

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

THE WEATHER.

Showers tonight and tomorrow.

L. K. Hawk of Eagle Point, who is developing a fine fruit farm in that section, was in Medford Thursday on business. Mr. Hawk was for many years engaged in the lumber business in the east, and later on the coast, but has now retired and is devoting his attention to growing fine fruit and enjoying the salubrious climate of Southern Oregon.

Mrs. C. H. Hart would like to see all her old boarders, as she has returned from California and has just opened up the dining room. 101

Mesdames Frances M. Snyder, P. A. Trana and T. J. Williams of Medford were at Jacksonville Thursday.

Frank Brown of Eagle Point spent Thursday night in Medford, negotiating the perambulations of the Elk's goat.

Attorney W. E. Phipps and bride are now occupying their new residence on Riverside avenue, having moved in Thursday afternoon. The residence was built and furnished by the groom before his wedding, and it is said that some material necessities were omitted owing to his lack of experience in furnishing residences—but that is another story.

H. L. Kelly, the government fish man, was in the city from Trail on Thursday evening.

J. N. Coghlan of Eagle Point was a business visitor to Medford on Thursday.

Charles L. Spencer, one of the enterprising citizens of Wimer, was in Medford and Jacksonville Friday.

Today (Friday) is the last day under the law when the hides of deer killed during the open season may be tagged, so that they may be sold. All unsold tags remain in the hands of officers allowed to give them out will be turned into the county clerk and by him transmitted to the state game warden. The law in regard to the tagging of deer hides is being more generally observed this year than heretofore.

The Witcher's Tree.

Country people speak of the elder tree as "the witcher's tree" and planted it near farm buildings and dairies to keep off witches. They also say that the roots should never come near a well, still less grow into it, or the water will be spoiled. Evelyn's opinion was also unfavorable. He says: "I do by no means commend the scent of it, which is very noxious to the air."

"We learn from Blesius that a certain house in Spain, seated among many elder trees, disensed and killed nearly all its inhabitants, which, when at last they were grubbed up, became a very healthy and wholesome place." Cattle scarcely touch the elder, and the mole is driven away by the scent. Carters often place branches on their horses' heads to keep off flies. Nothing will grow well in the company of the elder, and when it has been removed and all its roots carefully grubbed up it is some few years before the ground becomes perfectly sweet and good for anything.—Selborne's Magazine.

A Bit Tactless.

"Dere cert'n'y is a coolness between Mandy Jones an' Clay Jeff'son dese days," remarked Aunt Clorinda to a caller. "Is you got any idee what's de trouble?"

"Yes, I is," was the gratifying answer. "Clay Jeff'son he done hurt her feelings bad at de strawberry social, an' Mandy is gwine t' hab dat boy l'arn to be mo' carefuller in his talk befo' she 'lows any mo' co'ting."

"What did he do?" demanded Aunt Clorinda.

"'Twan' what he do, 'twar what he say," replied the well informed visitor. "Miss Colby, dat was sarving de sho't-cake, she ax Mandy will she hab a second piece ob it, an' Mandy say, 'Jes, a mouthful, Miss Colby, jes' a mouthful.'"

"An' dat triflin' Clay Jeff'son he up an' say, 'All you kin get on de plate, Miss Colby,' he say."

"Co'se he tried to explainify away all de trouble, but I reckon he's got to sarve his 'prenticeship befo' Mandy 'cepts any 'pologes.'—Youth's Companion.

Chief of the Orchid Tribe.

The giant orchid is the chieftain of the orchid tribe. It attains proportions which make all other orchids appear as miniatures in comparison.

A gigantic specimen may be seen in Ceylon which is credited with being the largest in the world. It underwent a growth of forty years before it first flowered. It bears about seventy stems or pseudo bulbs, which vary from six to ten feet in length, each carrying over a hundred ribbon-like leaves, which are from twenty to thirty inches long. The enormous flower stalks are from five and a half to eight feet long, each bearing about a hundred flowers. The plant remains in flower for about two months, and as many as 3,000 flowers may be counted on it at once. The flowers, which are scented, measure individually five and a half to six inches across, their color being yellow ground with large purple or chocolate blotches.—London Strand Magazine.

No Time For Art.

"Real high art," said a comedian, "seldom strikes home. I played in a melodrama in my youth where the leading characters were grand artists, but their best scenes were only scoffed at. Our villain had a death scene in the sixth act. He reveled in that scene. He writhed all over the stage. It was real high art! In a small town one night the scene shifter started to lower the slow curtain on this death much too soon. The dying villain, as he kicked about, whispered hoarsely: "Time there, young fellow. I ain't dead yet!"

"Dead or not dead," said the shifter, "me hot supper's waitin' fur me."

Almost Too Cruel.

A New York lawyer said at a dinner, apropos of a certain legal decision: "It was a cruel blow, as cruel as that which a Bayside cook served on a tramp. This filthy tramp, knocking at the kitchen door, whined: "I'm terrible hungry, lady. Could ye gimme a small wedge o' fresh pie?" "We're just out of pie," said the cook, "but here's a cake for you." "And she handed the tramp a cake of soap."

One Difference.

One of the differences between love and a puppy is that a puppy ceases to be blind when it is about nine days old. Sometimes it takes love a little longer to get its eyes open.—Chicago Record-Herald.

News In the Zoo.

"Were you a bull or a bear in Wall street?"

"Neither," answered the cautious man. "Not having funds to invest, I was a giraffe. I just rubbernecked."—Exchange.

One Is Enough.

"Before she married him, you know, she used to say there wasn't another man like him in the world."

"Yes; and now she says she'd hate to think that there was."

Shoemaker's Candles.

I well remember some seventy years ago seeing flat candles in use. To produce what was known as the flat candle, which was also sometimes called "shoemaker's candle," two newly made "dips" were pressed close to each other while soft and then again lowered into the hot fat, thus holding them together as one candle with two wicks. The size could then be increased if desired. This flat candle was most generally used by shoemakers and tailors, but was made use of in some households whenever an extra bright light for working or reading was required.—Cor. Dickensian.

Must Suit All Tastes.

"My wife wonders why the papers waste so much space on mere news." "What does she read?" "Oh, she reads the weather probabilities, the bargain probabilities, the marriage notices and the love story. But an item about a big battle or the fall of a dynasty looks piffing to her."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Animals He Had Met.

Little Harry was visiting in the country and while there became very much attached to his cousin's pet dog. "Haven't you any animals at home?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes," replied the little fellow. "We have roaches and flies."—Chicago News.
