FROGS BOTHERED

Tenor Who Sang Here With Demrosch Tells of His Visit in Medford-Says He Had a Hard Time to Get a Room.

Reed Miller, the tenor who sang here last May with Walter Damrosch and his orchestra, has this to say, in an interview printed in magazine, about the concert in which he took part in this city:

"At Medford, Or., we thought for a time that we wouldn't have any place to sleep. We got in at 5 p. m. only to find every hotel filled, but after walking all over town we finally found a 'tent city' on the outskirts, and so we spent the night under canvas. You see, it was a growing town, and the 'boom' kept it ahead of the hotel facilities. We were nearly frozen, but the warmth of our welcome made up for that, The hall was very small and the solos were punctuated by the croaking of frogs in a marsh outside, but they evidently wanted good music, for, figuring on the capacity of the hall, it must have cost each listener about $5 a ticket."

Observe the use and position of the word "they" after "frogs." Mr. Miller evidently does not mean that the Medford frogs paid $5 per ticket for admission something else. Mr. Miller will likely retort that he was mis-

PRESIDENT GRAHAM IS ON HIS WAY SOUTH

McCredie, the owners of the Beavers, would visit Seattle, Spokane and Tacoma. It was intimated that the baseball magnates of the Northwest and Graham would consider a scheme of enlarging the coast league to eight teams to include the present Northwest league.

President Graham was an interested spectator at the game between the Beavers and Seals this afternoon. He cheered vociferously for
