

1910 BOOKLETS DUE TUESDAY

Medford Pamphlets to Be Shipped From Portland During the Week—Most Beautiful Booklet Turned Out by Any Community.

William Riddle Wells, publicity manager for the Southern Pacific & Sunset magazine, has wired that delivery of the new Medford pamphlets will begin Tuesday from Portland. The pamphlets were due early in January, so that it is only three months late.

The new Medford pamphlet is the most elaborate of the many community pamphlets issued in conjunction with the Southern Pacific. It is ahead of last year's Medford booklet, both from artistic, literary, typographic and photographic standpoints.

The reading matter of the pamphlet was prepared by the Commercial club publicity committee, who also selected the designs for the cover and the photographs for illustrations. The booklet is printed on slightly heavier paper than that of 1909 and is slightly larger in size.

The front cover design is an attractive picture of Crater Lake. A new picture of the upper Rogue adorns the back cover. The cover printing is in four colors, besides a gold frame and lettering.

In the center of the book is a double page panorama of Crater Lake with four smaller pictures of the lake in the corners. Orchard scenes have not been neglected, and a profusion of them is shown. Every photograph in the book is new and the scenic attractions well portrayed.

The write-up of the orchards was largely supplied by Professor O'Gara, who materially assisted the committee, and to whom is due the excellent summary of fruit raising and its prospect in the Rogue River valley. The pamphlet has been copyrighted and cannot be reproduced without permission of the club. This was done to head off the wholesale thefts of pictures and data made by the unscrupulous wildest orchardists from other sections of the country.

PATTERSON FOREVER LAYS DOWN PEN

Editor-in-Chief of Chicago Tribune Dies in Philadelphia of Apoplexy—Was Leading Newspaper Man of West and Known to Thousands.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 2.—The body of Robert W. Patterson, editor in chief of the Chicago Tribune, who died at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel of apoplexy last night, will be shipped to Chicago either today or tomorrow. His funeral and that of his mother, who died in Chicago half an hour before her son succumbed in New York, will be held jointly.

According to information reaching here Mrs. Julia Patterson, his mother, died of quick pneumonia after an illness of a day.

Mrs. Patterson was visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John M. Ewen. Thursday she caught cold. It was believed that she was recovering until yesterday afternoon when the ailment developed into pneumonia.

Patterson was also suffering from a cold, and when his death was reported it was rumored that he died of the same ailment as did his mother.

Patterson was the son of Rev. R. W. Patterson. He graduated from Williams college in 1871. He received his first newspaper training on the old Chicago Times.

Later he joined the Tribune staff as the assistant night editor. He served successively as Washington correspondent, editorial writer, managing editor and finally was made editor in chief following the death of Joseph Medill.

MEDFORD HAS A NEW SOFT-DRINK PALACE

The people of Medford will be treated to all the new drinks and fancy dishes such as go with the installing and starting of a new soft-drink palace.

Hardon's fountain is certainly a winner from the start. The opening of this swell parlor on the west side is certainly quite a feature for Medford. One would almost imagine they were in a big city when they pass this place.

If it's all right, want advertising will rent it quickly.

ED ANDREWS TO WRITE OPERETTA

Dramatic Critic of Mail Tribune to Write Libretto for Bonita, the Beautiful, to Star in the Coming Season.

Bonita, beautiful actress, who, with her excellent company, delighted a large audience at the Medford theater Friday evening in the musical farce, "Wine, Woman and Song," is so charmed with the Rogue River valley and Medford that she is thinking of purchasing a place here, as many other actresses have done, where she can retire when tired of the stage.

She went a step further in showing her faith in Medford by signing a contract with a Medford man to furnish the libretto for her new opera, in which she will star next season. Before leaving she arranged with Ed Andrews, dramatic critic of the Mail Tribune and former comic opera star, to supply her with a musical play that will be written especially for her with the view of giving her a chance to make the most of her acknowledged debilities.

Bonita realizes the shortcomings of her present production. She has a good company, but neither they nor herself are given proper opportunities in "Wine, Woman and Song," a misnamed production in which the acting is far better than the play.

Mr. Andrews states that the tunes of favorite old operas, now obsolete, will be utilized as well as new melodies in the forthcoming production.

If your store is a good store, advertising will "make it." If it's not, it will not.

ELECTRIC ADDING MACHINE AT FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Many years ago the "machine with brains" was considered an impossibility. While modern mechanics have not been able to equip a mass of steel with the motive essence which makes action in animal life, the margin is so close sometimes as to be uncanny. Witness the operations of a Mergenthaler for a while and you will almost believe the "machine with brains" has arrived.

Then go to the First National bank and see the new adding machine, operated by electricity, which has just been installed, and you will be practically convinced. The operator presses a few buttons, hits the space bar and behold! there are your totals and sub-totals of a column of figures, which would have taken the animal with brains an hour to have added, turned out and absolutely added in a few seconds. It makes a man wonder what's the use of brains, anyway, when a machine can do the work!
