

REBELS TO ATTACK CAPITAL SOON

Twenty-five Hundred Troops Marching on Managua—Administration Troops Off to Give Battle.

BLUEFILEDS, Nicaragua, Feb. 10.—(By Wireless to Colon.)—Advices from Managua today state that it is almost certain that the revolutionists will attack the capital within 48 hours. General Chamorro has withdrawn from Boaca and is moving rapidly toward Managua. Twenty-five hundred troops comprise his command.

The main body of the administration forces were dispatched yesterday to hold Chamorro in check while preparations for the defense of the capital were completed. The revolutionary force halted the administration troops at Santo Domingo by General Mena's insurgents early today, and Chamorro is virtually without opposition in his march.

Couriers arriving from the front today confirmed the report of sweeping rebel victories at La Garita and Santa Clara. They discredited the reports of administration successes which emanated from Managua.

According to their statements General Vasquez's attempts to surprise Chamorro at Boaca was a dismal failure. The insurgent commander easily broke through the lines and pushed westward toward Managua.

It is possible that Chamorro will wait for Mena to join him before moving upon the city. It is believed, however, that Chamorro is strong enough to take the city alone, and may not wait for reinforcements.

JEFF DAVIS IS FOR "OLD MAN PEOPLE"

Has No Truck with "Those High-Collared Roosters." Bankers—Postal Bank Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—"Old Man People don't ever get much from the government. The drippings from the sanctuary may strike everybody else, but Old Man People is generally missed. The constitution is always invoked to prevent Old Man People from securing anything belonging to him. I have no patience with such rot."

Such was the declaration of Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas today in announcing his opposition to the postal savings bank bill unless an amendment were adopted by which the 300 state banks of Arkansas might receive local deposits. Senator Davis made a brief but characteristic speech in which he kicked the floor, thumped his desk and said, "Ah, sir!" until the doors rattled. He had just discovered that no postal savings money could be deposited in any bank unless it was subject to government or state supervision. He proceeded to offer an amendment striking out that proposition. He admitted that no supervision was required in Arkansas. When asked if the banks would be willing to have state examination he replied:

"I do not know anything about those high-collared roosters. I am not in the confidence of bankers. All my affiliations are with the common people."

Mr. Davis declared that the bill was aimed to help the national banks, which are "cormorants seizing our wealth." He said the people are awakening to their condition, and the legislators will call "for the rocks and mountains to fall on them and prevent the people from destroying them."

The Davis amendment was rejected, 5 to 43.

Senator Smith of Michigan said the bill virtually makes the government a partner with banking interests. He considered it a leaning in the direction of paternalism. He said the people would hereafter hold the government responsible for all financial troubles.

CAREY TELLS OF JIM HILL'S PLANS

Noted Oregon Attorney Returns from East and Says Road Will Be Projected at Once to Klamath Falls.

Charles H. Carey, who is well known throughout Oregon as one of its leading attorneys, and who, with Johnson Porter, visited Crater Lake and Medford early in the fall, has returned to Portland from the east with the announcement that the Oregon Trunk will build to Klamath Falls this year.

It is also announced that the Hill interests have filed with the interior department at Washington, D. C., application for a right of way through the Klamath Indian reservation. This right of way will complete the path of the Hill road from the mouth of the Deschutes river canyon to Klamath Falls, following the filing of a right of way through the townships just north of the reservation. The township filings were made at Lakeview and give to the Oregon Trunk a through line from its junction with the Northern Pacific road to the line of the Klamath reservation.

Will Connect San Francisco.

Extensions of the Oregon Trunk to Klamath Falls will practically give the Hill interests connection with San Francisco in that by running a short stretch of line from Klamath Falls to Alturas, direct connection may be established with the Western Pacific, the Gould transcontinental line, which is now nearing completion through the Sacramento valley to Alturas, in Northern California.

When the Hill interests began heading for Central Oregon, it was generally surmised that San Francisco was the real goal, but confirmation of reports to this effect was not obtainable, excepting as the work progressed in the southerly direction, until today.

Few Obstacles.

Bend has been pointed out as the southerly terminal of the Oregon Trunk, but men acquainted with railroad construction could see no good reason why the line should stop there with every impediment to continue through a section rich in natural resources and waiting for transportation facilities.

