TAMMANY LEADERS ARE AFTER NEW POSITION

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Tammany men are scurrying about looking for "real jobs" today after Mayor Gaynor's new department heads ousted them from the "snaps" they have held since the downfall of Crocker. The followers of Tammany are trying to figure out why the new mayor turned them down, all along the line, while at the same time he pined a "good boy tag" on Charley F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany.

Saxony. The kingdom of Saxony, with an area of 5,787 square miles, comprises about 2.8 per cent of the total area of Germany (208,780 square miles) and in proportion to its size is by far the busiest and most important industrial state in the empire.

The Waiter's Fate. The waiter had been very inattentive. Still the man tipped him. The waiter walked off without thanking him. The man shrugged his shoulders resignedly. "The only thing to do with these waiters," he explained, "is to leave them to their fate. They get a bigger percentage on what's sold than the boss does. If they are energetic in robbing him and supplicating tips they eventually become boss. Then they get all that's coming to them. They get cursed, anathematized, backbitten and robbed."—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson and Bagpipes. Dr. Johnson's prejudice against the Scots stopped short just where so many Englishmen's toleration ends—at the bagpipes. However records the great man's confession that he did not like music and had hardly any perception of it. He knew, he said, "a drum from a trumpet and a bagpipe from a guitar, which was about the extent of his knowledge of music," and he also said that it seemed to be a "method of employing the mind, without the labor of thinking at all and with some applause from a man's self." But in the highlands he appeared to be distinctly fond of the bagpipes "and used often to stand for some time with his ear close to the great drone."—London Chronicle.

FADS AND FANCIES.

The New Lingerie Blouse—Black Suits Popular. The sheer lingerie blouse refuses to be withdrawn from favor, and, in fact, the newest ones are such adorable confections of sheer linen or muslin fringed with embroidery and lace that it would require a heart harder than that of fashion to discard them. The color note, however, is so persistently sounded that many of the daintiest blouses are fashioned from colored fabrics. Every well fitted wardrobe has a black suit of some kind this season. One seen recently is of black silk cashmere, with a broad hem of black velvet at the bottom of the skirt. The waist is of cashmere and velvet and is shaped like a Brittany peasant girl's bodice, though there is not the typical DOMINO WITH HOOD AND CAPE. touch of strong color. The waist is cut square at the throat and is filled with black tulle applique with white silk lace, and around the throat there is a black and white frilling that has a picturesque ruche appearance. Dominos are always in demand when fun-making is in progress, and the garment illustrated completely covers the figure. It gives graceful lines, and the pointed hood is quaint and picturesque in effect. The domino is of red percale, with the hood lined with red. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in three sizes—small E or 34, medium 36 or 38, large 40 or 42 inches bust measure. If in haste send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage, which insures more prompt delivery.

ROCKEFELLER'S SON MUST DO JURY DUTY

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., son of the oil king, was sworn in against his will today as juror of the grand jury called to investigate the white slave traffic. Rockefeller was embarrassed when ordered to appear in court.

When he appeared in court he said to Judge O'Sullivan: "I wish you would excuse me from this jury duty. It is very distasteful to me and besides I have many business affairs to attend to and am not well." Judge O'Sullivan was not affected by this plea. The judge declared that Rockefeller's wide experience in business and affairs in general fitted him for the foremanship of the jury. He refused to excuse the son and heir to the Standard oil king.

GOLD HILL MINES BEING OPENED

Grey Eagle Rock Rich and Other Properties Showing Plenty of the Color That Maketh Glad the Heart of the Miner. Renewed activity all along the line—that tells the story of what is happening right now in the Gold Hill mining district, says the News. Work has re-commenced on many mines recently, and reports from all are of the brightest. Both gold and silver ore of excellent quality have been taken from the Blossom mine on Sardine creek, managed by G. L. Haff, the past two months of work. A drift of about sixty feet is the result of the operations, there has been no waste matter taken out, and the lode still shows good.

Rock so rich that when broken it hung together as if soldered has been taken from the Grey Eagle during the past week. All the ore taken out in the operations this fall has been pay stuff, with occasionally some that is very rich, as in this instance. Work has progressed rapidly on the new ten-stamp mill of late, and it is now nearing completion. The Rogue River mine, two miles north of Gold Hill, sometimes known as the Cheney from the wact of its being owned by D. H. Cheney of Galice, has recently been re-opened by W. R. Oxley, who has bonded it as a purchaser. The Ray mine, near by and on the same lode, from which considerable gold has been taken by its former owners, Cox & Lyman, and also by its present owners, the E. Ray family, is included in the operations. Eleven hundred feet of tunnel already exists in the Rogue River mine, and three hundred feet in the Ray. Much fine specimen of gold has been taken from both properties, some of it in the form of the free-milling telluride, but it is understood that the new operators propose to work the low-grade ores of which there is an abundance, as well.

Joe Kester of Galice, is doing assessment work at his Bunkum mine on Foothills creek, which he considers a very promising property. In speaking of the mining prospects around Galice, Mr. Kester said that he believed that it was only a question of time, perhaps a short time, when that district would become one of the leading mining districts of the country. "Why, look at the history of Cripple Creek. That camp was a failure for years, and no one thought that it would amount to much until a lower stratum was penetrated. We all know the rest. We are taking out the identical ore at Galice, from the Oriole mine, for instance, that was found at Cripple Creek—Mohawk ore—and the samples assayed have shown gold in quantities from two to three hundred dollars per ton. It is the same with the Gold Hill district. The gold is here to a certainty, and when we go after it right we get it." The Revenue mine on Galice creek, eight miles from Gold Hill, a comparatively recent discovery, is now being worked.

COMPANY NEED NOT GIVE SIX TRIPS FOR QUARTER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—The federal supreme court today, affirmed the judgment of the circuit court holding unconstitutional the ordinance passed by Minneapolis in 1907 that required the street car company to sell six trip tickets for a quarter. The company claimed that the ordinance impaired its contract with the city and this was upheld by the lower court. Minneapolis appealed the case, it being decided against the city today.

BELIEVE CRIME WAS STARTED BY BLACKMAILERS

PITTSBURG, Pa., a Jan. 3.—The police today are working upon sensational developments following Winfield S. Gibson's murder of his wife, and his suicide, which they believe may result in the unearthing of a blackmailing plot of which Gibson was the intended victim. Gibson, who was the superintendent in Carnegie's Homestead mills, in a supposed fit of temporary insanity, shot and killed his wife, wounded his 13 year old son, who attempted to save his mother, and then killed himself.
