CLOSE GAME FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Central Point Strengthens Materially and Antel's Loss Makes Medford Weaker—The game Should Be an Interesting One.

Indications are good for a close and interesting game between Medford and Central Point this afternoon. Manager Grieves has added some new players which have strengthened his team materially, and Medford has lost its leftfielder, Antel, through the accident which occurred to him.

It may be that Central Point will have the honor of taking the second game Medford has lost this season.

Batting Averages.

The Medford team is batting pretty well up toward the .300 mark individually and collectively, and will average higher as a team than any other in the league. Strain will finish a good deal higher than he now stands, as he is just now getting his eye.

CENTRAL POINT NEWSLETTER

Miss Edith Brown of this city spent Thursday and Friday in Grants Pass on business.

H. T. Hull and wife and their son, Harry, are spending a few days in Central Point, visiting among their old friends and neighbors. They are now residents of Grants Pass and enjoy their new home, but admit frankly that Central Point still looks good to them.

Booth Lee was attacked on Thursday evening with a very severe hemorrhage of the lungs, and although much improved, is still somewhat weak. This is the most severe of several similar attacks which he has suffered recently and his friends are much concerned with regard to his condition.

Mrs. Robert Kyle and Mrs. A. L. Aiken drove to Medford Friday afternoon on business. Mrs. Aiken remained until Saturday with her son, who lives in Medford.

Wick Welch made a flying trip from Tolo to Central Point on Friday and shopped with one hand while he talked with the other, keeping both eyes on the watch for the returning motor, which came while he was in the midst of a dissertation on Tolo's future greatness. Wick has a flourishing tonsorial business in Tolo and being a born booster he does not allow that any town in Oregon has much of a show save and except Tolo. Tolo is "classy"—that we will all concede, and it is a pleasure to know that she is actually booming, with a deep resonant boom. Tolo has a payroll of $900 a day. She is manufacturing brick "to beat the band"; she is soon to have a tile factory, a $2000 hotel and other things that go to make a town worth while. We learned all this while Wick was poising for a spring onto the motor last Friday morning.

A. L. Aiken and wife, longtime residents of Central Point, but now of Riddell, Douglas county, are visiting friends here and in Medford. They are much pleased with their new location and feel that they made no mistake in investing there. They will return to Riddell in a few days.

"This earth does not seem so very big, after all," says genial Frank Taylor, proprietor of the Central Point bakery, yesterday morning. Every little while someone pops up whom you have known in some other part of the world and never thought to see again. A few weeks ago a young fellow came in here whom I recognized instantly as Archie Quisenberry of Quincy, Ill. He used to come into my place of business in that city very often, and now he has drifted out here and is working for Purdin in the Globe office." Business cares just then called him away as he was about to add: "No, the earth don't seem so very big, and apparently most of the people on it are headed this way."

Great interest is still being shown in the tabernacle meetings and everyday witnesses from ten to a dozen conversions. The work is conducted quietly and the feeling is deep, although undemonstrative. The churches have been greatly strengthened during these meetings, all denominations working together with perfect good feeling and harmony.

The Ladies' Civic Improvement club meets this (Friday) afternoon and an effort will be made at this meeting to postpone the coming flower show for one year, or at least to rearrange the plan of the carnival and postpone it until some time in September. The fact that the date was set too late to secure a good display of flowers has become painfully apparent and only a few of the ladies are in favor of attempting to carry out the plan so arranged.
