Plays LOCHINVAR ON A MOTORCYCLE

Young Man Steals Girl From Beneath Parental Roof and Mounts Wheel and Speeds to Parson.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 22.—"Lochinvar had nothing on me," sagely remarked F. M. Hall today, referring to his unusual motorcycle elopement with Miss Carrie Clapp, the 19-year-old daughter of a wealthy rancher of Ramona.

Miss Clapp and Hall were very much in love, he stated—so much, in fact, that they determined to wed, in spite of the objection of the young lady's father.

It was arranged that last evening Miss Carrie was to be ready for Hall when he called, and together they would fly to the city to be made man and wife.

Hall appeared exactly at the hour arranged. Miss Carrie trustfully slipped from beneath the parental roof tree and declared herself ready for the trip to San Diego.

Hall led his sweetheart to the roadside. Instead of restive steeds, left in charge of a faithful groom, she found an oily motorcycle leaning against a blue gum tree. It had seats for two.

Undaunted, the maiden mounted behind her lover, and over the rough country roads they bounced to San Diego. The marriage ceremony was performed a scant hour before Clapp arrived on a foaming horse. Hall and his bride were forgiven.

Funeral of H. A. McLelland. The funeral services of the late H. A. McLelland were held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. William Lucas of St. Mark's Episcopal church.

A SUCCESSFUL PLAYWRIGHT.

Miss Harriet Ford, Who is Winning Honors in Stagsland.

Miss Harriet Ford, the clever playwright, began her professional career as an actress and was well on the way to fame when the lure of the pen drove her into writing rather than the acting of dramas.

One of her most successful adaptations is "The Gentleman of France," which had such a wonderful run in New York city several seasons ago, with Kylie Bellow as the star.

In collaboration with Mr. Joseph Medill Patterson Miss Ford has recently turned out another hit of the season, "The Fourth Estate," a stirring dramatization of a newspaper office of the "yellow" variety.

Woman Makes Millions Alone. From a position as stenographer at $10 a week to the possession of a fortune rated in millions is a long step for a woman, but it has been accomplished by Mrs. Ora Hood Russell of Chicago in little more than ten years, and the fortune is all of her own making, gained by her shrewdness in speculations in oil lands. She went to work in a lawyer's office in Chicago when she was eighteen years old, and it chanced that the man to whom she was married a year or two afterward was a practical oil man. Mrs. Russell took a keen interest in his work and on his death decided to go into the oil business herself. With more than ordinary courage she risked her first profits on a trip to Venezuela and was so pleased with the oil prospects there she hurried back to the United States and tried to interest American capital. But she could find few to share her faith and finally had to give up the scheme. A chance visit to Wayne county, Ky., convinced her oil fields could be worked at a tremendous profit there, but once again she found capital shy. Undismayed by the gloomy prophecies of others, Mrs. Russell spent every cent she owned or could raise in taking options and leases on land, and, though the success of her first wells was such as to bring thousands of investors and speculators behind her, Mrs. Russell had made such good use of her start that she now has several thousand acres under her complete and individual control.

A Lingerie Sachet. Lingerie sachets are the most attractive of all the many types of perfume holders. The freshness of such a sweet smelling device is always assured when soap and water are at hand. The material used in the sachet illustrated is of the finest handkerchief linen, and the shape is square. The edges of the two pieces of linen are buttonholed in a small scallop, and the design and buttonholing are done in very fine white wash cotton. The inner pad covered with china silk in a delicate tone of pink is spread with a layer of cotton batting and sprinkled with sachet powder.

A Healthful Hint. "Laugh and grow fat" is an old proverb, but its real meaning was not understood until the end of the nineteenth century and then only by a few. But the therapeutic value of merriment is being recognized more and more and if generally understood would very sensibly increase the sum total of human happiness and healthfulness.

If you want to be a true friend and well-wisher to one who is sick, do not for an instant allow yourself to partake of his or her low spirits or sadness. Do everything that will tend to rouse and cheer the patient, to make him or her forget, for a time at least, his or her pain or misery.

SAYS ALCOHOL IS O.K. - IS ROASTED

Archdeacon of English Church is Condemned for Quoting Scripture in Defense of King Alcohol.

MANCHESTER, England, March 22.—For citing scripture in support of his claim that the moderate use of alcohol is harmless, Archdeacon Sinclair of London has brought on himself the bitterest non-conformist attack a clergyman of the English Established church has had to face perhaps in a generation. "Remember always," said Archdeacon Sinclair in a sermon in St. Anne's church here, "that on the occasion of his first miracle our Lord created a large quantity of wine to increase the harmless merriment and happiness of the wedding guests." He further declared that the scriptures do not condemn the use of alcohol as a beverage, but does condemn their abuse. He concluded by saying that the attempt to crush the liquor trade by "unjust, unequal and disproportionate taxation" was a part of that socialist movement which threatens the liberties of England. It was this statement that caused the most strenuous opposition.
