JEFF'S GROUCH IS GONE AND ALL THE CAMP IS NOW HAPPY

BY MAX BALTHASER.

RENO, Nevada, June 24.—James J. Jeffries smiled yesterday and the grouch fled. The smile is playing a return engagement today and the human oak is as cheerful as the force of trainers and humorists in his camp could possibly wish. The result is a lot of vim and dash in his work that is showing the interested spectators about the camp that Jeffries' condition is as good as his friends have claimed it is.

The disposal of John L. Sullivan by James J. Corbett is one of the little incidents that has done much to put the retired champion in his present excellent spirits. Today Sullivan is about the most disgusted man in Reno, and you have to listen a long time at Moana to hear a word of sympathy for him.

"He got exactly what was coming to him," is the general comment around the Jeffries camp on the diplomatic but convincing manner in which Corbett affixed the can to the old title holder.

Corbett, who has a sympathetic strain, was sorry that the incident to occur, "but it was the only thing I could do," he said.

Knowing that Jeffries did not want to see Sullivan and that he did not want to talk to him, Corbett stepped into the breach and acted as buffer, fearing a meeting between the two fighters might result in upsetting Jeffries and bring back the dreaded grouch.

The thorough way in which Corbett disposed of Sullivan had a good effect on Jeffries and in the afternoon he worked like a demon, and when he was through tugging at the exerciser, skipping the rope, shadow boxing and roughing it with Burns and Jack Jeffries, his respiration was normal and he declared the rarified air had not the slightest effect on him. He seemed in as good a condition after the workout as he did after his hard training stunts at Rorwardennan.

One thing that impressed the judges of condition who watched the workout was the perspiration that oozed out of his pores soon after he began his work. It showed that the danger of going stale is a very remote danger and that the big fellow has enough to work on between now and the day of the fight to keep him busy and to allow him to improve.

Johnson had seen some of the rushes the big fellow made while he was shadow boxing he might not have felt as confident of the outcome of the scrap as he now professes to be. The rushes were certainly terrifying. He hurled himself across the ring with the speed and power of a 13-inch shell and women spectators who were near the ring gave vent to little shrieks of terror at the vicious lunges.

Jeffries is happy and full of pranks. He is delighted with his new camp. He is anxious to begin hard boxing and see if he can stand the stress of a long, hard battle. He feels confident that he can, but he wants to put himself to the test and it is likely that for the next few days there will be plenty of slam-bang work which will make Jeffries' sparring partners feel as though they had earned their money.

He wants to learn as soon as possible how 8 or 9 rounds of boxing will affect him. If he can go through the full three minute sessions with as little inconvenience as he has experienced in his first workouts up here he will be satis-

KLAMATH LIBEL CASES DISMISSED

Only Two Suits Now Against Newly Established Paper—Others Are Dismissed by Judge.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., June 24.—The regular June term of the circuit court is in session, with Judge George Noland on the bench.

A jury was selected in the case of William Lashua vs. Sugarman, in which the plaintiff is trying to collect $150 from defendant for locating him on a timber claim. After being shown the timber and making his filing defendant cancelled his filing and refused to pay filing fee.

The case of the state vs. Mrs. Maggie Jones-Deal, who is charged with being implicated in the burning of the Dave Shook house on April 16, if the grand jury finds an indictment, will be the most important case on trial.

The dates for the hearing of libel cases against the Klamath Publishing company have not been set and it is not known whether they will come up this term. All of these cases, brought by local men, have been dismissed, except two for $10,000 each. These are the ones of County Judge J. B. Griffith and Commissioner S. T. Summers, who allege that they have been injured to this amount by articles published in the Klamath Chronicle, published by the defendant company.

You will miss a treat if you don't try Rardon's Loganberry Sherbet.

FIRST PURELY COMMERCIAL AIR TRIP MADE

Grant Dirigible Deutschland Sails With Twenty Passengers—Breakfast Is Served on Board—Revenue From Trip Is $3000.

DUSSELDORF, Germany, June 24.—The giant dirigible Deutschland today made the first purely commercial aerial trip in the history of the world when it sailed with 20 passengers who had paid $50 each for their tickets. The Deutschland was in the air three hours, sailing southeasterly toward Freiderichshafen. Weather conditions were ideal for the flight.

After traveling a distance of 100 miles the Deutschland descended and picked up 20 new passengers. The second hundred miles of the trip toward Freiderichshafen will be completed this afternoon, then the airship will alight for the night and Freiderichshafen will be reached tomorrow.

The revenue in fares for this trip is $3000. Twelve Germans, six Englishmen and two Hollanders were the passengers on the first trip today. Breakfast was served on board. Airship depots equipped with turnstiles have already been established and the management will soon open ticket offices.

RICKARD HAS ARENA TROUBLE

Flanagan, on Whose Property Arena is to Be Erected, Has Demanded That Lumber Be Purchased From Him.

RENO, Nev., June 24.—Promoter Tex Rickard was busy early today in an endeavor to overcome the objections of T. J. Flanagan to the erection of an arena on his property. Work would have been started two or three days ago had not Flanagan demanded an agreement of the citizens' committee to buy the lumber from him.

Another obstacle which will be overcome without much difficulty is Contractor McLoughlin's demand for $1000 before he starts to build the arena. He was given half this amount last night and promised the other half today.

If the store ads were not worth your while they would not be published at all.

STERLING MINE SHOT BY CAMERA

Selig's Party Visits Famous Placer and Gets Splendid Pictures—Busy Getting Various Scenery in This Section.

The scenery of Southern Oregon will be presented to the world shortly through the series of moving pictures being now taken by the Selig people, who have a corps of efficient actors here depicting scenes of the early mining and Indian fighting days.

The company worked at the Sterling mine Thursday, and Friday they were at Gold Ray. They are developing a drama of the mining days with the natural scenery and expect to have the films showing within a few weeks.

As soon as the harvest of the fruit in the valley commences pictures will be taken, properly labelled, and will be exhibited in every town and city in the United States.

MEXICO KEEPING THE LID ON TIGHT

Evident From Precautions That the Mexican Government Fears Trouble During Today's Celebration of San Juan Day.

EL PASO, Texas, June 24.—Fearing that today's celebration of San Juan day may turn into the uprising which has been feared for some weeks, the Mexican government is taking every precaution against rioting. Troops are established along the boundary and other soldiers are stationed at inland cities. At Cananea there is a strong force of troops; others stationed at Naco have been recalled and hurried to Cananea. Rurales are mobilized at Naco.

The funds from the custom house at Naco have been transferred to Mexico City for safekeeping and other towns in Sonora have sent funds in the same shipment.

From the precautions taken it is evident that the Mexican government is expecting trouble and that an uprising is feared.

We Fix It
