within a distance of six feet. Jack screws were got out and the locomotive had to be raised before the man and child could be liberated. Strange to say neither was killed, although both were terribly mangled about the head and face. Alcaraz wife died in childbirth a week ago and he has been despondent ever since.

Retained Employees to Consolidate. A Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) dispatch says: Representatives of the different orders of railroad men are in convention in this city. The following orders are represented: Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Firemen, Order of Railway Telegraphers, the Switchmen's Mutual association and the Ladies' all the railroads. Fully eight thousand strangers are in town, but they are not all delegates. The largest delegations are from New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. The West was poorly represented. The object of the convention was stated, namely, to discuss the advisability of consolidating all the orders under one head. It is said the scheme was favorably received by all and will be put into effect before long. The engineers in the Western states are almost a unit for consolidation. There is some opposition among the engineers in the East, who do not like the idea of being called on strike where the brakemen or the telegraphers have difficulty with their employers, but the opposition of the Eastern men, it is said, will be overcome without difficulty.

The robbery is believed to be the work of the Dalton gang. Hundreds of armed citizens soon started in pursuit and headed for the Dalton rendezvous in the Granite mountains.

Five hundred Italian laborers employed in laying pipes between the gas fields and Chicago quit their camp and took possession of Star City, Ill. Stones and sticks were thrown through the windows of houses and stores, and the little community was completely paralyzed. For half a day they paraded the streets, defying the authorities, breaking windows and tearing down fences. The two saloons in the place were broken into and cleaned out, the desperadoes drinking all the liquor they could find, and rolling the barrels out on the streets and demolishing bottles and glasses. Going to the railroad depot the rioters robbed the office of what money it contained and assaulted H. B. Stanton, the agent, in a horrible manner. After beating him nearly to death, they dragged him out upon the street, stripped him of his clothing and suspended him by his arms from a tree. He was rescued almost an hour later in an exhausted condition and may die. His body is terribly bruised and his arms were so swollen that they had nearly burst when he was rescued. When night fell the people of the village abandoned their homes and fled from the place to the surrounding towns where they could get protection.

George Green and Albert Larsen, the last of the gang of robbers arrested on the Fresno river have been sentenced to the penitentiary. Green, who is 23 years old, was sentenced for life. Larsen is 37 and has a family. The jury recommended him to the mercy of the court, and his sentence was fixed at forty years. Green is engaged to marry Larsen's daughter. She was present in court during the trial, and came back sixty miles to hear his sentence. They were convicted of the robbing of a Chinese store and the shooting of the Chinese bookkeeper.

The Los Angeles board of county supervisors has passed an ordinance which has for its purpose the protection of a number of birds and animals which are now undergoing in that county a very rapid extermination. The other day, with a new powder of greater energy than that heretofore used, three shots were fired, the first giving a pressure of 44,000 to the square inch, the second 52,300 pounds and the third more than 66,000 pounds. This extraordinary result, fully 50 per cent greater than has ever been obtained in any built up gun, left no mark whatever on the cylinder, and there was not the slightest enlargement of the bore. The total pressure on each of the plugs at the ends of the cylinder was more than 1,300,000 pounds.

FELL TO HIS DEATH.

An Aeronaut's Parachute Failed to Expand—Buried in the Mud.

A St. Paul dispatch says: Five thousand people at Inver Grove, just south of this city, were horrified spectators of a terrible fall to death of Professor Hebe, an aeronaut. For several days he had been making descents by a parachute from a balloon at a great altitude. Before the last ascent he expressed the belief that he would never descend alive, he had a presentiment of evil. Nevertheless he made the perilous trip.

When the balloon reached the usual altitude Hebe could be seen tugging at the valve cord, but it would not work. Before he could manipulate the balloon was at least 3,000 feet above the earth. In the regular way he cut loose the parachute and shot rapidly earthward, but to the horror of the crowd the parachute did not expand and the unfortunate aeronaut fell like a shot toward the ground. A strong wind was blowing toward the Mississippi river and it was hoped he would strike the water, but so rapid was the descent that the falling man alighted upon the edge of a slough at the water's brink.

So great was the force of the fall that he was driven into the soft ground to a depth of ten feet and instantly killed. It required hard work for an hour to reach the body.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Asiatic cholera has appeared in Paris. There was some doubt at first as to the disease, but it is no longer any question that the several deaths have resulted from the genuine epidemic.

The Amsterdam Handelsblad publishes letters from Celebes giving the details of the recent eruption on Great Sangai island. The eruption commenced at 6 p. m. and was not heralded by the slightest seismic warning. Immense volumes of flame and smoke and masses of stones suddenly burst from the volcano. The stones fell all over the island killing hundreds of natives who were busy in the fields. Those who succeeded in reaching the supposed shelter of their houses found no refuge. Many houses were crushed beneath the weight of falling stones, and roofs collapsed under the weight of ashes, burying the inmates, in many instances whole families being lost. Streams of lava flowed with frightful rapidity down the slopes of the mountains. It is estimated that over one thousand persons perished on the slopes of the mountains, and many more in the lowlands, but the exact loss of life is not yet known. The island is now threatened with famine, all the crops having been destroyed. In many parts of the island wells have become dry. The Dutch authorities are doing the best they can to alleviate the distress.

At the opening of the horse the other day, Congressman Wheeler of Alabama took Watson of Georgia to task for stating in a campaign circular that drunken members reel through the aisles and drunken members speak on grave issues. Watson declared that every word in the pamphlet was literally true. He defied the house to punish him. The incident created much excitement, and the members named themselves with Watson. Finally Bottner introduced resolution for the appointment of a committee to investigate and report on Watson's charges. The committee was appointed.

A Pittsburg dispatch says: The union men arrested at Homestead on charges of murder have had preliminary hearings. Some of them, including Hugh O'Donnell, have been admitted to bail. Bail was refused to others who are charged with murder in the first degree. Work is going on at the Homestead mills and everything is quiet. One brigade of militia is still guarding the mills. At Pittsburg the police are watching the anarchists closely. It is believed that an attempt will be made to blow up the Carnegie mills. H. C. Frick is rapidly recovering from his wounds. Bergman, the would-be assassin, was given a preliminary hearing and his bail fixed at $24,000. There is a general belief that hostilities will be resumed at Homestead if all the troops are withdrawn.

Private Iam, of the National Guard stationed at Homestead, proposed three cheers for the man who attempted to assassinate H. C. Frick of the Carnegie Company. Iam was strung up by the thumbs for thirty minutes by order of Colonel Streeter. He was insensible when cut down. This punishment was considered not enough, Iam was court-martialed and sentenced to have one side of his mustache cut off and half of his head shaved and to be turned out of camp. The sentence was approved by General Snowden and carried out. This unparalleled punishment of a militiaman has aroused a storm of indignation throughout the country. A number of the most prominent lawyers in the East have volunteered to prosecute Colonel Streeter and General Snowden. Iam, according to the law in Pennsylvania, is disfranchised. His family is one of the most prominent in the state and a bitter controversy will undoubtedly follow.

Catholics and Columbus Day.

A Rome dispatch says: The pope has addressed a long letter to the archbishops and bishops of Spain, Italy and the two Americas on the subject of Christopher Columbus, his discoveries, etc. He appoints Oct 12, this year, or the following Sunday, if it be opportune, for special Catholic services, and directs that after the office of the day the solemn mass of the holy trinity be celebrated in cathedrals and collegiate churches in order to celebrate worthily and in a manner suitable to the facts this solemn anniversary.
