Constitution of Great Britain Will Go Into the Melting Pot Monday—Crises at Hand.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The constitution of the United Kingdom will fall into the melting pot Monday when the budget is moved for passage in the house of lords. The rejection of the budget, which seems certain, will give the voters two alternatives next January when it is placed before them for their approval or rejection. The first will be the signing of the Liberals and the budget and giving added impetus to the marked Socialistic tendencies of recent politics. The other is that of upholding the lords and the consequent continuation of the constitutional process of the house of commons' control of the financial end of the government and damming the Socialists.

TOWN IN PATH FLOWING LAVA

Spanish Town Seems Certain to Be Wiped Out if Volcano Does Not Cease Activity in Near Future.

MADRID, Nov. 20.—Bursting out with renewed fury, the volcano Paríca is in eruption again today on the island of Tenerife, one of the Canary group, according to advices received here. After a short eruption which terminated the inhabitants the activity of the volcano subsided, according to the reports today, the eruption is worse than that of yesterday. A stream of lava thirty-six feet wide and fifteen feet deep has started rolling down the mountain-side. The volcanic current is headed directly for the town of San Roque, less than a mile. The inhabitants have fled from the town and are hurrying to the sea coast. Terrible rains. It is believed that there will be eruptions from other mountains several of which are showing evidences of volcanic activity. The people of Guay, lead and Tancubiles, who deserted the town yesterday when the first eruption night fell place during the night.

YACHT STILL UNHEARD FROM

Colonel Astor Cannot Be Located by Wireless Stations—May Have Gone Down in the Recent Storm.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Colonel John Jacob Astor's spindly yacht, the Normand, containing the multimillionaire and his son, Vincent, is still unheard from. The continued absence of news from the Astor yacht is causing considerable apprehension among his friends who fear that the vessel may have gone down in the storm of November 19, which wrought so much damage in Jamaica and the West Indies. The multimillionaire's vessel was in the midst of the storm and its several wireless messages were unheeded. The Normand was unable to weather the gale. It is feared that the Astor yacht has met with disaster. The search for the Normand became international today when the French cruiser Sfax joined in the hunt for the vessel. Every wireless station is sending out yacht calls in hope of locating the missing craft while wireless revenue cutters and other vessels are also assisting in the search.

TOSSED FOR DAYS ON SEA WITHOUT FOOD: ARE SAVED

DELUATH, Minn., Nov. 20.—After being tossed about helplessly for 87 hours in a "dead" gasoline launch, 60 hours of which they were without food, Axel Oburg, his wife and two children and two sailors were cast on the rocks of Lake Superior, 13 miles from here late yesterday, more dead than alive. By superhuman efforts the two sailors dragged themselves to this city, reaching here with the news of their terrifying experience. The local life-saving crew manned a launch and brought the half-starved party here last night. Mrs. Oburg and her children were so weak that they were scarcely able to stand. The party started from here to Two Harbors, Minn., Monday afternoon. They encountered a severe storm shortly after leaving this port and the engine failed.
