

LEADER OF BLACK HAND ON TRIAL

Lupo, "the Wolf," Faces Trial for Several Murders—Courtroom Is Guarded Against Expected Attempt at Rescue.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Ignacio Lupo, "the Wolf," reputed leader of the Black Hand Italian organization, was placed on trial in the federal court here today, while armed guards were stationed in the courtroom and corridors to resist an expected attempt at rescue.

Lupo, with seven other Italians, is charged with passing counterfeit money.

The charge against Lupo is regarded merely as a means employed by the police to keep him in custody while they are endeavoring to connect him with more serious crimes. A number of murders, including that of Lieutenant Petosino, the New York detective who was murdered in Palermo, Sicily, are believed to have been the result of the machinations of the gang.

Shortly before "The Wolf" entered the courtroom, it is reported that detectives learned of a plot to rescue the prisoners. The additional guard were stationed and everyone except witnesses were barred from the courtroom. The police also claim to have uncovered another plot to intimidate witnesses by the use of signs.

NO DANGER OF CALLING FIGHT OFF

Jack Curley Says Jeff Is Not Preparing to Get Out of Match—Probably Salt Lake City.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 27.—

"There is no foundation whatever for the rumor sent out from New York to the effect that a split between Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason might call off the Jeffries-Johnson fight entirely, or the San Francisco story that Jeffries is to 'run out' of the match, said Jack Curley today. "Even if Rickard and Gleason agreed to disagree, over the selection of a battleground or other details, the promotion of the fight would still be carried on by Rickard, who has put up every cent of the forfeit money and guarantees, and who figures with both fighters as the real promoter. The $20,000 posted with "Big Tim" Sullivan, the stakeholder, is Rickard's money, and it was expressly understood at the time the articles were signed that he was to have the choosing of the fight town, in either Utah, Nevada or California. Disappointed promoters and managers and others who have axes to grind with either Jeffries or the black man, have been consistently knocking the match at every opportunity, and I can brand this latest rumor of trouble as false and on a par with the rest of the stories that have been circulated. Gleason was taken into the promotion by Rickard at the request of Sam Berger, acting for Jeffries, the understanding being that Rickard would get the fight if Gleason was looked after. There is no doubt about Gleason being a valuable man and a successful handler of big fights, and he was to have entire charge of the actual staging of the battle. Rickard was to name the place and put up all the money.

"Rickard decided to hold the fight at Salt Lake City, and there it will be held.

"People have questioned Jeffries' sincerity in retiring from the ring originally. I am in a position to know that when he passed up the title six years ago it was with no thought of ever again fighting, but now that he is back into the game, his whole heart is set on winning that title back. Jeffries never made big money out of the ring or the stage until last year, and now because he is dealing with business men, and making the most of his opportunities, a whole string of men with grones against him have organized the knockers' club."

FUNERAL OF JOHN OTIS M'CLURE TOMORROW

The funeral of John Otis McClure, who was found dead in his bed at his apartments at the Moore hotel Tuesday morning, will be held Friday afternoon. The services will be held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Delroy Getchell, 227 Oakdale avenue North, at 2 o'clock p. m., the Rev. W. F. Shields conducting those at the house and those of the lodge of Elks at the grave.

The remains will be deposited here temporarily in a vault being erected for that purpose, and when the weather moderates in Minnesota will be shipped there for their final resting place in the family burying ground at St. Cloud.

DESPERATE BATTLE NOW ON.

Reports from Managua today say that the people of the capital are as equally divided between Madriz and Estrada as they were between Zelaya and Estrada. The provisional president, however, has gained many supporters from the outlying districts during the last week.

Strife has broken out again in the capital and daily scenes bordering upon mob violence are enacted in the streets. The authorities have been compelled to resort again to sternly repressive measures to preserve the peace and the jails are filled with prisoners.

The people of the city have not yet given up hope of American interference. Sympathizers with the revolution believe that a victory by the insurgents in the battle being fought today may have weight with the American government looking toward a recognition of the provisional government which has been sought by Estrada.

DISEASE ADDS TERROR.

creasing constantly, industrial life has been suspended.

Practically half the city was under water at noon today and the flooding of basements and the undermining of foundations by the runaway sewers place almost every house in danger of collapsing.

Woman Goes Insane.

