Milady's Mirror

A woman who never worries declares that there is nothing more detrimental to beauty in woman than worry. The worrying woman does nobody any good. She simply invites the hand of time, which writes plenty of wrinkles on her brow, around her eyes and mouth, paints her face yellow and gives a lackluster eye that no artifice can brighten.

It is quite unnecessary to worry, and it is a total waste of energy, which could be better employed.

You know a worrying woman the moment you see her. Her character is written in her face in wrinkles which you would think nothing short of a miracle would obliterate.

Downright ugliness is a heavy price to have to pay for the possession of a bad habit, but there it is. And not only does worry directly influence the complexion for evil; its more remote effects are no less potent in robbing the face of the peach bloom tints which are the admiration of the poet, the painter and the general public.

Worry affects the entire nervous system, and through it the liver and organs of digestion and the heart. The things a woman thinks have more than anything else the power to make or mar her beauty. So let her beware of worrying overmuch lest she lose the greatest of all the gifts.

To Make the Hair Healthy.

If you want to keep your hair in a healthy condition be careful always to use a clean hairbrush. Many bad cases of dandruff are due to carelessness in this matter. Directly the brush begins to look grimy wash it in soda and water. Have the water nearly boiling and "pat" it with the bristles. Be careful that the back of the brush does not get wet, as it ruins the polish. When quite clean rinse in warm water, then let it stand for ten minutes in clean cold water and leave it in the air to dry. Don't put the brush to dry in the sun or too near the fire or the bristles will turn yellow. If the back has been damp rub it with sweet oil, then polish.

To keep the hair bright and glossy few better methods exist than that of ventilation. The treatment should be practiced for five minutes each day, night and morning. The tresses should be separated one by one and shaken gently and slowly, so that the air may penetrate between the strands. If a maid's help is obtainable a still better result can be secured, the attendant fanning the air gently on to the hair with the right hand while supporting one lock at a time with the other.

A Sweet Breath.

General opinion to the contrary, it is not always a condition of the teeth that causes unpleasant breath, as stomach disturbances have the same effect. If a thorough examination of the mouth fails to disclose any reason for an unpleasant breath no time should be lost in putting oneself under the care of a physician, for there must be an internal condition that cannot fail to grow more serious with time if it is not corrected. The form of treatment for this state differs as the case requires, but it is safe to say that only easily digested food should be eaten and the utmost effort made to keep the stomach in a healthy state.

Constant rinsing of the mouth with antiseptics and deodorants, while they do not cure, are decidedly beneficial. A remedy for this purpose is made from six and three-quarter drams of salicylic acid, seven and one-half grains each of orange flower water and oil of peppermint, one pint of Florida water and one-half pint of alcohol.

The peppermint is mixed with one-half of the alcohol, the rest being put to the Florida water, and the liquid is then warmed by setting in a basin put into hot water.

The acid is dissolved in the warm bath, and the other ingredients are then added. The mouth may be well rinsed with this after eating and again at night. It is supposed to act favorably upon the teeth.

A Beauty Cure.

The beauty cure that is engaging the attention of fashionable society at the moment is the milk cure, and its only fault is that it is ridiculously cheap for a cure adopted by fashionable society. The milk is taken inwardly and outwardly.

A glass of hot milk slowly sipped at night composes the mind and prepares the body for restful slumber. Milk is rubbed into the face at night with a piece of soft linen and allowed to dry, and in the morning the face is washed in milk, but no soap must be used. Skin regularly washed in milk is declared to be proof against sunburn.

For the Complexion.

The woman who finds that her face is unusually dry and rough in winter should give a thought to the sort of care she is taking of it. If she persists in the use of alkaline soaps, toilet powders and aromatic vinegars, all of which are drying to their effect, she will soon be confronted by a lined or wrinkled skin. A better way is to rely upon a good cleansing cream and plenty of hot water, followed by cold water to stimulate the skin and close the pores.

His Strong Point.

A senator who has grown very dignified in recent years was making a speech, says the Saturday Evening Post. After he had finished there was a reception at one of the hotels. A little man pushed eagerly forward.

"Hello, senator!" he shouted.

"How do you do, sir?"

"Say, senator, you remember me? I'm Jones-Jones of Springfield, you know. I met you down there. Remember how full we got together?"

"I do not," replied the senator icily. They pushed Jones away, but soon he was back.

"Hello, senator!" he shouted. "Don't you remember that time Down in St. Louis we went out and made a night of it? Jones of Springfield, you know."

They shoved Jones away again, and somebody standing near the senator asked, "Who's your friend?"

"I don't know who he is, but he seems to be hell on reminiscences."

The Brake on Tight.

Out of the Grand Central station, in New York, the other day came a couple evidently from up state regions. The old man grasped his carpetbag and bulging green umbrella firmly and looked up and down the street, his mouth agape.

"There's a heap o' sights in New York, I guess, Maria," he said. "I misdoubt if we see them all."

"The old lady's mouth set grimly.

"Waal, Silas," she replied, and her manner was more than significant, "bein's as I'm with you, there's some, I expect, that you ain't goin' to see!"

Insulted.

Two brothers had the habit of calling on the same girl. One of the brothers, George, was to take part in some private theatricals, and the girl had promised to fix up a shirt and a pair of shoes for his costume. The articles were to be delivered to her on a certain evening.

