ALLIANCE AND PARTY

Where are they? They are not at Loon Lake or Buzzard's Bay lolling around in luxurious idleness with their mouths hermetically sealed by a national committee that is run by Wall street money and represents Wall street's interest.

No, indeed; no such useless tasks devolve upon them. They are fighting manfully for the rights of the great common people who now feel the hand of oppression in this country, and for the freedom of a posterity that will have a right to hold the present generation responsible for the liberties bequeathed to them by the revolutionary fathers. If every voter in the nation could hear Weaver deliver one speech, Cleveland and Harrison might pool their issues and stay at Loon Lake and Buzzard's Bay all their lives if they chose, because they would have no public business to interfere with their lazy and selfish occupation.

General Field, the gallant old soldier, has one leg buried on the battlefield of Slaughter Mountain, on the 9th of August, 1862. He is hale and hearty and apparently in possession of all the fire and vigor of the prime of life. He makes his appointments at a long distance every day, and stands on one leg for a 2 1/2 hours' speech without fatigue.

He is a wonderful campaigner, and carries conviction to the hearts of his audience by his evident candor and sincerity, while he convinces their minds by his sound arguments and his great store of facts and information.—National Economist.

Tired of Such Prosperity.

In a recent address delivered in Omaha

W. L. Green, of Kearney, Neb.,

"brought down the house" with the following remarks:

"In Iowa the mortgage indebtedness has increased $2,000,000 per year. This is prosperity, is it? McKinley says that a mortgage is an evidence of prosperity.

I had one or two of these evidences of prosperity, and I went home and told my wife about it; but, do you know, in spite of all I say to my wife—in spite of McKinley's statements—in spite of all the Republican campaign literature I have taken home, my wife insists that she wants to get rid of that evidence of prosperity? When McKinley was in Nebraska he had said that he had a mortgage on his house, but he was to blame, as he put it there himself. A highwayman meets you in a dark alley, and holding a revolver to your head says, "Money or your life." You give up your money. But you alone are to blame. You did it yourself. Of course you put the mortgage there yourself.

You had to do it to preserve the lives and happiness of loved ones.

Filling the Chasm.

In introducing General Weaver, the chairman of an immense People's party meeting at Dallas, said:

"We are nearing a crisis that will put to a crucial test the conservatism of every man in this nation. The capacity of man for self government is on trial.

You today are confronted with 1,000,000 tramps begging for subsistence, 2,000,000 laborers on a strike, and five states in this union in open revolt with militia in the field to compel obedience to law.

There are causes for this. The war is over; we are living in a period of profound peace. There ought not to be any sectional hate, but as men and wom-

A Lifelong Democrat Denounces the Soundbreds Who Have Disgraced His

Old Party—Eight Hundred Men Pledged to See a Fair Count—The War Over.

A special correspondent of the New York Press gave a graphic account of the opening hours of the Alabama state convention of the Jeffersonian Democrats and People's party, who met in joint session at Birmingham. Following is a portion of the report:

"The joint convention of the People's party and the Jeffersonian Democrats, who supported Kolb in the recent election for governor, met this morning with between 700 and 800 delegates, representing every county in the state.

There were not half a dozen colored men among them. The wool hats, careless dress, slouching gait and sunburned faces indicated the Alabama farmer, who tills his fields with his own labor.

Nine-tenths of them were representatives of the class from which came the rank and file of the southern army during the rebellion. Many of them had worn the gray uniform; some had empty alleges; others walked with a lurching step.

Like all new bodies they were slow in getting down to business, and like all southern crowds they wanted to hear somebody make a speech. Weaver and Field, the People's party candidates for president and vice president, entertained them in an open air meeting in the mid-