Typical of the terrible suffering of the countless thousands of destitute, hungry people driven from their homes by the great flood, the police today found a woman, insane from exposure, with five small half-frozen children huddled in a pitiable group on the top of Butte Chaumont, in Park Hill.

Hardened veterans of battlefields and hitherto carefree women of fashion wept publicly today when they were confronted by the heartrending procession of ragged and half-clad men and women who participated in the great exodus from the flood-stricken district.

Depressing Features.

Cripples on improvised litters or in carts, some drawn by aged men or women or by dogs, formed one of the most depressing features of the spectacle. There were countless family groups of grandparents and great grandparents with the little babies of the third and fourth generations, clinging half-frozen about the necks of their elders.

The police and soldiers are literally driving hundreds of the poor from their homes in the inundated sections to save them from being crushed when the buildings collapse. Many of the frantic men and women refused to leave their homes until they were actually forced out at the points of bayonets.

"Where Shall We Go?"

"Where shall we go?" they wailed. "Why should we not die here as well as elsewhere?"

Almost constantly the officers were confronted with the fact that thousands believed that the end of the world is at hand and that Paris had been doomed by God to be swept away with all of its inhabitants. They, for the most part, connect the catastrophe with the approach of Halley's comet toward the earth as part of a predestined mode of destruction.

For these reasons, the more ignorant positively refused to listen to argument, but, like blinded horses in a burning stable, struggled against fate.

Military camps on high ground have been converted into kitchens, hot drinks and rolls as fast as they can be served.

This method of relieving the hunger of the victims is effective, but it is by no means sufficient to meet the exigencies of the situation, as thousands are unable to force their way to these stations.

Hundreds of the refugees waited until the very last moment of safety before deserting their homes, and then were compelled, in many cases, to flee in the night with only scanty clothes and practically none of their effects. In the procession of victims passing constantly out of the inundated regions were many women of all ages, shivering in light garments, frightened nearly out of their wits from terror, cold and fatigue.

One of the most fearful features of the situation is the danger of a famine in the city, as supplies are running lower and under present conditions there is no means of replenishing the stores. Every available craft is being used in the rescue work, but the government is trying today to requisition a fleet of boats by which it is hoped that food and supplies may be brought into the city.

Two Years to Repair Damage.

The waters of the rising Seine today is over the arches of the Royal, the Archeveche, the Alma, the Solferino and the St. Michael bridges, and their immediate destruction either by the flood or by the authorities is threatened immediately.

After a trip over the city today a corps of government engineers stated that if even the waters should subside immediately it would take more than two years to repair the tremendous damage done to the subways and other underground construction.

No Fires Allowed.

The German embassy is flooded and has been practically abandoned. The authorities have issued orders against the building of fires in the threatened districts for fear that collapsing of walls and foundations will upset lamps or stoves, precipitating a general conflagration.

Fighting Pestilence.

Under the direction of the chamber of deputies, the health department today called upon a special commission of sanitary experts to formulate ways and means of combating the fearful imminence of pestilence which is threatening the stricken city as the result of the bursted sewers.

Every device known to modern science that can be applied under the circumstances, it is feared, will be unable to prevent the spread of disease.

In many parts of the city the stench from the open conduits is powerful and the streets are almost impassable. Homes which have been left untouched by the flood were abandoned because they were uninhabitable.

Orders for thousands of barrels of chloride of lime and other chemicals have been sent to all cities within reach, as the supplies of disinfectants now in the hands of the government will soon be exhausted.

Attack Bakeries.

Following a number of attacks upon bakeries and other food shops in the outlying districts by hungry men and women, unable to pay the suddenly increased prices, it was expected this afternoon that the government would be forced to confiscate the stocks of provisions.

New Orleans Acts.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 27.—Subscription lists are being circulated among the French residents of New Orleans today to raise money for the thousands made destitute by the floods that are sweeping Paris. Already hundreds have affixed their names to the list.

It is expected that more than $100,000 will be raised.

It pays to deal with the "Man Who Knows." When the Rogue River Land Company sold the Tronson & Guthrie orchard at Eagle Point to the prize winning owners, four years ago, the salesman, W. M. Holmes, assured the purchasers those Spitzenbergtrees would produce the world's best apples, and subsequent events prove the soundness of his judgment. By the way: Did it ever occur to you that most of the men who have won out in the Rogue River Valley, bought their winning orchards through the Rogue River Land Company?
