Now is your chance to secure a beautiful sweet voiced "Epworth" organ from the Modoc branch, and all freight paid for only $75. These instruments are shipped direct from the factory to me; hence, no "middle men" profits. They are not of inferior quality as might be inferred from the remarkably low price, but are strictly first-class in every respect and fully warranted. Hear what Prof. C. J. Merrill, Medford's experienced musician, says about them:
MEDFORD, Ore., June 22, 1892.
To whom it may concern: This is to certify that I have thoroughly tested the "Epworth" organ and can heartily recommend them as being thoroughly reliable. The action is equal and responsive to the touch and the capacity of the bellows is superior to any I have yet seen.
Respectfully,
C. J. MERRILL.

—Last night Duncan Clark's Monstrosity Combination and Female Minstrelsy commenced a week's entertainment at Shakspeare Hall, appearing before a crowded house. This is undoubtedly the largest female company before the public. Everything is new and brilliant and the fun was fast and furious from first to last. The marches, fancy dances and singing were attractive and the performance was an original one in every way.—Daily Courier, Syracuse, N. Y., February 25, 1890. Opera House, August 13. Reserved seats 60 cents.

DIED.
In Eagle Point, August 7, 1892, Mrs. Lois W. Hubbard, wife of B. B. Hubbard, aged 64 years, 6 months and 15 days.

The subject of the above notice was born in Windsor, Ashland county, Ohio, January 22, 1828, where she lived until she arrived at maturity, when in a short time was called upon to follow the remains of her husband to his last resting place, the grave. In the course of time she married a man by the name of Ranney, after which they moved to Kansas, having two children by him, a boy and a girl, but she was destined to drink the bitter cup of sorrow. When her children were about fifteen and thirteen respectively, her son was killed by the falling of a tree on him, and just one year from that time, her husband was killed in the same manner. On December 31, 1878, she was married to B. B. Hubbard, and in 1887, moved with her husband and daughter to Jacksonville county, Oregon, settling in Eagle Point, where she lived till the day of her death. She became religious at about thirty years of age, and spent the remainder of her days in God's service, being an active worker in the Sabbath school, exemplifying a true Christian character. She leaves a long list of friends, who sympathize with her husband and daughter in their bereavement, but they feel that their loss is her eternal gain.

One less on earth!
His pains, its sorrows and its toils to share;
One less the pilgrim's daily cross to bear;
One more the crown of ransomed souls to wear.
At home in heaven!
One more in heaven!
Another thought to brighten cloudy days.
Another theme of thankfulness and praise;
Another link on high our souls to raise,
To home and heaven. —A. C. H.

The World Enriched.
The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.
