MISS CROSMAN DELIGHTS LARGE LOCAL AUDIENCE

"Anti-Matrimony" Pronounced One Best Show Seen Here. Rivaling "The Lion and the Mouse" in Popularity—Is Delightful Satire.

Henrietta Crosman was greeted last night by a large audience, in spite of the hot weather. "Anti-Matrimony," was the play and the applause and good humor of the crowd showed that the comedy was well received. The company was a good one, from Miss Crosman down to Elizabeth Baker, who played a typical old lady of the Puritan type in the most artistic manner.

Percy Mackeye, the author, has undertaken to write a satirical comedy of the higher order. "Anti-Matrimony" is a sweeping satire on Ibsen, Bernard Shaw, Sudemann, Maeterlinck, and the play is a little dense to those who are not familiar with the works of these authors. A Medford audience, however, is, we think, above the average. They always take their classic dose and smack their lips for more. Clever satire is a delightful style of comedy, but those who have written successful plays along this line are very few.

Mr. Gilbert, who wrote satirical comedies and collaborated with Mr. Sullivan in comic opera, set a mark so high that writers like Percy Mackeye are but feeble imitators. The line between farce comedy and satire is a very fine one, and brother Mackeye keeps wobbling over this line.

Then again, if we are permitted to criticize, the author conceived his plot and was so absorbed by the main motive that he forgot to color it with a counter-plot. He is like a musician who writes only in one key and one tempo.

But Miss Crosman and her company are such clever actors that they would be capital entertainers in a play of even less merit than "Anti-Matrimony." Miss Crosman is easily first among American actresses. As a comedienne she is thoroughly legitimate, never bordering on the burlesque. She first captured New York as Mistress Nell in "Nell Gwynn," and her success has been continuous, though it is no easy matter to procure plays to suit the delicate shading for which Miss Crosman is famous.

Henri Gunson of our town was at one time a member of her cast during her New York run and during a visit with her yesterday told her of the beauties of the Rogue River valley with as much enthusiasm as he has praised the ability of Miss Crosman before her arrival.

We compliment Miss Crosman on surrounding herself with a cast so capable. Herbert E. Fortier, Gordon Johnston, Elizabeth Baker and Grace Carlisle are all unusually good and played with a harmony that made the play a success as a whole, never marred the performance with an effort at individual prominence.

HAVE ONLY PRAISE FOR CRATER LAKE AUTO LINE

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Heard and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Root and Miss Josephine Root have returned from a trip to Crater Lake. They report a most enjoyable trip and are especially enthusiastic over the accommodations offered by the Crater Lake Automobile stage line. Both Mr. Heard and Mr. Root state that the cars are very comfortable and powerful. The drivers are careful and instead of being a tedious trip it is enjoyable in every respect. Accommodations at the lake are exceptionally comfortable.
