INSURGENTS GROW DAILY IN STRENGTH

What the Minority in Congress Have Done During the Past Year —Are Gradually Winning.

(By John Temple Graves, to the Hearst Syndicate.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—What is the fruitage of "insurgency"? What has the movement done to justify the interest and discussion which it has evoked?

Has this brilliant and picturesque group of statesmen in senate and house, which has lent nearly all the color and glow to congressional affairs during the year behind us, been a mere spectacle, a passing show of oratory and political pugna, or has it done things that make progress and will affect the future?

I am inclined to rate the work of the insurgents highly. I think they have done good and durable service to the country and the times, and that their work will live after them.

Their Good Points. There are several notable facts about these independent men:

They have always been frank. They have been perfectly fearless. They have not been intimidated or coerced from the first to last.

They have steadily increased in members and influence from the beginning.

They are many degrees stronger and more influential in national affairs than at the close of the last session.

The recent stormy events at Washington, the patronage order of Postmaster General Hitchcock; the threat of excommunication from the party, the assault upon Cannon and the final collapse of that man of straw—all these things more or less have had the insurgents, with their brains and their energies, with their courage and their resolution, as a varied and striking background.

And now that they have won all along the line, with Cannonism destroyed, or facing certain destruction with their patronage restored, and with the president marching out into the open with a refusal to excommunicate or condemn them—why, now the insurgents are on top.

Win Right to Insurge. They have established the glory of independence. They have conquered the right for themselves and others to insurge, and henceforth men of clear convictions, with brains and courage to back them, can and will vote as they please, in or out of congress, with none to molest or make them afraid.

Isn't that a mighty achievement for a minority group to trace out within a year?

Democrats, as well as Republicans, taking the cue from the insurgent triumph will dare to vote as they please and as they think upon the great questions of the country.

And what great things and good things in legislation and in morals may we not reasonably and logically hope for and expect with King Caucus dethroned and Caesar Cannon deposed, with the lists of corrections wide open and the minds of the people's representatives clear and free to think the wisest, talk the cleanest and vote the best things regardless of party or tradition.

The insurgent victory is the new emancipation proclamation and it sets the sixty-first congress free.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST HIGH FOOD PRICES LAUNCHED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Headed in strenuous endeavor by Mrs. John B. Henderson, Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey and the wives of a number of congressmen, the National Anti-Trust League, which was formally organized in Washington last night, is making preparations for a nationwide crusade on the high prices of food-stuffs.

The mails hourly bring in thousands of letters from the housewives and homekeepers all over the country, showing that the interest in the movement is intense. Mrs. Mary Sitts Parker, a Washington newspaper woman, is to be head of the executive committee.

In every congressional district lists are now being prepared of available women for the district leaders and workers. The district agents will investigate prices of foods and lodge complaints. A boycott against articles for which the prices are too high may be carried on.

BLAME OWNERS MINE HORRORS

In Annual Report Official of United Mineworkers Bitterly Scores Capitalistic Owners for Greed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 18.—

The great slaughter of human lives in the coal mines of the country is due to the greed of the mine owners to increase their profits and avoid the expenditure of good hard cash for safety appliances for the protecting of those who provide the coal supply of the country, is the charge made against the mine owners by E. S. McCulloch, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America in his annual report submitted to the organization today.

The vice president terms this as a natural disgrace and murder of the most disgraceful nature and says that as long as the public can get its fuel and profit it is the main aim of the owners and no relief can be hoped for only through the united action of the miners themselves. The various diseases which destroy human life have awakened public interest and obtained the support of our best citizens to prevent and destroy their blighting influences, but those who perform the labor of our land, supply the wants and needs of all, live and work amid dangers, squanders and disease, receive little or no attention, save a few dollars during periods of arduous sentiment and sympathy such as the Cherry mine disaster.

IMPROVE THEM A LITTLE

MEXICO, Mo., Jan. 18.—Nothing Tuttle and Something Tuttle are now Trix and Kitty Tuttle, respectively. They have changed their names. The young women are daughters of T. T. Tuttle, a retired farmer. Tuttle's first child, a girl, was born in 1881, which was a dry year. In order to commemorate the year he named her Eighty-One. She is now the wife of Rigus Jackson. The second child, a boy, brought about a disagreement between Tuttle and his wife as to a name, so they compromised by calling him It Tuttle. The third child, a girl, was named Nothing and the strange names were carried out in the naming of the youngest. She became Something.