Frank, the second brother, took it into his head to call on the girl that same evening. Frank knew nothing of the arrangements George had made with her to help him with his costume. He rang the bell, asked the maid to tell the girl that Mr. Allen had called and sat down in the parlor.

The maid went upstairs and presently returned, trying hard not to smile.

"Miss Jones," says she is busy just now and that you are to send up your shirt and shoes."

"What?" he yelled.

"I'm to take up your shirt and shoes."

"Thanks, but I may need them myself to go home with. I hope Miss Jones will be better in the morning. Never mind; I will close the door myself."

Took the Boy's View.

A well known London comedian was starting at a music hall in a large town when he heard from a friend that the son of the landlady where he had taken rooms was going round the town stating that the star was rotten and not worth going to see.

The comedian went home and called the landlady and said: "Madam, you would not like me to leave your rooms and in the next town I went to tell my friends that were likely to visit you that your rooms were bad. Well, your little boy has made a statement that I am no use as a star, and I should like you to take him to task for it. Please don't hit him, but speak to him sternly and severely."

The landlady waited till the boy's father came home from work and told him about it.

The father gave the boy a sound thrashing and sent him to bed, went that night to the hall to see the comedian act, returned home, woke the boy up and apologized to him.

A Hard Shot.

Dining as honored guest with the governors of various states was "Private" John Allen of Mississippi, whose very whimsical way of saying things makes people smile. He told himself what happened when he was once called on to speak. "I got up and said," explained "Private" Allen, "that I came with the understanding that I was not to speak during this trip. Then some one cried from the other end of the room, 'Yes, and I came with the same understanding.'"

Their Meeting Place.

The lady dean of a well known girls' college, being very much annoyed that the girls after chapel on Sunday mornings waited around the entrance of the assembly room and stood in groups on the stairs instead of dispersing at once, resolved to institute a reform. So at the regular chapel service one morning she arose with much dignity and made the following remarks:

"I have noticed a growing tendency among you young women to linger about the chapel Sunday mornings, blocking the halls and stairs. Hereafter the following order will be observed in leaving chapel: First the president will pass away, then I will pass away, then the faculty members will pass away, and finally the student body by classes will pass away, and we will all meet below."

She never finished her sentence.

TENT CITY IS BEING ERECTED

Accommodations Provided to Care for Overflow from Hotels—Everything Prepared Complete and Sanitary—Tents Built on Platform.

The property on Oakdale avenue, just south of the Washington school, has undergone a rapid transformation in the past two days, and a neatly arranged city of tents has made its appearance there.

It will be remembered that some time ago the Greater Medford club initiated a move to establish a tent city to accommodate the tremendous influx of people now being drawn to Medford by the city's extensive advertising campaign. The ladies took the matter up with the Commercial club and a committee was appointed to further the project.

Owing to the time and expense necessary for carrying out such an enterprise, the matter was finally dropped by the club. The committee, however, interested G. F. Cuthbert of G. F. Cuthbert & Co., the new house-furnishing concern, who at once took hold of the matter.

Mr. Cuthbert states that the plan followed in the erection of the tent city is similar to that carried out in Santa Cruz and Southern California and that no expense has been spared to make everything complete and sanitary. Each tent is built on a platform, with rustic sides, fitted with screen doors and wire screen on the walls, so that the entire sides of each tent may be raised, giving most complete ventilation. Canvas partitions between the tents give absolute privacy. Each tent is protected by a fly overhead. All are electrically lighted, and lights have been placed in the streets. The furnishing is entirely new and attractive.

The entire premises will be well fenced and a large office tent, toilets, etc., provided. E. S. Parsons, recently of Portland, has been engaged as manager.

The "for sale" ads—finding the people who ought to own your unused things—are uncommonly "lucky" salesmen.

UNIFICATION OF TELEPHONE SERVICE

The undesirability of competition in public utilities is clearly shown by the gradual elimination of the secondary companies operating in the telephone field.

During the closing part of 1909 the movement toward doing away with dual telephones in places where two companies existed has been pronounced. In many cities and localities the Bell organization either purchased the independent plants, or the Bell plants were merged with those of the independents. In the latter case long distance connection with the Bell lines was immediately supplied to local exchanges.

Practically all of these transactions so far as we know have met with the full approval of a public well convinced of the annoyance, imperfect service and unnecessary expense of duplication caused by the double telephone system. In Des Moines 90 per cent of the telephone subscribers favored a coalition of the two companies.

Where the elimination of telephone competition has taken place, exorbitant rates have not followed. As a rule superior service with many additional telephone stations have been

JUDGE CUTS GORDIAN KNOT

Judge Calkins instructs Verdict in Perouzi vs. Johnson—Law Tangled—Plaintiff Gets the Full Amount—apid Action.

Judge Calkins yesterday cut with one stroke the Gordian knot in which the attorneys on both sides in the Perouzi vs. Johnson case had entangled themselves, the jury and the court itself by instructing the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The case was one in which Mrs. Perouzi sued to recover the amount due for certain cattle sold to Johnson. There were various legal questions brought up on either side, but the fact that the cattle had been delivered and that the plaintiff had not been paid, whatever the various business complications of either party, was patent throughout the case. There were questions as to the liability of agents and all that sort of thing, but Judge Calkins summed up the case in his instruction to the jury:

"You will bring in a verdict for the plaintiff, as it is evident that the claim has never been paid."

"We would have done it, anyway," said one of the jurors. "It was the common-sense way of looking at it."
