A PROTEST TO THE PUBLIC FROM CUTHBERT & COMPANY.

A misleading article in the last issue of the Mail Tribune represented us as bowing peacefully to a public demand for the removal of a tent with wood sides walls which we were erecting on the northeast corner of the intersection of Central avenue and Sixth street for temporary store purposes.

To correct this impression we publish the following statement of facts:

It was only after the mayor of this city warned us that he would fine us heavily in case we proceeded with the erection of our tent that we discontinued operations thereon, notwithstanding we had gone before the city council at two distinct regular meetings, first six weeks ago, and again last Tuesday, and obtained its consent by motion to erect this tent.

We believe there was no general public demand for such removal, but on the contrary a strong opinion in our favor, especially by those who knew the facts.

We wish publicly to thank Messrs. Welch, Eifert and Merrick of the city council for their efforts to obtain for us fair treatment at the hands of your city.

We respectfully submit that our investment here, coupled with the fact that we have thousands of dollars worth of merchandise en route, ordered forward at a time when we believed we had a temporary location engaged, and with the further fact that we have made every effort in our power to rent a suitable building, but have been unable to secure one, also the fact that we have been the cause of the erection of one of the finest buildings in the city of Medford, entitle us to some consideration at your hands.

We were astounded after getting the above mentioned consent from the council and after having made our lease and commenced work on our tent floor and framework, to be told that we must go before the youths of the fire department as a court of last resort for their consent. Not knowing the nature of the body, we consented at the council meeting Friday afternoon to go before them; but we found the whole matter was a cut-and-dried affair with them. They warned us before the meeting Friday evening that they always stood together; that we were up against the right bunch now, etc. We would like to ask the following questions:

Why was JOHN BUTLER of the Medford Furniture Co. the sole representative of the fire department at the council meeting Friday afternoon?

Why was JOHN BUTLER at the chief's home Thursday morning to prevail upon the chief to take the matter up against us?

Did Mr. JOHN BUTLER also have the good of the city at heart when he wrote to the Portland jobbers to endeavor to prevent our buying merchandise there?

Why did MR. JOHN BUTLER not rise in protest when the photographer erected his tent on West Main street a week or two ago? It seems a strange situation that a case like ours should have been left for its decision to a lot of young men inexperienced in questions of public policy and incapable of discerning that actual justice sometimes lies outside the technicality of the written law. The members of the council were broad-gauge enough to consider where actual justice and the best interests of the city lay in such an unusual case as ours, and we again express our thanks to the city council for its courteous treatment and respectful hearing.

We have decided, however, to remove our structure to West Main street, just west of the Washington school, where we will have a temporary show room covering thirty-two hundred feet of floor space, and we believe the people of Medford, knowing the conditions under which we have been compelled to go there, will take the trouble to examine our goods before making purchases.

Intense Cold Forces Man-Bird to Descend After Traveling Several Hundred Miles.

LONDON, April 25.—Claude G. White, the aviator, who today endeavored to secure the Daily Mail's prize of $50,000 for an aeroplane flight from London to Manchester, was forced to abandon the effort when 69 miles of his goal.

White was forced to abandon the flight at Litchfield because of the intense cold. He made the flight to Litchfield early today, having stopped at Rugby for breakfast. He descended at Litchfield, almost exhausted because of the extreme cold.

White will try the flight again tomorrow if the weather conditions are more favorable. He will start from London at 3 a. m.

White declared if he had known how cold it was today he would not have attempted the flight. He is Farman's pupil. The biplane he is flying is a new one and has very powerful motors. If White fails to win the prize today Paulhan will attempt the flight Monday.

MORE EAST INDIANS ARRIVE ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 25.—Thirty more East Indians, most of whom are Sikhs, arrived recently on the Chi Yi Maru and are now at the Angel Island immigration station, waiting to be admitted to the United States.

The Hindus, like the large bands who have recently arrived on the Pacific coast, are unskilled laborers. Many of them will go into Oregon and Washington, where they are to be employed by big manufacturing corporations.

The arrival of the Hindus has stirred up leaders of labor unions in California, and a strong protest is being made against their admittance to America. Recently the Asiatic Exclusion league passed resolutions in which it was asserted that America would be facing another Asiatic problem unless immediate steps were taken to stop the ever-increasing flow of immigrants from India.

Passengers on the Chi Yi Maru, who have lived in India, declared that the Hindus are only prevented from immigrating to America because they lack the funds. They asserted that those who have already reached the shores of the Occident will assist others in paying passage, until thousands will have arrived in the United States.