The distance from Klamath Falls to Alturas would present few obstacles to construction, the topography of the land being perhaps more favorable to railroading than any of the distance covered from the Columbia river to Klamath, the stretch through the Deschutes river canyon being the most difficult not only from an engineering point of view, but also because of the serious and hard-fought conflicts with the Harriman interests, who are also rushing construction along the banks of the river toward Bend and the big central Oregon district.

Except announcing the extension of the road to Klamath Falls, Mr. Carey said he was not in position at this time to give out further information.

Will Build During Summer.

"The Oregon Trunk will build to Klamath Falls this summer," said Mr. Carey, "and trains from Central Oregon will be connecting with the North Bank road for Portland and other points in the Pacific northwest as soon as we can get the bridge across the Columbia river at Celilo completed. Work on the bridge will be rushed as rapidly as possible, and the intention is to have the road to Klamath ready for operation by the time the bridge is completed."

"We have several surveys for the line from Bend to Klamath Falls and I could not give out any definite in-

DEPUTY MARSHAL BELLINGER QUILTS

$12.49 Too Much Compensation for Three Months Work—Allowed 12 Cents a Mile for Traveling But Only Gets 3-8 of It.

There is a vacancy in the office of deputy U. S. marshal for the southern Oregon district, and any enterprising young man who wants to work three months and cover a whole lot of territory under all sorts of conditions, pay his own way and wait thirty days or more after the work has been done for the money, for a net compensation of $12.49 cents over actual expenses, can have a job, for Deputy U. S. Marshal J. H. Bellinger has resigned, and the language he used when he handed the aforesaid resignation to U. S. Marshal Reed was something more forcible than polite.

It happened this way. Mr. Bellinger was appointed deputy U. S. marshal for this district when the federal court was created here. He attended the meetings of the court regularly during its sessions, summoned the jury and in all matters acted as officer of the court. In addition he made trips to Klamath county to serve government papers, incidentally paying his own way with his own omnibus, to Ashland on the same basis, to Siskiyou, something, and after his bill had been sent in and the check returned for the amount the government thought due here is the way he figures that he has been paid:

For attendance on the U. S. federal court nine days, $3.54. For net compensation for an eight-day trip in Klamath county, $5.63 over actual expenses paid by the government. For trip to Ashland to subpoena a witness to go to Juneau, Alaska, 38 cents. Trip to Siskiyou, $2.10. Papers served in Medford, 84c. Total, $12.49.

The law allows deputy marshals 12 cents per mile when they travel away from their homes, and a certain fee for serving papers. This comprises their compensation. When Mr. Bellinger was at Portland the first of the week he could not understand the difference between his legal compensation and what he actually had received. "Oh, you only get three-eighths of that 12 cents a mile," he was told.

"Where does the rest of it go?" demanded Bellinger.

"It don't go anywhere," was the reply, and that was as far as he could get.

From letters received from the department it is evident that his services have been satisfactory in every respect, but "$12.49 and a lot of soft words don't buy wood and grub" is the expression of the ex-U. S. deputy marshal.

formation at this time as to the exact route that will be taken out of Bend."

SURGEON ROBBETT MAY WED CHIEF WITNESS

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 9.—It was reported here today that Assistant Surgeon Ansey Hamilton Robnett, U. S. N., and Miss Dorothy Hesler of Evanston, Ill., will be married when the verdict of the court martial that tried Robnett on a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman is made known.

During Miss Hesler's testimony before the court martial her engagement to Robnett last November was told. Robnett's defense made one of its strongest points of the fact that when Robnett and Paymaster G. P. Auld had their memorable interview with Dr. Edward Spencer Cowles during a dance in Boston, Robnett was exercising his right in defending his fiancée, Robnett alleged that Cowles has appropriated a photograph of Miss Hesler and refused to return it.

CURED WITHOUT A KNIFE.

About eight years ago, after having consulted several physicians who failed to cure my wife, I called in Dr. King of No. 725 J street, Sacramento, Cal. After making an examination, he pronounced it a case of abscess of the bowels, for which he accomplished successfully a cure without a knife. About a year ago he also treated her for heart trouble, with which he had the same success.

Some time back he cured me of a case of kidney trouble. Anybody wanting any reference can address me at No. 528 Oak avenue or Antelope, Sacramento county.
