THE MEDFORD SPIRIT.

(Vale Gazette.)
The Medford Spirit is something worth copying. That activity, that energy, that united push and pull all along one line and together that Medford is displaying is worth copying. What Vale needs is the Medford Spirit. A little energy, a little local harmony, a little united effort properly applied would make Vale a city. Vale has the advantage of location, land values and opportunity. There is a lock ready to be opened for any key at Vale. The Harriman lines are putting in their key line, the Hills are undoubtedly opening a lock to the interior. The irrigation lock is waiting for a key to our high lands, in fact there is everything here that the investor can want. What we now need is local action and unity. The Oriano is going to work for that. We are going to see if we can't help bring something here. It is results that count. The Medford Spirit is active, it means something. It is now going to Washington and is going to get money for that big national park project, and it is going farther—it is going to raise $100,000 itself to help in putting through that big park and national resort. Now, this is the spirit that counts. This is the spirit of development. This is what Vale needs, this spirit that Medford has. Our chamber of commerce must get down to action. They must do something. Internal improvements are good, but the external work is what counts. We believe the opportunity is here and if the chamber takes hold of it, does not fritter it away, then we can get results. These are matters worth considering.
