RAISING CHICKENS IN LARGE FLOCKS

Twelve hundred fluffy little chicks one day old, enclosed in a circular space 12 feet in diameter and mothered by a single oil stove, represents one of the peculiar features of an experiment which is now being carried on by Professor James Dryden of the Oregon Agricultural college.
 The experiment is for the purpose of testing the feasibility of raising chickens in large flocks. It has been the belief up to this time that chickens could be raised only in small broods. If the new method proves successful it will be a great boon to the poultry industry.

The Southern Dairy company have opened a very complete plant for the manufacture of ice cream, sherbets, ices, etc., and will keep all kinds of dairy products always on hand.
 This is a business that should be of interest to every person, especially farmers and dairymen in southern Oregon, because it will provide a market for a great many products not raised, or if raised at all, in such small quantities as to be of no benefit to the producer. This company will pay good prices for all products and will certainly be a good institution for Medford. Already they are shipping out wholesale orders and from now on will be in position to supply the family trade as well as fill all orders for lodges, churches, socials, etc. South Central avenue is getting to be quite a business district.

There is a New Fountain in Town

Rardon's Bakery is sporting quite the swellest fountain ever brought to Medford. You will enjoy a visit to this real live fountain if only for a look at the new fixture.
 Standing some 12 feet from the floor up and about 15 feet wide, this mass of plate glass, polished mahogany, marble, brass and silver filigree is a beautiful sight. You have seen many prett; fountains no doubt, but have you seen an iceless fountain?
 There is a thought for you to puzzle over and while you are thinking about it just drop around and take a peep at a fixture that would do credit to a city two times the size of Medford.
